Senate Kills RFC Shift to Control of Commerce

No Record Vote On Fulbright Move To Veto Plan 27 In Reorganization

By Mary Spargo
Post Reporter

The Senate yesterday vetoed President Truman's plan to place the much criticized Reconstruction Finance Corporation under the Department of Commerce.

It then approved, 43 to 30, a proposal to shift the Federal National Mortagage Association from RFC to the Housing and Home Finance Agency.

The RFC slapdown was put through when the Senate shouted approval of a motion by Senator J. William Fulbright (D., Ark.) calling for rejection of the proposal to give Commerce Secretary Charles Sawyer jurisdiction of the multibillion dollar Government lending agency.

Under the reorganization law a presidential proposal becomes effective 60 days after it is advanced unless it is disapproved by a constitutional majority of the House or Senate. The House had given its stamp of approval to the RFC change last week.

The Senate dispensed with the customary roll call vote on the Fulbright motion.

But Vice President Alben W. Barkley ruled that the necessary 49 votes—a constitutional majority of the Senate—had been cast in favor of the resolution against the proposal. Seventy-nine Senators had answered the quorum call for the RFC vote.

The RFC plan was the sixth governmental reorganization plan knocked down by the Senate out of 27 submitted to Congress this year. Sixteen have become law and five are still before Congress.

The House is slated to take up Monday the highly controversial issue of creating a separate Department of Health, Education and Security, a move which would, in effect, give cabinet status to the Federal Security Agency now headed by Oscar Ewing.

GOP Sees Defeat

The most optimistic prediction Administration sources would venture yesterday on the new department was that the House vote would be "very close." GOP sources claim the necessary 218 votes to defeat the plan in the House but in any event it was clear the proposal would face even tougher sledding in the Senate.

Since the House did not kill the transfer of "Fanny May" (FNMA), from RFC to the housing agency the transfer becomes law Sunday and will go into effect September 9.

Fulbright, chairman of a Banking and Currency subcommittee investigating RFC, led the fight to kill the President's proposal. He asked his colleagues to wait until the subcommittee had finished investigating the agency before deciding what to do with it.

The subcommittee has already uncovered some activities of RFC, such as a loan of nearly a million dollars to a Reno, Nev., hotel

Gun Blasts Steal Show At Watergate

By Paul Hume

Four French 75s stole last night's Watergate show just as everyone had expected.

What difference does it make that two of the biggest "guns" in the concert world opened the program? (Tschaikowsky's Fifth Symphony, and his famous Piano Concerto in B Flat Minor.)

What chance has a fine young American pianist named Earl Wild against four 1897 model guns that shoot smoke, flame and blanks across the Potomac River—no matter how well he plays?

Who cares how good the amplification system works, even if it is the best it has ever been—which it was.

'Cause the 1812 Overture by Tschaikowsky closed the program, and it went off like a full dress parade for returning royalty. The guns fired 16 rounds, while the audience looked variously thrilled, scared green, happy as kids with new atom bombs to play with, and some even laughing hysterically, while clutching their escorts.

The firing squads were supervised by Lieutenant Fitzgerald from Fort Myer. Before the concert he confessed that he had never seen anything like these models during his time in the Army—that is, until the rehearsal the other day. He was thoughtful enough to suggest that people in canoes might be better off if they at least knew in advance that the cannon would be fired right over their heads.

At last report, no one fell in the

Prober Links Capone Gang And Costello

By Chalmers M. Roberts
Post Reporter

The gang created by Al Capone "during Prohibition now wields "tremendous influence" in the Nation through its control of modern-day rackets, the Senate Crime Investigating Committee was told yesterday.

In a lengthly recital, complete with stories of indictments, gang murders and various rackets, Virgil Peterson, the ex-FBI agent who now runs the Chicago Crime Commission, spread the Capone "syndicate" story on the record.

Peterson, a slim, precise man, contended that it is a known fact that the Nation's principal mobs have contacts throughout the country "which form a nation wide network of criminal activities," and that "members of principal mobs frequently work in close collaboration."

Peterson read from files of the Chicago Crime Commission, source of much of the well-publicized information about the big-time racketeering the Senators are investigating.

He said the Chicago gang now has "important alliances, particularly with the so-called Frank Costello gang in New York." He did not get around to that tie-up in detail, however, but may today. Joe Adonis is a Costello lieutenant.

Peterson was one of three witnesses yesterday. Others were Minnesota's Gov. Luther Youngdahl, who called for passage of the antislot machine bill now stalled in a House committee; and William Brown, chief owner of the Pioneer Racing News firm in St. Louis. Brown was called to appear after an argument with the committee over producing his records on subpena.

Switchmen End Strike On 4 Roads

Action Comes Hours After Truman Move; Rock Island Walkout Will Continue

Chicago, July 6 (AP).—The AFL switchmen's union called off its strike on four of five western railroads today—eight hours after President Truman threatened drastic action, if necessary, to end the walkout.

But the union said it will continue its 12-day strike against the 8000-mile Rock Island system "to learn whether free men in a free country can still bargain with their employers . . . without fear that big Government will team up with obstinate employers."

At St. Paul, Minn., officers of the Great Northern Railway said the road will resume operations "just as fast as we can."

Other roads affected by the switchmen's announcement did not disclose their plans immediately.

Francis A. O'Neill, member of the National (Railway) Mediation Board who has been sitting in on union negotiations with the carriers in Chicago, had no comment on the union's action.

A union spokesman said the Rock Island, which runs from Chicago and connects with west coast lines in New Mexico and Colorado, was paralled by other rail systems. He said a work stoppage on this line creates no emergency.

Rock Island Head "Shocked"

The union said its men will go back to work "whenever railroad management wants them" on the Great Northern, Chicago Great Western, Denver, Rio Grande and Western, and Western Pacific.

Denver and Rio Grande officials at Denver said tonight that full operation of both passenger and freight trains on its lines will be restored "as rapidly as possible."

Freight embargoes are being canceled, effective tonight, said F. C. Hogue, vice president of traffic, and trains will begin rolling as soon as cars are received from connecting lines or are loaded on Rio Grande rails. This will be some time Friday.

All passenger trains due to leave terminals after 8 a. m. (MST) will go back in service Saturday, said H. F. Eno, passenger traffic manager.

A Rock Island spokesman said the road's president, J. D. Farrington, was "shocked that the Rock Island should be singled out" for continuation of the strike.

In San Francisco the Western Pacific announced passenger train service on its lines will be resumed Friday.

Arthur J. Glover, president of the union, announced its action.

The union called out its 4000 members on the five roads June 25. The Rock Island employs 1500. The other four roads employ 2500. All the roads except the Great Northern halted operations, and the Great Northern cut its freight and passenger service.

The union called the strike to support its demands for a 40-hour workweek at 48 hours' pay—a demand rejected by a presidential fact-finding board.

The board instead proposed a 40-

9 Dead, 75 Hurt in Crash Of Speeding Flyers in Illinois

Monica, Ill., July 6 (AP).—Two high-speed Santa Fe streamliners, streaking eastward side by side, bumped midsections in a freak collision today that brought crushing death to nine persons and injuries to about 75.

The crash, at 4:40 a. m., was on a stretch of tracks near Monica where, every day, the 90-mile-an-hour El Capitan flyer from Los Angeles passes the 70-mile-an-hour Kansas City Chief from Kansas City.

Both trains were bound for Chicago, 148 miles northeast.

As the El Capitan began pulling ahead, its mail car lurched, left the tracks and jacknifed into the first car and side of the Chief's locomotive.

The collision slammed the El Capitan's coach back across its own tracks. The locomotive and several forward cars of the El Capitan broke loose and barreled down the tracks. The El Capitan's rear cars piled into the wreckage.

Sleeping passengers were bounced around like rubber balls. Twisted metal trapped some in their seats.

Four of the dead were in the washroom of an El Captain coach. They were slammed into the walls and crushed to death.

The locomotive and two front cars of the Chief also left the tracks. Several cars telescoped and tracks were torn up for a quarter of a mile.

Amtorg Sends Tons of Files To Embassy

The truckload of filing cabinets moved into the Soviet Embassy here Wednesday were from the Amtorg Trading Corp., Russian purchasing agency in New York, it was disclosed yesterday.

Six Amtorg officials were indicted last year for failure to register as foreign agents.

A Brooklyn moving firm said one of its trucks, loaded with nearly six tons of cabinets, left Amtorg's offices, at 210 Madison ave., New York, for Washington Tuesday night.

There was no explanation for the shifting of the cabinets, but in the Soviet Embassy they would not be subject to subpena.

A State Department spokesman said he saw no significance in the move. The Soviet agency is curtailing its office space and must move much of its equipment, the spokesman stated.

Defense Heads Not Alarmed By War Trend

Strong Military Points Available While U. S. Builds Up Strength

By John G. Norris
Post Reporter

President Truman and defense spokesmen yesterday expressed optimism about the outcome of the fighting in Korea despite the unfavorable news coming from the front.

Military chiefs said the buildup of troops, planes, ships and supplies is making progress despite "many logistical difficulties" and the combat situation is "not serious in any way."

An Army spokesman conceded that the Communist advance in a fast moving envelopment action was "cause for concern though not for alarm." There are several strong defensive positions to the south where the North Koreans can be held until superior American forces can be brought into play to take the offensive, it was said.

No one, however, felt that the job could be done quickly. Several months seemed the best estimate.

Top officials declared they thought too much concern and attention is being paid by the public to the 60-mile front in Korea. The Joint Chiefs of Staff and top planners at the White House, State and Defense Departments have to keep their eyes on the global situation.

That is the chief reason behind the hesitancy to move toward a partial mobilization or other expansion of the armed forces. It might produce a major reaction from Russia and other powers.

The President told newsmen he has no plans at the present time to call the National Guard or Reserves to active duty or to ask

Peiping Says It Intends To Take Isle

Message to U. N. Assails Truman for Giving Protection To Chiang's Fortress

Lake Success, July 6 (AP).—The Chinese Communist regime informed the United Nations tonight that it is determined to take Formosa "despite any military steps of obstruction taken by the United States Government."

The Red regime in Peiping accused the United States of an "act of open aggression" by assigning American naval units to protect Formosa, last stronghold of the Chinese Nationalists.

Foreign Minister Chou En-Lai outlined Red China's position in a message to U. N. Secretary-General Trygve Lie.

The American action to which the message referred was taken by President Truman on the heels of North Korea's invasion of South Korea. The Communist message stated:

"By keeping silent on this act of open aggression of the United States Goverment, the Security Council and the Secretary-General of the United Nations have forgone their functions and duties of upholding world peace, and thereby become pliant instruments of the policy of the United States Government."

Chinese Waters "Invaded"

The message said "the action of the United States Navy in invading the Chinese territorial waters around Taiwan (Formosa) forms an act of open aggression which thoroughly violates the principle of the United Nations charter forbidding any member to use force against the territorial integrity or political independence of any other state." The message continued:

"Taiwan is an inseparable part of the territory of China. This is not only a historical fact recognized by the entire world, but is also confirmed by the Cairo declaration, the Potsdam declaration and the situation since the surrender of Japan."

This is one point on which the Chinese Nationalists of Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek agree with the Chinese Reds—that Formosa belongs to China. Formosa was Japenese territory before World War II.

Nationalist China looks upon the United States not as a guardian over Formosa but as an ally in its defense. In other words, the Nationalists feel sovereignty of their government on the island is not impaired.

Returned to China in 1945

Formosa was ceded to Japan by China in 1895. After world War II the island was returned to China. That occurred in September, 1945, before the Chinese Communists, by force of arms, gained control of the Chinese mainland.

The Chinese Communist message described the U. N. Security Councitl's resolution of June 27 on

Stands Pat on AEC Nominee

Truman Again Indorses Pike, Slaps Angrily at Sen. Johnson

By Alfred Friendly
Post Reporter

President Truman yesterday gave a warm reindorsement of Summer T. Pike, his embattled nominee for another term as Atomic Energy Commissioner, and took an equally heated punch at one of Pike's chief opponents, Senator Edwin C. Johnson (D., Colo.).

At the same time, the President indicated his continued support for Martin Hutchinson, nominated for a vacancy on the Federal Trade Commission.

The opposition to Pike, which resulted in a 5 to 4 vote against his confirmation in the Congressional Atomic Energy Committee last week, is pure politics—Republican Party politics, if you will, Mr. Truman told his news conference.

A reporter noted that an unidentified Senator said Pike might be confirmed if Mr. Truman gave assurance he would not name Pike to the chairmanship of the AEC.

Angry at the imputation that he would consider a deal of that sort, the President snapped that he would make no such assurances. He pointed out that had it been his intention to name Pike to the top post, he would have done so long since. But even so, he would not make any such assurance to the Senate.

Pike, himself a Maine Republican, has been acting chairman of the AEC since the resignation in February of David E. Lilienthal. He was one of the original members of the commission. Failing to be confirmed by the Senate for a new four-year period, Pike left his job last Friday when his term expired.

The Senate is set to vote on his confirmation, however, Monday afternoon.

A reporter asked whether the opposition to Pike came from allegations that he "dragged his feet" on the proposal to make the hydrogen bomb.

That is not true, Mr. Truman replied. There is testimony by the Defense Department of his cooperation, the President added.

Was there any explanation of the fact that Senator Johnson, a Democrat, voted with the four Republicans on the Congressional Atomic Committee against Pike's confirmation, a newsman inquired.

Does that need any explanation, Mr. Truman sarcastically replied.

Called 'New Aggression'

Moscow Holds Us Responsible For Damage to Red Interests

London (Friday), July 7 (AP).—Russia charged today the American blockade of Korea was a "new act of aggression" and warned she would hold the United States responsible for any damage to Soviet interests as a result of the blockade.

The Russian position was set forth in a note sent to the United States embassy in Moscow, the Moscow radio said.

It was in answer to one sent by the United States July 4 informing the Russians that the United States had established the blockade "in keeping with the United Nations Security Council's request for support to the Republic of Korea in repelling North Korean invaders and restoring peace in Korea."

The Russian reply repeated the Soviet stand that the Security Council resolution of June 27 was illegal. Therefore, the Soviet note said, the Security Council resolution could not "serve as a legal basis for taking any measures whatsoever with regard to Korea, including a naval blockade of Korea."

Russia has insisted that the Security Council resolution was not legal because the Soviet Union and Communist China were not present at the meeting. Russia has boycotted Security Council sessions because Nationalist China still is represented there.

The text of a Soviet note follows:

"The Ministry of Foreign Affairs of the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics acknowledge receipt of the (United States) Embassy's note of July 4 of this year, and on instruction of the Soviet government has the honor to state the following:

"In the mentioned note the Embassy informs that the President of the United States of America has ordered a naval blockade of the Korean coast, alluding to the Senior U. S. Officer Not Contemptuous Of Foe Any Longer

At An Advanced Outpost, South Korea, July 6 (AP).—"I've been a little contemptuous of them." (North Koreans). "Not any more."

A senior American officer dropped this remark tonight after watching his artillerymen duelling point-blank with North Korean tanks.

Some fights were at 100 yards range.

The Americans "ducked, raised up, and fired again," said the officer.

Along a broad front, the Americans and their South Korean allies withdrew at some points tonight. Northern tank and infantry lunged 15 miles and overran Pyongtaek and Songhwan and nosed into Chonan. Pyongtaek is about 36 miles south of Seoul, Songhwan another 5 miles south, and Chonan is 7 miles south of Songhwan.

Court Upholds Treason Verdict On Robert H. Best

Boston, July 6 (U.P.).—The United States Court of Appeals today upheld the conviction of former newsman Robert H. Best on a charge of treason as result of his propaganda broadcasts on the Nazi radio during World War II.

It was expected that Best, 53-year-old former resident of Sumter, S. C., would now carry his appeal to the United States Supreme Court.

Best was sentenced to life imprisonment June 30, 1948, and has been held in Charles st. jail here pending his appeals. He was brought to the Federal building today and handed the court's 20-page decision.

Morale of Wounded Is High; 'We Can Lick Them,' One Declares

Taejon, Korea, Friday, July 7 (AP). The Associated Press was informed today that American dead so far in the Korean fighting total 20 and the wounded are four or five times that number.

(This dispatch, filed at 6:34 a. m.—4:35 p. m. Thursday, EDT.—did not give the source of the information.)

Special care is being given the wounded. The first to come back arrived at 6:30 p. m. Thursday (4:30 a. m. Thursday, EDT).

(This dispatch, by AP Correspondent O. H. P. King, evidently referred only to ground casualties—not air.)

They were greeted by a medical officer, his aide and an Army nurse.

Smokes and candy were given to the six stretcher cases and two walking cases. One man was dead on arrival.

Morale of the wounded was high. They were brought here aboard a gasoline railway car.

"We can lick them" (the North Koreans), one man said as Sergt. R. Lauderdale of Oakland, Calif. checked them for air removal to Japan.

"They shoot like kindergarten kids playing marbles.

"I ran all over the paddy fields while they took turns pelting me with automatic rifles—about 50 shots to a burst.

"It was half an hour before they got me, and then I was only hit in the arm."

Pilot and copilot of the evacuation plane were Edward L. Thompson of Doylestown, Pa., and Ray Prott of Ft. Worth, Tex. (Ranks not given).

A chaplain, Capt. James C. Sherwood of Johnson City, Tenn., and a Maryknoll missionary, the Rev. P. H. Cleary, talked to the wounded as they were bathed, shaved and had their wounds dressed.

'Fantastic . . . Propaganda'

U. S. Fumigates Soviets' Charge Our Fliers Dropped Spud Bugs

The State Department yesterday applied a strong dose of diplomatic DDT to Russia's formal charge that American war planes dropped potato bugs over eastern Germany, causing a serious spud shortage.

"What has happened is obvious enough," the department said, ridiculing Moscow for identifying itself with such puerile "propaganda."

"The Communist authorities in eastern Germany have failed to bring the bug problem under control and protect the agriculture of other Soviet satellite countries and of the Soviet Union. Moreover, they are in need of an excuse for the anticipated (potato) shortage.

"Instead of holding them responsible for the hardships their failure will cause to the people of eastern Germany and eastern Europe, the Soviet government has resorted to a well-known device and invented a 'saboteur'—this time in the guise of the United States Air Force."

The department made it clear that using the defenseless potato bug, or Colorado beetle, as a foreign policy weapon was quite beneath its dignity and should be beneath the Kremlin's. It said.

"In the present world situation, fraught with explosive tensions, the Soviet government has chosen to poison the atmosphere even further with one of the most fantastic fabrications that ever has been invented by one government against another."

The potato bug "offensive" origi-

Enemy on Coast Shelled; Only 500 GIs in First Clash on Land

Tokyo, Friday, July 7 (U.P.).—Gen. Douglas MacArthur's headquarters announced today that American B-29 Superfortresses hit four craft believed to be submarines in a series of strikes against communist North Korea. There was a possibility the submarines were Russian.

Headquarters announced American warships have attacked the communist beachhead at Samchok on the east coast of South Korea 170 miles north of Pusan.

MacArthur's communique said the United States warships fired into the Communist positions all the way from Samchok to the 38th parallel, 45 miles to the north.

Communist land batteries fired back.

American naval officers have reported that the North Koreans have no submarines and observers believed the craft hit today may have been part of the Russian navy.

Tokyo, Friday, July 7 (AP). Defense forces fell back and regrouped in embattled South Korea Thursday as the American commander there disclosed that so far only 500 Americans have seen action.

Three North Korean infantry divisions preceded by a cutting edge of armor speared 60 miles south of captured Seoul.

[The United Press said the defending forces had withdrawn their advance detachments to a defense line astride the Seoul-Pusan highway about 40 miles north of Taejon and in the area of Chonan, 35 miles south of Suwon. —Editor's note.]

The commander asked correspondents to "help me pray for fair weather" which would enable the Air Force to deal heavier blows to the lengthening Red supply columns.

A communique said today U. S. troops, outnumbered 8 to 1, held off the best Communist division and 40 tanks for six hours in the first engagement of the war.

General MacArthur's headquarters communique said the Americans were threatened with encirclement and withdrew only after ammunition was exhausted.

The communique said the Americans numbered less than one battalion. The U. S. commander in South Korea gave the number at around 500 men and estimated casualties at approximately 10 percent.

At American headquarters in Korea the commanding general told correspondents actions involving Americans so far had been small and no major engagement betwen GIs and North Koreans had taken place. Maj. Gen. William F. Dean is the American commanding general in Korea but the dispatch from Korean headquarters did not mention him by name.

The supply lines of the mobile North Korean units have been hit repeatedly from the air and in time results will show, he said. However, more air blows are necessary.

"The situation is much like when we hit German ball-bearing plants in World War II," he continued.

In that case, he reminded, it took time before a lack of enemy equipment was felt.

"Though the enemy has probably 100,000 men in the war," the

Air Strength Ready For Attack Phase

Headquarters, Far East Forces, Tokyo (Friday), July 7 (U.P.).—Lieut. Gen. George E. Stratemeyer said today that American air strength in Korea, experienced by 1100 sorties in 10 days, was shifting swiftly from the defensive to the attack phase of the fighting.

Stratemeyer, commander of U. S. Air Forces in the Far East, said the planes of the U. S. Fifth and Twentieth Air Forces had completed their main defensive missions and were now ready to join in coordinated operations with Navy and ground forces.

One of the Air Forces' main tasks in the first 10 days of the Korean invasion was to rescue American women and children caught in the path of the Communist advance, Stratemeyer said.

More than 850 wives and children of American military and diplomatic officers were flown to safety in the opening days of the Communist assault, Stratemeyer said in a report on air operations in Korea.

The airlift was carried out despite adverse weather conditions and ceilings which frequently were as low as 100 feet or less, the air commander said.

Stratemeyer's report said full-scale tactical support of embattled South Korean forces got underway on June 27, two days after the Communist forces launched their assault across the thirty-eighth parallel.

The first attacks were made by F-80 jet fighters and F-82 all-weather fighters. They flew 184 sorties the first day. Bombing operations began the following day when B-29s of the Twentieth Air Force joined the battle, flying their first combat misions since the end of World War II.

Stratemeyer said operations in this first critical period consisted for the greater part of fighter strikes at military targets behind North Korean lines combined with air support for South Korean ground troops falling back from the initial Communist assault.

For these attacks the pilots used mostly rockets and their .50-caliber machine guns, the air commander said. Gaining battle experience quickly, they soon evolved successful techniques for low-level strafing attacks. Stratemeyer said these attacks destroyed substantial quantities of material and equipment and helped disrupt North Korean supply and communications lines.

Prepare Idle Cargo Ships, Curran Asks

New York, July 6 (U.P.).—Joseph Curran, president of the National Maritime Union, urged President Truman today to ready this country's "thousands" of merchant vessels laid up at various ports for possible service in the Korean war.

In a telegram to the President, Curran said "in the light of the present Korean situation in a tense world picture, the CIO National Maritime Union urges you to instruct the Federal Maritime Board to take immediate steps to place in readiness the thousands of merchant vessels laid up at various points in our country.

"Thousands of merchant seamen and shipyard workers are unemployed and available for this important work in the interests of our nation's welfare and preparedness."

U. S. and Foe Lose 22 Planes Each in 10 Days

Tokyo (Friday), July 7 (AP). United States and North Korean aerial losses were placed at an identical figure of 22 planes each through the first 10 days of the Korean aerial fighting ending yesterday.

This was announced today in a Far East Air Force communiquie.

Half of the lost American planes were lost in combat. The rest were lost in ground attacks or as the result of operations.

Ottawa, July 6 (U.P.).—The army said today the Korean war had "stimulated" enlistments but most applicants are being rejected after failing to meet physical requirements.

Pilot Forced to Leap Twice to Escape Plane

Tokyo, July 6 (AP).—First Lt. Harry M. Lister of Topeka, Kans., jumped twice from his B-26 bomber before he succeeded in bailing out when the engine went dead.

The first time his coveralls caught on the seat and the 29-year-old bombardier had to crawl back and release himself and jump again.

Lister hit the water safely and floated about four hours supported by his life preserver. South Korean fishermen found him and took him to a village. Policemen eyed him suspiciously. Eventually a Korean colonel cleard him as American, presented him with silver after dinner coffee cups and sent him by jeep to Pusan, where the Mayor and other city officials gave him a hero's welcome.

East Germans Collect Aid for Korean Reds

Berlin, July 6 (U.P.).—Committees have been established in eastern Germany to collect drugs, supplies and money for the North Korean army, it was reported today.

icans have destroyed at least two tanks, according to front line reports. Later, unconfirmed reports today said the total is ten.

In a rail station a senior American commander told several reporters:

"It was a bad one this time."

He said possibly 40 Red tanks, supported by a "very strong force" of infantry had staged a small scale blitzkrieg.

The tanks rolled out of Sojong before dawn, about 6 miles north of Pyongtaek. Several dynamited bridges didn't stop them. They reached Pyongtaek by daybreak.

Sergt. Lester Loflin, of Mount Airy, S. C., saw eight tanks and 800 to 1000 infantrymen.

"They were marching in columns—smoking cigarettes," related Loflin, a veteran of European warfare.

"A corporal in my outfit said they came on like rats—in droves."

The senior officer said one Red tank was hit by an American artillery burst. The crew leaped out, their clothes flaming. The Americans called to them to surrender. They refused. They joined other units and came on against the American positions.

As artillerymen abandoned their positions and guns, they took off breecklocks and sights to make the weapons useless.

A reliable source who made the withdrawal with the Americans said some equipment, ammunition, and food was left behind.

A key American command post was evacuated before the Communist armored drive. Soldiers left behind to fight a rearguard action were outflanked as the Reds came on.

Fears Heavy Casualties

The senior officer was not sure about American casualties but said he believed they were "heavy" in at least two units.

The onrushing Reds apparently were not hit by American planes today, he said, because of bad weather. He hadn't seen an American plane attacking the Reds all day, he said.

Jeeps and trucks with grim-faced drivers and GIs traveled slowly south along a road crowded with refugees fleeing the Communists.

The Americans carried in a blue-grey blanket the body of one GI killed in this latest Red push.

They had fought bravely. A senior officer said one unit stayed at its position seven hours battling the Reds and withdrew only when its ammunition ran out.

(At USAFIK (United States Armed Forces in Korea) headquarters farther south, AP Correspondent O. H. P. King reported a spokesman confirmed the American retreat. He said the main action had been on the American left flank. "It was fluid during the afternoon but is static now," the spokesman said.

20 to 35 Tanks Blasted

(He told King from 20 to 35 Red tanks and from 19 to 25 Yak fighter planes had been destroyed by American forces in Korea. He did not say over what period of time.

(The Northerners, he estimated, had a total of 160 to 170 tanks below the 38th parallel. He added it is believed they are running low on fuel and supplies.

("Yesterday afternoon we had a liaison flight over 1000 North Korean troops and not one got up to fire his rifle or carbine. The men were exhausted."

(He said northern trucks were off the road, "and to me that was a sign they were out of oil or fuel."

(Asked if the Americans had withdrawn 20 miles, he replied: "We actually have withdrawn 8 or 10 miles."

(He said the south Koreans have knocked out about 15 northern tanks or armored cars.

Reds Hard Hit at Suwon

(Judging from reports a few days ago that 50 tanks were in the Suwon attack, King said the Americans may have knocked out about half of the Red tank strength in the Suwon sector.

(When asked by a correspondent whether the situation was bad or good, the commander at USAFIK replied: "No situation is good unless you are advancing."

(He said he hoped Korean people who had expressed delight over his return to Korea would not be disappointed.

(Another source at USAFIK told King American air power is heavily hitting the north Korean supply line and air bases.

(The same source said there was reason to believe several north Korean Yaks have carried southern insignia, apparently trying to hide their identity for closer strikes. This was the first report of such a practice. It was later reported in a MacArthur headquarters communique issued in Tokyo.)

Defenders of Korea, Driven Back, Regroup for New Blow

General said, "he can use only one or two divisions on any one road."

The General said there had been no major enemy air or ground action during Thursday night.

An airforce communique said two railroad bridges and two highway bridges had been knocked out and claimed the Red movement southward had been slowed or stopped, a claim not wholly substantiated in dispatches from other headquarters and from fighting areas.

General MacArthur's communique, issued at 12:35 a. m. today Tokyo time (9:35 a. m. Thursday, EST) said the Communist invaders were pouring reinforcing troops, artillery, tanks and supplies into the Suwon rear area 23 miles south of Seoul to maintain their big southern push.

60 Miles Below Seoul

Headquarters acknowledged that the major invader thrust was speared by the North Korean First, Third and Fourth Divisions (possibly 30,000 to 40,000 men). Their immediate objectives were described as Osan and Pyongtaek, 15 and 25 miles, respectively, south of the fallen airstrip at Suwon.

Associated Press Correspondent Tom Lambert reported from the front, however, that the Red invaders already had overun Pyongtaek and had nosed into Chonan, 14 miles by road farther south and 60 miles south of Seoul.

The communique made no mention of casualties. A field headquarters spokesman, however, placed American losses as running from nominal to "heavy." There was no indication of the size of the American units, or what might be regarded heavy losses.

Associated Press Correspondent O. H. P. King, at Taejon reported unofficially that American dead thus far total 20. About 80 to 100 have been wounded. King's dispatch apparently referred only to ground casualties and did not take into account air losses in personnel.

(Lambert's dispatch apparently included later information than was available from Tokyo headquarters.)

The Red radio at Seoul claimed Red forces now are 41 miles south of Suwon, a few miles farther than previous American reports placed them.

The voice broadcast heard at Tokyo claimed capture of Pyongtaek at 3 p. m. July 6 (midnight E. S. T.).

The Red radio also claimed "destruction" of the 24th regiment of the United States 44th division. American forces have not disclosed what units are in action.

A new Red threat also was developing on the rugged east coast, where the North Koreans established beachheads in amphibious landings the first day of the invasion, June 25.

The communique said one column of an estimated 1700 Reds fanned out from Utchin on the east coast and others were reported moving and building up additional strength as far south as Pohang.

However at a United States naval base in Japan a Marine officer said the coast town of Utchin, which is 125 miles southeast of Seoul, had been recaptured from the Reds who occupied it June 28. The Marine officer said the Red push from Utchin had been stopped at Pyonggoktong, 25 miles south of Utchin.

(Pohang is on Yongil Bay 170 miles southeast of Seoul and 65 miles south of Utchin. The North Korean radio more than a week ago had reported a landing at Pohang, however.)

Several other invader columns were reported by the communique to be moving south and west in the coastal area.

The communique said the whole picture indicated a possible build-up of an enveloping maneuver.

In the main southern push by the Reds, advanced American troops fell back in the face of a coordinated tank and infantry thrust. Lambert said the Americans knocked out four enemy tanks with direct artillery fire.

An American spokesman at field headquarters said 20 to 35 of the Russian-built tanks had been destroyed, but did not give the period covered nor say whether he meant by ground forces alone or by air and ground.

Lambert described the Red rampage south as a small-scale blitzkreig. Abount 40 North Korean tanks and 800 to 1000 men led the attack. They swarmed into Pyongtaek as dawn broke, then spurted farther south, on the road to Chonan. Dymanited bridges apparently did not prove effective barriers.

South Koreans still htold Chungju and Chechon, 68 and 75 miles southeast of Seoul, the communique said, but are being regrouped and reorganized.

North Koreans pulled a surprise in the air when four Red fighters reportedly bearing South Korean markings swooped down on Osan. They hit a repeater station there, presumably a booster station for a hydro-electric plant.

Still bucking the weather, American B-29s and fighters struck north of the thirty-eighth parallel in an effort to choke off reinforcements for the lengthening Red lines. Fighter-escorted transports fed the South Korean beachhead for American troops with a shuttle of supplies from Japan.

Jet fighters in 81 sorties ripped six trucks, one locomotive and eight boxcars. B-29s turned their attention to railroad bridges and lashed these vital spans at the Red capital of Pyongyang and 40 miles north of Simanju.

Superfortresses ranged over the east coast to hit bridges at Kanko (Hamhung) on the Gulf of Korea and farther south bombed the airfield at Wonsan.

General MacArthur's communique conceded the loss of Inchon, 20 milessoutheast of Seoul and a major port. The Red radio at Pyongyang had claimed the port city two days earlier and in a dispatch today asserted that 2000 "enemy" troops were captured when it fell.

Reds Seen Pinning U. N. Role to Korea

London, July 6 (U.P.)—Some British diplomatic sources doubted today that the Soviet Union intends to remain in the United Nations.

Russia's decision, they said, will depend on whether the United States achieves a rapid victory in Korea.

"It has to be assumed that the Korean attack was undertaken as a probe into an area and a situation to which the United Nations organization was closely bound and which was of direct and vital interest to the United States," a source said. "It was a test of strength."

If the United States can score a quick victory, the source said, it may "appear desirable" for Russia to wash its hands of the Korean affair and "take another nibble" at negotiations for an East-West understanding.

Diplomatic sources, however, have suspected for some time that Russia intends to create a sort of Soviet "League of Nations," including a council of all Iron Curtain countries.

They said evidence is now emerging that the United Nations handling of the Korean affair will quite possibly prove to have been critical.

"Its diplomatic significance, we believe, will shortly outweigh its military implications," these sources said. "The handling of the matter will probably settle for good the character of the United Nations Organization. We believe this may be the next important consequence."

They cited the supreme Soviet's resolution supporting the Stockholm peace appeal, particularly the repeated reference to "cooperation with legislative organs of other states."

"The supreme Soviet is now confronted with a new diplomatic and defense program. It has long been expected that Russia would create a body in reply to the Atlantic deputies council. Russia has challenged the legality of the United Nations Security Council. We believe the prophesied creation of a rival satellite league will shortly be realized."

New Attack

French Meet Red Move in Indonesia

Saigon, Indochina, July 6 (U.P.).—French ground, naval and air units have moved in to break up an attack of Communist-led rebel troops about 50 miles southwest of Saigon and are mopping up in the area, military sources said today.

The Vietminh rebels attacked Monday night in the area of Caimon and Bentre, the sources said, and French forces went into action yesterday.

Local "Catholic brigades" in the region, which has a large Catholic population, were forced to abandon two posts, and to retreat, the sources added.

[The Associated Press said the attack was in the Bentre region, and that rebels captured two small forts. It said the attack was the first major action undertaken by the Vietminh in Cochin China in two months. Military observers predicted it wil be followed by other Communist assaults in line with orders from Moscow to intensify the anti-French campaign during the Korean hostilities.—Editor's Note.]

Russian Air Strength At Dairen Quadrupled

Hong Kong, July 6 (U.P.).—Russia has more than quadrupled her air force strength at Dairen, Manchuria, since the outbreak of the Korean fighting, Chinese nationalist reports from Formosa said today.

The reports, which lacked any other confirmation, said the Russians had boosted their force there from 50 to more than 200 aircraft, including giant transports, fighters and bombers.

The nationalist military news agency in Formosa said the Russians have 40 jet planes based in China proper, while the Chinese Communists have an airforce of 250 planes, mainly Soviet types based in Manchuria and North China.

the Korean question as "destitute of any legal validity." That resolution called on U. N. members to aid South Korea in resisting aggression.

Parroting a line previously advanced by Moscow, the Chinese Communist message said the resolution was illegal because the Soviet Union and Red China were not present at the meeting.

Nationalists and not the Red regime in Peiping represent China in the U. N. In an attempt to force a change in that situation Russia has boycotted U. N. sessions in which Chinese Nationalists participate.

The Communist note declared:

"The resolution adopted by the Security Council on June 27 under the instigation and manipulation of the United States Government, calling upon the members of the United Nations to assist the South Korean authorities, is in support of United States armed aggression and constitutes an intervention in the internal affairs of Korea and a Violation of world peace.

"The United Nations Charter stipulates that the United Nations shall not be authorized to intervene in matters which are essentially within the internal jurisdiction of any state, while the resolution of the Security Council on June 27 exactly violates this important principle of the United Nations Charter."

Fleet Shields Formosa While Hitting in Korea

Tokyo, July 6 (AP).—Vice Admiral Arthur Arthur D. Struble said today his Seventh Fleet can strike North Korea and still protect Formosa from possible Communist invasion.

The Seventh Fleet was ordered to keep invaders away from Formosa.

Struble conferred with General MacArthur after directing a two-day carrier plane strike against north Korea with combined American and British forces.

Strubel said his Seventh Fleet has had "no specific contact" with submarines in the Korean operations. The Navy has estimated the Soviets have about 75 submarines based in the Pacific.

A Chinese central news agency correspondent pressed Struble persistently on possible Formosa invasion, saying the Chinese Communists had said they would hasten landings on Formosa.

"I'm going to be prepared to prevent it if they do," Struble said.

"Can you,"

"I'll certainly try," Struble replied.

Later he said "I don't anticipate letting any sizeable invasion force get through" to Formosa.

Reds Refuse to Aid U. N. in South Korea

Lake Success, July 6 .—Russia's Andrei A. Gromyko served notice on Trygve Lie today the Soviet Union will do nothing to help the United Nations repeal Communists North Koren's invasion of South Korea.

No one here expected the Russians to do anything, but it was considered significant that the Soviet Union even replied to a telegram from the U. N. secretary-general asking all U. N. members how much help they could give.

The Russians are boycotting 30 U. N. organizations, but keep their delegation here manned and maintain close contact with U. N. headquarters.

Gromyko apparently is serving as acting Foreign Minister of the Soviet Union, although his telegram to Lie was signed simply "Mr. A. Gromyko, Deputy Minister of Foreign Affaires." The Foreign Minister, Andrei Y. Vishinsky, has not been heard from since the Korean crisis arose June 25.

Answering Lie's appeal for an estimate of help, Gromyko merely referred Lie to Gromyko's telegram of June 29 on the Security Council resolution.

The Security Council will consider a resolution on Korea when it meets at 2 p. m. (EST) tomorrow. The session originally had been set for 10 a. m., but was postponed because, one delegation source said, all members apparently had not received instructions from their home governments on the proposed resolution. Its main points were said to be:

12 Die in Heat Wave

Rome, July 6 (U.P.).—A heat wave that gripped Italy for a week eased today, but 12 persons were reported dead as a result of yesterday's high temperatures. Rome had 90 degrees, compared to yesterday's 100.

More Ships Held Needed by Navy in Pacific

A U. S. Naval Base in Japan, July 6 (AP).—Seagoing officers here say they need more ships and men to cut off North Korean seaborne supplies.

"We've got a boy-sized force to do a man-sized job," is the way one officer puts it.

American and Allied naval forces here have had two main assignments—hit enemy forces ashore and afloat and convoy American troops to Korea.

(In Tokyo, Vice Adm. Arthur D. Struble said today his Seventh Fleet can strike North Korea and still protect Formosa from possible Communist invasion.

No Submarine Contacts

(The chunky veteran of the Normandy invasion said his fleet has had "no specific contact" with submarines in the Korean operations. The Navy has estimated the Soviets have about 75 submarines based in the Pacific.)

Some Navy men think another job is building up—helping to isolate the invading Northern Koreans by cutting off their sea lines of supply. The Navy has already started to attack enemy supply vessels.

An American cruiser brought in recently what are believed to be the first North Korean war prisoners. Back from operations off Korea, it had five enlisted men and one North Korean officer, picked out of the water when the five torpedo boats were sunk last week. An estimated 43 Koreans were killed in this operation.

(From USAFIK headquarters in Korea, AP Correspondent O. H. P. King reported that American and British ships operating against North Korea have suffered no damage.

Utchin Retaken

(The coast town of Utchin, 125 miles southeast of Seoul, has been recaptured from Northerners who had occupied it June 28, this source said. He added that a Red push fanning out of Utchin had been stopped at Pyonggoktong, 25 miles south of Utchin.

(Meanwhile, South Koreans who had occupied Yangyang, 7 miles north of the border had been forced out, this source told King.

(Blockade vessels are serving as artillery for the South Korean defenders along the coast. Heavy barrages have been poured on Red beachheads and 11 of their craft have been sunk.

(In Tokyo, it was learned that the joint American-British carrier-plane strike which Monday and Tuesday bombed and strafed North Korean targets had been planned and executed within less than four days.

(The joint attack "seemed to take North Korean air defenders completely by surprise," according to Correspondent Harold Martin of the Atlanta Constitution. It shot one Northern plane down and destroyed 12 on the ground.)

Munitions Board Reports 253 Plants on War Footing Basis

Chicago, July 6 (U.P.).—The Federal Munitions Board has completed specific plans to put 253 industrial plants on an immediate war footing if the need arises, Chairman Hubert E. Howard reported tonight.

Howard said that the Army, Navy and Air Force now manage 270 of the 1595 plants built by the Government during World War II.

An additional 200 plants are in reserve. Either on a standby basis or under stipulation that they be kept in condition to convert within 120 days.

Howard said specific plans of operation have been drawn for 253 of the plants.

He said the Munitions Board is pushing more than 70 programs for the mobilization of industry in time of war, all of them aimed at speedy conversion.

The Government, he said, is proceeding on the assumption that the next war may come without warning.

Howard's summary of mobilization efforts were contained in an article published in the magazine of the Chicago Association of Commerce and Industry.

In addition to the work already done in drawing plans for plants, Howard said that reserves of machine tools are being built up and that 71 categories of critical materials are being stockpiled.

Howard said that such manpower problems as priorities, occupational deferments, adjustments of labor disputes, relaxation of Federal or State laws where necessary and channeling of workers into essential production are being worked out with the Department of Defense.

Menzies Urges Enlistments by Australians

Canberra, Australia, July 6 (AP) A call to Australians to enlist in the nation's fighting forces immediately was issued today by Prime Minister Robert G. Menzies.

The Prime Minister's appeal came as both houses of Parliament unanimously approved Australian support of the United Nations' Korean action.

The call to enlist "here and now" was emphasized by Menzies' warning of "preparation that comes too late."

Joseph B. Chifley, head of the opposition, and deputy opposition leader Herbert V. Evatt, former president of the U. N. General Assembly, supported Menzies' call for House backing of the government's use of Australian air and naval forces in the Korean crisis.

Evatt paid tribute to President Truman as a "great world leader whose courage, persistence and ability have so often been underestimated."

Menzies announced he will leave shortly for London, Washington, Ottawa, Vancouver, B. C. and New Zealand. He will travel by air and spend a few days in each place to discuss defense cooperation, migration problems and finance.

Invader Planes Using South Korea Markings

Tokyo, Friday, July 7 (AP).—General MacArthur's headquarters in a communique declared today that the North Koreans are using southern markings on their Russian-built Yak fighter planes.

"With South Korean markings," said the communique, "the North Korean planes are fairly safe, or have been until now."

"Intelligence officers of the American forces in Korea," the communique reported, "are postive that North Koreans are using South Korean markings on their Yak fighter planes."

As evidence, it reported that no South Korean Mustangs were in the air Thursday when the four planes with South Korean markings "bombed the South Koreans near Osan."

"This," the communique concluded, "confirmed earlier reports that 'illegitimate' methods of deception are being used."

Security Council's resolution on the Korean question.

"The Soviet government, in its reply of June 29 to the message of the United Nations secretary general, Mr. Trygve Lie, had already stated that the mentioned resolution of the Security Council on the Korean question was adopted in violation of the United Nations charter and has no legal force and consequently cannot serve as a legal basis for taking any measures whatsoever with regard to Korea, including a naval blockade of Korea.

"The blockade of Korea constitutes a new act of aggression. This blockade is just as incompatible with United Nations principles as is the entire armed intervention of the United States in Korea.

"Owing to the aforesaid, the Soviet government will consider the Government of the United States of America responsible for all consequences of this act and for all damage to interest of the Soviet Union which may be caused in connection with the carrying out of the aforementioned blockade."

56 Million Would Ban Atomic Warfare, Reds Say

Moscow, July 6 (U.P.).—The Soviet committee on the defense of peace announced today that more than 56 million citizens had signed a petition to ban atomic warfare as countrywide mass meetings continued under the theme of "Hands Off Korea.

The committee is headed by Poet Nikolai Tikhonov.

Izvestia, official organ of the presidium of the Soviet Supreme Council, said that "unbridled American imperialists—violators of the peace—will reap what they sowed."

"From all continents resounds the voice of millions—'Hands Off Korea'—expressing the peoples' indignation against American interventionists with British, Australian, Dutch and other accomplices," the paper added.

Both Izvestia and Pravda, the Communist Party organ, carried editorials saying the petition signatures represented "the mighty voice of the Soviet people" determined to maintain peace.

The mass meetings featured the slogans, "A mighty demonstration of the people's will toward peace," "United we will win," and "The imperialists cannot stifle free Korea."

Boris Polevoy, Stalin prize-winning novelist, charged in a Pravda article that capitalists and scientists abroad were preparing bacteriological war with a Japanese formula.

Eniwetok Atom Tests Unaffected by War

The Korean fighting has effected "no change" in plans of the Atomic Energy Commission and the Defense Department to hold a new series of atomic weapons tests at Eniwetok, it was learned yesterday.

That advice came from the AEC in answer to a reporter's question as to whether the hostilities had brought any change in the test plans.

Plans for the new tests were announced on November 29, 1949, but there was no statement as to when the trials would be held.

more money from Congress for the armed forces.

He appeared relaxed and smiling—in contrast to his manner a week ago just after the Far East trouble broke. A reporter asked him if he still believed everything will work out all right.

Mr. Truman said of course he does.

As to mobilizing the Reserves and Guard, he said there has been no discussion of this by those who make the decision though a great many armchair strategists seem to know exactly what should be done. The President made it plain that the decision on this was in his hands.

There has been a great deal of discussion of ways and means of handling the situation at the Pentagon, however, and many top officials have been urging a moderate expansion without use of the draft or compulsory call of Reserves or the Guard at present.

One proposal being given consideration is lifting the present dollar limits on Reservists serving on active duty. The Army would like to activate some of 40 to 50 Class A Organized Reserve battalions on a purely voluntary basis. The Navy and Air Force want to ask for volunteers from their Reserves to provide replacements and fill out under-strength plane, ground and ship crews.

No decision has been made by the three services on what to do and what they recommend must be approved by the Joint Chiefs, Secretary of Defense Louis Johnson and the President.

As far as manpower is concerned, the armed forces are in this curious position:

They are under strength in varying degrees and the recruiting of untrained men has been lagging below quotas. They've got the money to enlist and train more than they are getting.

But dollar ceilings imposed by the Bureau of the Budget on the number of reservists on active duty prevent the services from accepting volunteers from among the trained officers and men—almost all with combat experience—on the reserve rolls. In contrast to the lag in new recruits, many of the reservists are offering their services only to be told: "sorry, we'd like to take you, but we haven't the money."

The armed forces declined from an overall strength of 1,512,700 last January 31 to 1,458,400 on May 31, the last date for which figures are compiled. This was partially due to a planned cutback and partially to lack of volunteers.

An Army spokesman said they obtained only 64 percent of their recruiting quota for April and May, enlisting about 6,000 new men each month. The Air Force got 2,671 men or 55 percent of its April quota in April, and 3,859 new recruits in May. They now have no quotas.

Officials say preliminary reports indicate the situation was relatively unchanged during June, and two informal "spot checks" made in the First and Second Army areas showed a slight decrease in applicants since the trouble started in Korea. The long July 4th weekend might have contributed to this, it was said.

The Navy obtained only 4826 of its 7000 quota of new recruits in May, but went over the top in June. Marine Corps officials say the number of volunteers has been running about 70 percent of quotas.

The Army is now about 30,000 men under strength, with the Air Force and Navy each a few thousand under what they are allowed. Marine Headquarters say they are close to allowed strength.

Commenting on the Korea fighting yesterday, an Army spokesman said reports that an outpost of American ground forces had been "wiped out" were not true. He said the outpost did just what it was supposed to—force the enemy to slow down its advance and thus give our main body of forces time to form a defensive line. After that it withdrew, it was said, with "very moderate casualties considering the type of action it was."

Officials here understood the new American South Korean defensive position to be south of Pyongtaek, running east and west behind a river and backed by a ridge which affords good artillery observation posts.

Attacking Communist forces are pressing down from the north and driving west from near Wonju and Chungju in a tactical envelopement movement. Another enemy force is pressing west from Utchin on the east coast in what could be a potential strategic envelopment.

How much danger this last move is was not entirely clear. Rugged mountains lie in their path and little was known here as to how fast they can move. No American or South Korean troops were known to be opposing them, however.

From Honolulu, the Associated Press reported that nine lockheed P2V Neptunes, the Navy's newest sub killers, have left Barber's Point presumably for Korean waters. The Navy. admitted the planes had left but would not say when and where bound.

Pilots in Germany Ask Shift to Korea

Furstenfeldbrueck, Germany, July 6 (AP).—If Uncle Sam needs more fighter pilots in Korea, he can find plenty of volunteers in Germany.

Young American fliers are clamoring for a chance to test their new planes in combat. Lieut. Gen. John K. Cannon, commander of the United States Air Force in Europe, says he has numerous applications for transfer to the Korean front.

But no volunteers are being accepted from his strategic command. Air Force chiefs apparently think the same way as a few fliers who see Europe as the main show "if this fight gets big."

Capt. John L. Moutier, a wartime ace form Peoria, Ill., is one of those who takes the long view.

"Sure, we're always ready, willing and able," Moutier said. "But the major campaign will be here in Europe if this fight gets big. We're all set to operate right here if that happens. I see no point in throwing all this away to rush over to that Korean side show."

Capt. John H. Rogers of Shepherdstown, W. Va., and Lieut Col. Charles W. Boedeker of Dallas, Tex., voiced agreement.

But this big United States jet fighter base near Munich, home of the Thirty-sixth Fighter Group, furnishes plenty of pilots who would like to transfer where the fighting is.

"I'd certainly like to get a crack at that Korea show," said Capt. F. T. (Ted) Dunmire of Pittsburgh.

"Man, I'd sign up for Korea tomorrow," said Lieut. Charles D. (Buck) Pattillo of Atlanta, Ga.

Lieut. Oliver E. Generous of Willimantic, Conn., said "The boys in our squadron are all talking about it. They say 'Let's go'."

War Jitters Strike Germans

Frankfurt, Germany, July 6 (AP). Signs of war jitters are appearing in West Germany.

Many are fearful the Korean strife may spread to Europe where Germany would almost inevitably be a major battleground.

Doctors report many people have asked for poisons to be used for suicide in case West Germany is invaded by Russia. One doctor said he had received several such requests from people who said they would rather die than go through another invasion like that of 1945.

Other Germans are reported trying to join the Communist Party as insurance in case the Communists take over West Germany.

There are signs also of food hoarding.

In Hersfeld, near the Russian zone border, some Germans started packing their bags when they heard the Americans' Fourth of July fireworks. They thought fighting had started.

A few Germans have asked to fight with American forces in Korea.

One on the Aisle—

The Capitol Stage Is Truly Big Time

By Richard L. Coe

THE CAPITOL is shooting a heavy wad on its stage show this week.

The Three Suns, the juke box joys, get top billing, with Jerry Colonna as the "special added attraction" and Andy and Della Russell as the "extra added attraction." Pryde and Day decidedly have their moments as a juggling turn, even though their billing may make them feel like the seals of yore. (By the way, what's happened to seals; haven't seen one since Sharkey and where is he, old seals' home?)

The picture's called "Spy Hunt" and it tells you how Howard Duff and Marta Toren helped the United Nations in sneaking microfilm out of Europe by hiding it in the collar of a panther. The panther gets away, and, if you stick around for a while, you'll read more about him.

But to get back to the stage show, which is well worth your while, let's follow it through. Sam Jack Kaufman and his band are on stage this week, looking mighty nifty (the girl in back of me in the third row wants to meet that dark-haired, good-looking violinist, by the way). They take note of Indiana and the Sesqui with appropriate chunes.

Jerry Colonna comes out for a terrific welcome from the crowded first house. Jerry gives with his "Ahaaaaaaaaaa," rolls his eyes and introduces "Pride and Joy," who turn out to be Pryde and Day. Juggling, unicycling and kidding they do well by, but let's forget Stan Kavanaugh's medal trick or else give the absent whiz a hand.

Andy Russell (yes, he sings "Amor") comes on for a few numbers of his own and then is joined by his wife, Della, a blonde babe with a very nice style. This singing couple is mighty engaging, their choice of songs is pleasant and the house quickly catches on to their infectious pleasure in each other, their songs and patter. You expect Andy to be good, but it's a double pleasure to find Della's more than able to hold her own.

Colonna's vocal and ocular tricks may be minor talents, but he squeezes them like a genius. He switches to an Italian monologue about an organ grinder's monkey, then slaps across his ear-splitting version of "The Road to Mandalay" as Oley Speaks didn't write it.

The Three Suns close the bill with a smash. These boys are a lot more than an accordion, electric organ and guitar; their rhythmic style is solid and they've a showmanly variety for their tunes. They've got a neat twist about Blair House home life and a listenable "Third Man" theme. If your nickels have been going down the juke boxes lately, here's your chance to watch them working.

All told, a confident stage bill, well above par.

HOPALONG CASSIDY, whom the magazines have been taking over as thoroughly as the kids, will be starting lines come Monday when the box office for the Cole Brothers Circus opens at Bond's clothing store, 1335 F st. . . . The circus and Happy open Thursday afternoon, with performances afternoons and nights through Sunday matinee; no night show on closing day, the 16th.

"SPY HUNT" takes us back to the Alpine territory where Keith's "The White Tower" holds forth. No mountain-climbing in this, though, unless you consider following a couple of beagles around in the moonlight chasing panthers the same thing. American Howard Duff, open-faced and innocent, gets swept in with a band of agents of some unidentified European country and Marta Toren, who's a British intelligence officer. No one acts, really; they lurk. The sinister crew includes Philip Friend, Philip Dorn, Robert Douglas and Kurt Kreuger. But, as usual, the innocent abroad wins hands down. It's not bad, but it's not "The Lady Vanishes" or "The Third Man," either.

E. M. LOEW'S Open-Air Drive-in on the Richmond hwy. goes stagewise tonight, presenting the Saddle Serenaders at 8:30 . . . The Pix has quietly folded its tent for the summer . . . "Gigi" starts its third week today at the Plaza.

THE LITTLE is launched on its series of double-billed summer revivals, with a new program going in today: "The Phantom of the Opera" and "Moonlight Sonata," as queer a double bill as you're likely to imagine. Next one: "The Wizard of Oz" and "The Unfinished Dance" . . . August will bring an opera festival, and three changes a week are likely.

"SPY HUNT," Universal-International release produced by Ralph Dietrich. Screen play by George Zuckerman and Leonard Lee from "Panther's Moon" by Victor Canning. Photographed by Irving Glassberg. Music by Joseph Gershenson. Directed by George Sherman. At the Capitol.

New Draftee Aids Proposed

Representative Dwight L. Rogers, (D., Fla.), proposed yesterday that the Government pay for the rent, home mortgages and insurance premiums of men inducted into the Armed Services.

He said he will introduce a bill to carry out the proposal if President Truman orders inductions under the new Draft Act.

Under his plan, draftees would repay the Government, without interest, sometime after their tour of duty. Rogers said the only cost to the Government would be the interest it "puts up to meet the obligations of the men in service."

"I think that something must be done, if the draft is used again, to protect the families of inducted men from lapsed insurance and loss of homes," he said.

The Veterans Administration said meantime that United States servicemen fighting in South Korea will be entitled to all veterans' benefits except the GI Bill of Rights, even though there has been no declaration of war. They will be paid the full wartime rate for partial or complete disability. Their families also will be entitled to full compensation.

The VA also told President Truman that there are 19,014,000 American veterans still alive, 14 million from World War II.

Reporters were given the following figures on surviving vets: Grand Army of the Republic, 15; Indian wars, 580; Spanish-American War, 119,000.

British Ask Reds To Secret Air Show

London, July 6 (U.P.).—Soviet Ambassador Georgi Zarubin and his air attache have been invited to watch top-secret British jet planes in action Friday and Saturday despite objections of aircraft manufacturers, the Air Ministry said today.

An Air Ministry spokesman said he did not think any vital information would leak to the Russians. Planes on the secret list will be seen in flight only, he said, and will not be displayed on the ground. Secret equipment will be removed from other aircraft on exhibit.

Hole 20 Feet Square Found Under Pavement

The depression discovered Monday in the pavement of 23d st. nw., between P and Q sts., was caused by settlement of fill dirt covering a sewer main, District officials said yesterday.

Y. J. Wright, sewer division engineer, said removal of the pavement revealed an area of empty space about 20 feet square and one foot deep. Highway officials said the job of filling and repaving should be completed and the block opened to traffic by the first of next week.

Belgian Deputies Riot Over Leopold

Brussels, Belgium, July 6 (U.P.).—Socialist jeers and boos today temporarily broke up a special joint session of Parliament called to pave the way for the return of exiled King Leopold to the throne.

The session finally began three and a half hours behind schedule—in a tense atmosphere. State police and soldiers bearing tommyguns guarded entrances to the building.

The deputies first assembled shortly after 2 p. m. (9 a. m. EDT). No sooner had House President Frans van Cauewaert called the Chamber to order than the Socialist members, bitterly opposed to Leopold's return set up a din.

It was tantamount to a filibuster. The noise continued for half an hour, when Van Cauewaert suddenly suspended the proceedings and Catholic leaders held a strategy conference.

At 4 p. m. (11 a. m. EDT) the Chamber was called back into session. The Socialists burst into another round of booing and catcalls.

This outburst lasted 15 minutes. The Socialists complained that the Chamber lacked sufficient translating equipment. Finally Socialist leaders and former Premier Paul-Henri Spaak ended the noise by requesting that "measures be taken to insure every desk has an earphone by next Tuesday."

Earlier in the day, scattered one-hour strikes flared in southern Belgium in protest against Leopold.

Reports from Walloonia said miners left their jobs for an hour, and Socialist labor union officials in Brussels estimated that a total of several thousand were on strike with more to follow later.

Over 'Plot'

Churchill In New Blast At Strachey

London, July 6 (NYHT).—Winston Churchill led the Conservative Party today in a new attack on War Secretary John Strachey, obviously aimed at ousting him from the Labor Government.

A series of prolonged exchanges between Churchill and Prime Minister Attlee over Strachey's use of the word "plot" during a speech on the Schuman Plan kept the Commons in an uproar. Churchill indicated he might ask for a full-dress House debate with a subsequent vote of confidence on Strachey's remark.

Attlee adamantly defended his war secretary, saying that Strachey had referred to a Conservative plot" to foist new "internationalization schemes on Britain rather than to the Schuman Plan. The Labor Government has gone on record as welcoming France's "initiative" in the coal and steel merger scheme.

However, Churchill, still probing for an issue on which to unseat the government, produced a text of Strachey's speech, delivered last weekend.

He quoted Strachey as follows:

"We shall get more and more of these schemes, no doubt, which, in the guise of internationalism, are designed to prevent the people really controlling the economic system. Labor has only to expose this plot in order to defeat it."

Churchill contended Strachey could only have referred to the Schuman plan, since it was the only internationalization scheme before the House and the country at the time. His implication was that Strachey had cut across government policy and thereby worsened Britain's relations with France.

U. S., Canada In ECA Talks

For the first time, American and Canadian experts formally participated yesterday as advisers and observers in a meeting of the Marshall Plan nations' central council.

The meeting, in Paris, included Cabinet ministers of the most important Western European nations assembled as the Executive Committee of the Organization for European Economic Cooperation.

Although yesterday's meeting had a limited agenda—details of the European Payments Union and plans for further freeing of European trade—the purpose of American and Canadian participation is to work out economic plans and programs for the period after the Marshall Plan ends.

The OEEC invited the two principal dollar nations to join in these discussions believing that European proposals for measures to close the dollar gap after 1952 should be keyed in with American plans, now being worked out by a special study group here. It is headed by Gordon Gray, former Secretary of the Army.

U. S. Fumigates 'Potato Bugs'

nated in Soviet-controlled Germany some weeks ago. Russia got into the act last week with a formal note delivered to the United States Embassy in Moscow. It said the "criminal nature" of the American bug attack required the United States bring the guilty fliers "to book." It demanded to know what measures this country would take to prevent a repetition.

"It is interesting to note," the State Department observed, "that the Soviet propagandists have borrowed this whole invention from the Nazis who, during the the war, used to level the same fantastic charges against Allied airplanes."

In scathing terms, it placed the blame where it said it belongs: to the ineptness of the "eastern German puppet government" and bungling by Soviet-German authorities who apparently didn't know how to eradicate the pests.

Reds Say U. S. Used Aid To Send in Plant Diseases

Moscow, July 6 (AP).—The Literary Gazette today declared United States authorities attempted to infect the Soviet Union with harmful Western insects, weeds and plant diseases through supplies shipped to this nation in World War II. Soviet alertness, it said, blocked the plot.

The charge was played up in a three-column article headed "Six-Legged Ambassador of Wall Street." Food and seeds sent as UNRRA and Lend-Lease aid were declared to have been infected artificially to sabotage Russian crops.

The Gazette said only constant vigilance by Soviet biologists, agronomists, plant disease experts and insect specialists had prevented virulent North American plant destroyers from getting a foothold on Russian soil.

"In 1943 alone," the article said, "Americans tried to send here 117 breeds of weeds which are absent from the U. S. S. R., but rage on fields in the United States, and 96 breeds considered quarantinable, harmful and poisonous for human beings and animals."

The writer said he was in Murmansk in 1942-43 when seed shipments from the U. S. arrived for Soviet farmers. He said an alert plant expert discovered "rice fire," which is described as a dangerous plant destroyer, in six shipments.

Katz Sworn in as Head Of ECA in Europe

Paris, July 6 (NYHT).—Ambassador Milton Katz was sworn in today as head of Marshall Plan operations in Europe, succeeding W. Averell Harriman, now special assistant to President Truman.

The ceremony, at the Paris headquarters of the Economic Cooperation Administration, was timed to fall between sessions of the ministerial council of the organization for European Economic Cooperation, which Katz attended today for the first time as representative of the United States rather than a spokesman for the ECA. He had served formerly as deputy to Harriman.

Katz made it clear the change in leadership will not mean any change in ECA policy.

The new Ambassador is to leave for the United States today with his family aboard the Ile de France.

Bishop's Ousting Termed Alibi

Associated Press WIREPHOTO

BISHOP GERALD P. O'HARA, papal nuncio in Bucharest, whose expulsion from Romania on spy charges was termed by the Vatican newspaper, Osservatore Romano, as "an alibi in order to arrive at measures of rigor and provoke this—at least in fact—the rupture of diplomatic relations between Romania and the Holy See." Espionage charges against the Bishop and two aides were described as "childish lies" by the newspaper yesterday. The Romanian government said that the prelate would have to leave the country today

Socialist Chief Seeks French Political Truce

Paris, July 6—(U.P.).—Socialist Chief Guy Mollet, whose party has overthrown two French governments in less than two weeks, called tonight for a seven-point "gentleman's agreement" among bickering middle-of-the-road parties to end France's 12-day-old political crisis.

Mollet, called in yesterday by President Vincent Auriol in a peace-maker's role, worked all today to effect a political truce despite a first-round rebuff from the conservative Radical Socialist party.

He had scheduled a round-table conference of all middle-of-the-road parties for this afternoon, but it was postponed when the radicals refused to attend because no premier has yet been designated. Mollet refused to accept the nomination.

But, under pressure from Auriol, Mollet decided to go ahead in private talks with leaders of individual parties.

He was trying for a "gentleman's agreement" on the seven main issues dividing the middle parties—pension boosts for war veterans, civil service wage increases, economic stability, farm problems, reconstruction, the Indo-China war and international questions, notably the Schuman Plan.

If the three big middle-of-the-road parties—the Socialists, Radical Socialists and the Catholic Popular Republicans (MRP)could reach a working agreement on these matters, Mollet promised the Socialists would join the other two in a new coalition government.

This was a big concession, since Mollet himself was largely responsible for the Socialists' refusal to join the last two governments of Georges Bidault

Russia Pays Interest Due U. S., But Again Deducts for Damage

Russia has sent the United States an interest payment of $5,117,427 on postwar Lend-Lease after arbitrarily deducting about 1 million dollars for alleged "damages," the State Department said yesterday.

The payment did not involve Russia's still-unsettled $11,298,000,000 wartime Lend-Lease bill for U. S. tanks, trucks, guns and other equipment that helped the Soviets repulse the Nazis and eventually counterattack.

It involved material sent to Russia from the end of the shooting until December 31, 1946, when Lend-Lease shipments were halted at the insistence of Congress. The Kremlin agreed on October 15, 1945, to pay 220 million dollars for the goods in 22 equal installments.

While the payments themselves do not start until July 1, 1954, Russia agreed to make annual interest payments of 2 3/8 percent starting July 1, 1947. The interest payments have been made, but each time deductions have been made for "damages."

Rubber Industry Asks Truman to Reopen Synthetic Plants to Meet War Demand

The rubber industry yesterday asked the White House to reopen immediately some laid-up wartime synthetic rubber plants. It also asked steps to protect natural rubber supplies from "the spreading threat of Communism" in the Far East.

Nine tire and rubber company executives laid the requests before Presidential Assistant John R. Steelman.

Steelman told them he would pass their proposals on to V. Stuart Symington, chairman of the National Security Resources Board.

The Government, it was known, already has been studying the possibility of reopening some synthetic plants.

The industry men proposed:

1. Immediate opening of "copolymer" plants—the final mixing plants—and the providing of necessary ingredients to increase the output of the standard GR-S synthetic to 40,000 long tons a month.

2. That the Government "in the interest of military security and economic stability" be prepared to provide 50,000 tons a month by next January 1.

3. That the Reconstruction Finance Corporation be authorized to build up and maintain a "substantial" inventory of the general-purpose synthetic.

4. That all available standby capacity of butyl synthetic, a special-purpose type of rubber, be brought into production at once.

The industry group, after the meeting, issued a statement expressing confidence that the Government would take "favorable action based on these recommendations.

Motorists Warned On Tire Hoarding

By The Associated Press

Motorists who succumb to war hysteria and rush out and buy tires they don't need are just wasting their money, rubber experts said yesterday.

A spokesman for the Rubber Manufacturers Association said tire production is booming, dealers have plenty on hand, and most cars on the road have good rubber.

He acknowledged there has been some "fear buying" because of the Korean crisis but said "there is no foundation for any run."

Truman Again Indorses Pike

Johnson, he said, voted with the Republicans much oftener than with the Democrats, though he poses as a Democrat. And, the President concluded ruefully, he is chairman of an important Senate commitee—Interstate and Foreign Commerce.

The Chief Executive's feeling toward Johnson has been particularly cool since last November, when the Coloradan, a member of the Congressional Atomic Energy Committee and hence in a position to know, gave the first public tip-off of the fact that the Administration was considering trying to make the H-bomb.

Warns Leaders on "Leaks"

To underline his anger publicly, Mr. Truman summoned committee chairman McMahon (D., Conn.) and Attorney General McGrath to the White House to warn about "leaks" by Congressional personalities privy to secret military information.

A reporter asked the President yesterday whether he had heard that the Congressional plan was to knock off two nominations, Pike's and Hutchinson's, in one deal.

Mr. Truman said he was not in on the inside workings of any arrangement that may have been made.

Hutchinson, a Richmond, Va., lawyer, is opposed by both Virginia Senators. His nomination has been rejected, 5 to 3, by Johnson's committee. No date has been fixed for a Senate vote on his confirmation.

Flying Ambulance Lost in Alaska, Crew of 7 Missing

Anchorage, Alaska, July 6 (AP).—Alaska's air command listed all the seven crew members of a crashed B-17 "flying ambulance" as missing today.

The B-17 was found wrecked in an Adak Island bay yesterday. It had been missing overnight. The air command said today no bodies had been recovered, but a search for possible survivors was continuing.

Bad weather hindered communications with Adak.

The Tenth Rescue Squadron plane took off for Shemya, at the tip of the Aleutian Island chain, Tuesday night to pick up sick personnel for return to the base hospital here.

Radio contact with the bomber was lost soon after the takeoff in poor visibility.

Recreation Dept. Offers Post-Diaper Swimming Classes

Anyone out of diapers can get swimming lessons this summer in the "learn-to-swim" program of the Recreation Department.

The department announced yesterday that this summer, for the first time, children as young as two or three will be given instruction in swimming in community wading pools.

Parents can register their children at 14 wading and swimming pools. Adults can register for classes by calling the American Red Cross Water Safety Division, Hobart 6800.

U. S. to Support Grain Prices Again

The Government will support prices of oats, barley, rye and grain sorghums this year although it is not required to do so by law, Secretary of Agriculture Charles F. Brannan announced yesterday.

Oats will be supported at a national average price of 71 cents a bushel, compared with 69 cents last year; rye at $1.28, compared with $1.27; barley at $1.10, compared with $1.09; and grain sorghums at $1.87 per hundred pounds, compared with $2.09.

Jury Indicts Ex-GI on Atom Charge

Santa Fe, N. Mex., July 6 (AP).—A Federal grand jury today indicted David Greenglass, 28, on a charge of conspiring to give atomic secrets to Russia.

In a two-page true bill, the jurors charged the former Las Alamos technician and former Army sergeant with four specific overt acts. It declared that:

On June 3, 1945, Greenglass met in Albuquerque with Harry Gold.

On that same date, Greenglass received $500 from Gold.

Greenglass made a sketch of a high explosive lens mold.

He prepared for Gold a statement of the Los Alamos atomic project.

United States Judge Carl A. Hatch of Albuquerque set bail at $100,000—the same amount set for the former Army technician after he was arrested June 15 in New York.

Greenglass is being held in a New York jail in default of bond.

Judge Hatch also ordered Greenglass brought into the jurisdiction of the New Mexico Federal Court district.

Gold has been accused of being an intermediary between the Soviet spy ring and Dr. Klaus Fuchs, imprisoned British scientist who confessed getting atomic secrets for the Russians.

The Brooklyn-born Greenglass served at Los Alamos in 1946. He was arrested in New York June 16.

Mrs. Byrd Improved

Winchester, Va., July 6 (AP).—Mrs. Harry F. Byrd, sr., admitted to Winchester Memorial Hospital Sunday, was reported improved today. A member of the family said her condition was not serious.

The Gallup Poll

Handling of Amerasia Case Stirs Criticism of Many People

By George Gallup

Director, American Institute of Public Opinion

Princeton, N. J., July 6—Two surveys of public opinion relating to charges of Communist influence in Washington had just been completed by the American Institute of Public Opinion when the cold war turned into a fighting war in Korea.

These surveys dealt with the famous Amerasia case and with Senator Joseph McCarthy's charges of communism in the State Department. They revealed the following attitudes:

1—Although comparatively few voters have followed the Amerasia affair, the Government's handling of the case meets with considerable criticism among persons familiar enough with it to have an opinion about it.

2—Voters who have heard of the McCarthy charges continue to feel that there is some substance in the Senator's accusations. The survey indicates that, after several months' discussion, the public is not ready to dismiss the charges as unfounded.

However, there is a considerable split of opinion along party lines, with Republicans putting far more credence in the McCarthy charges than either Democrats or Independent voters.

One of the interesting highlights of today's survey is that, despite the enormous publicity given the charges, approximately one voter in every five in the survey said he had not heard or read about them.

Here is the way the survey came out:

"Have you heard or read about Senator McCarthy's charges that there are Communists in the State Department in Washington, D. C.?"

Have heard or read	78%
Have not	22

Those who answered in the affirmative were asked:

"What is your opinion of these charges?"

The vote:

Approve or believe charges	31%
Qualified approval	10
Disapprove or disbelieve	20
On the fence*	6
No opinion	11
	78%
Have not heard of charges	22
	100%

Excise Tax Slash Of $2.4 Billion Urged

A $2,400,000,000 slash in excise levies on furs, jewelry, cosmetics, movie tickets and scores of other items—more than twice the $1,010,000,000 cut approved by the House—was urged upon Congress yesterday by spokesmen for taxed industries.

They told the Senate Finance Committee the larger cuts could be made with perhaps no revenue loss at all for the Treasury.

The present excise rates, they testified, are causing a buyers' strike on some taxed items, with resultant unemployment in the affected industries. They argued that if they are repealed, business would pick up and increased revenue from income taxes would offset most if not all the excise loss.

Leon Henderson, wartime OPA chief, presented the case for the 27 excise-taxed industries, organized as the National Committee for Repeal of Wartime Excise Taxes. He was joined by Arde Bulova, of Bulova Watch Co.; Louis Ruthenburg, of Servel, Inc., Evansville, Ind.; and Charles Nichols, president of G. M. McKelvey Co., Youngstown, Ohio.

The group made virtually the same arguments to the House Ways and Means Committee earlier in the year. But the bill passed by the House does not go half so far as the group proposed.

There is little, if any indication at this time that the Senate will increase the overall $1,010,000,000 excise cutting figure in the House bill.

The Senate may reduce the size of the cut, and thereby remove the need for using big corporation tax increases to balance the revenue lost by excise cuts.

The business spokesmen called for repeal of all wartime excises enacted in 1941, 1942 and 1943, except those on tobacco, alcoholic beverages and gasoline.

W. P. Marshall, president of Western Union Telegraph Co., urged the committee to approve complete repeal of the 25 percent excise on telegrams, "to halt and rverse the trend of constantly declining telegraph volume which has created a crisis in the industry and destroyed the jobs of more than 23,000 telegraph workers." The House bill cuts the telegram tax from 25 per cent to 10 percent.

Spokesmen for the telephone and railroad industries urged sharper slashes in the taxes affecting them than were approved by the House.

Russell's Idea

South Sees No Hope for Party Merger

Atlanta, July 6 (U.P.).—Dixie political leaders saw little hope today of merging Southern Democrats and conservative Republicans into a new party although many echoed Georgia Senator Richard B. Russell's cry for a strong GOP in the South.

Leaders of all political faiths in the South — Republican, Democratic and States' Rights—were reluctant to indorse a lumping together of conservatives in this country into a new party.

Russell said earlier this week that he believes "conservative" elements of both major political parties eventually "will get together in this Nation." And the Georgian said he would like to see "a strong Republican Party in the South."

Georgia's liberal former Governer, Ellis Arnall, termed such a merger "impractical."

"There won't be a getting together of conservatives unless they abandon the name of the Republican Party," Arnall said. "I believe the Southern people will always vote the Democratic ticket."

He accused the States' Righters of "stealing' 'the Democratic label in the South. He said the only way they were able to carry four States in the 1948 presidential election was by using the Democratic trademark.

Southern Republicans themselves doubted that a merger of the type predicted by Russell would take place.

E. L. Gavin, GOP nominee for the Senate from North Carolina, said he didn't know "how far Senator Russell would want to go."

"But if he means joining the forces who advocate balancing the budget and ending this wild spending—these groups must join together," Gavin said.

1900 to Depart For 2-Week Guard Tour

Some 1900 District National Guardsmen leave on two-week training exercises this weekend.

The 400 men of the 171st Military Police Battalion and the 715th Transportation Co., attached to the MP group, will leave from the Armory Saturday morning for the Indiantown Gap Military Reservation near Harrisburg, Pa.

On Sunday, 1500 men and officers will go into training at Fort Miles, Del., and Bethany Beach, Del.

The personnel will include the Headquarters Detachment of the District National Guard, the 163d MP Battalion, the 257th Army Band, the 104th Ordnance Medium Maintence Company, and the 260th AAA Group.

The 260th AAA Group is composed of the 340th and 380th Automatic Weapons Battalions, the 370th Signal Radar Maintenance Unit, and the 260th AAA Gun Battalion.

The Department of Defense has announced that 340,000 Guardsmen over the country will participate in training exercises this summer.

Murder Charge Cut To Manslaughter

A murder charge against Nicholas J. Lutzio, 42, Bladensburg truck driver, was reduced to manslaughter in Hyattsville Police Court yesterday and hearing of the charge continued to July 20.

Lutzio, who was charged in the death of Douglas A. O'Malley, 30, from stab wounds in the chest July 3, was released under $1000 bond.

O'Malley was reportedly stabbed at the home of Mrs. Margaret Goddard, 4401 Baltimore ave., Bladensburg, after Lutzio had been called by the woman from his home at 4317 Baltimore ave. to quiet O'Malley, who she said was acting in a disorderly manner.

Senate Group Votes 8 Billion Spending Bill

By the United Press

A Senate Appropriations subcommittee yesterday approved an $8,017,871,977 Federal spending bill including $957,970,000 for the Atomic Energy Commission.

The bill, which now goes to the full committee, provides funds to operate such independent agencies as the Veterans' Administration, Reconstruction Corporation and the atomic program during the fiscal year which began July 1. 1.

While the total was cut $3,955,030 below the figure approved by the House, the subcommittee made no change in the amount earmarked for the Atomic Commission for its research and atomic weapons programs.

The commission was given $647,820,000 in cash and authority to write up to $300,150,000 in new contracts.

This was $61,980,000 less than President Truman requested in his budget. But Chairman Joseph C. O'Mahoney (D., Wyo.), noted that it has been announced the commission will ask Congress soon for an extra 300 million dollars for the H-bomb.

The measure also carries 605 million dollars in cash and contract authority for the purchase of strategic materials for the Nation's emergency stockpiles — a matter given increased urgency by the Korean conflict and its threat to world peace.

This was 10 million dollars less than the budget request and three million dollars less than the House voted. But it was far above last year's spending figure.

The measure is the second largest money bill which will come before Congress. It is topped only by the 29-billion-dollar "single-package" appropriations bill which provides funds for regular Government departments, including the military services.

Opera Star 'Sings' Blues

Associated Press WIREPHOTO

FLORENCE QUARTARARO, soprano who sang with the Metropolitan Opera from 1946 until this year, says she's broke. She has filed a petition in bankruptcy in San Francisco. The singer listed assest of $900 —mostly clothing—and $8404 debts. Biggest debt listed was $5850 to an agent, Tony Gaudio. He had been awarded $9250 as a result of a 1947 law suit in which he charged Miss Quartararo had welshed on an agreement to pay him 10 percent of her income when it reached $15,000. She's only paid him $3400

Senate Subcommittee Restores $42,000 in Art Gallery Budget

The Senate Independent Office Appropriations Subcommittee has agreed to restore a $42,000 House cut in the National Gallery of Art budget for the current fiscal year, its chairman, Senator Joseph C. O'Mahoney (D., Wyo.), announced last night.

The increase, one of several granted to local agencies and institutions, was disclosed with release of hearings on the multi-million-dollar Independent Offices supply bill.

David E. Finley, gallery director, had pleaded for the additional fund, explaining it was needed to hire guards and laborers to open and maintain 12 new rooms.

The subcommittee-approved total would give the gallery a $1,200,000 budget for the year that started last Saturday.

In other actions the subcommittee:

1. Allowed the Commission on Renovation of the White House $50,000 for administrative expenses, plus authority to use an additional $30,000 left over from last year. The commission had requested $100,000. The House knocked the amount to $20,000.

2. Refused to increase the House-passed $724,500 to the National Capital Park and Planning Commission for personnel and land purchase.

Under the Taber-Thomas amendment, the House had limited the commission to filling only 10 percent of the vacancies that will occur during the fiscal year. NCPPC officials pointed out that this provision might work a hardship on the commission since it has only five regular employes.

"One of these is a land-purchasing officer," A. E. Demaray, NCPPC vice chairman, said: "If this provision should become vacant, it would be illegal to fill it . . . This would leave the commission with a land purchase appropriation of $724,500 and no land-purchasing officer to expend it."

3. Granted the National Capital Housing Authority a $4600 boost, bringing its budget for maintenance of public housing units to $39,600 for the year.

Cross-Quizzing In Dam Hearing May Take 30 Days

Gregory Hankin, Interior Department counsel, said last night his cross-examination of Virginia Electric and Power Company witnesses at a Power Commission hearing concerning a proposed Roanoke Rapids, N. C., hydroelectric project may take 30 days.

This hearing, which started a year ago was reopened last month at the request of Secretary of the Interior Chapman and the Virginia REA Association.

They contend the Federal Government should build the power project.

Hankin complained yesterday that Vepco and commission lawyers impeded his cross-examination of Miles Cary, Vepco engineer, by interfering with questions and objections to his line of examination. They, in turn, said his questions were repetitious and designed to hold up a decision by the full commission on the building of the multi-million dollar dam to furnish power to North Carolina and Virginia.

Scientific Team Ready for Atomic Service in Mass.

Boston, Mass., July 6 (U.P.).—A team of atomic scientists living in Massachusetts "is now equipped and trained for emergency service" in event of an atomic bomb attack here, Gov. Paul A. Dever announced today.

"In the event of release of atomic energy radiation in Massachusetts by accident or otherwise, emergency monitoring service is now available," the Governor said in a statement.

Heading the team is Dean John W. M. Bunker of Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

Members are Karl T. Compton, former president of MIT; Dr. Shields Warren, head of the biological hazards section of the Atomic Energy Commission; Harvard University physicist, Kenneth Bainbridge, who was active in producing the first atomic bomb; Prof. Robley D. Evans of MIT, an internationally known authority on biological effects of radiation, and Jerrold R. Zacharias, professor of nuclear physics at MIT.

Dr. Bunker said in an accompanying statement that the chief hazard to survivors of an atomic bomb attack is panic.

Hurricane Hits France

Beauvais, France, July 6 (U.P.).—A hurricane that swept this region last night caused over 8 million dollars damage to wheat fields and villages, authorities said today.

Senate Vetoes RFC Transfer to Commerce and gambling casino, which have aroused senatorial ire.

During the debate on the Fulbright resolution Senator Paul Douglas (D., Ill.) declared that what RFC needs "is not so much a transfer as a thorough housecleaning."

Stating that this was the first presidential reorganization proposal he was opposing, Douglas said he was afraid people might think the RFC ills were cured if it were transferred to Commerce and he added, "the disease is far more thorough going than that."

Only one Senator, Administration Whip Francis J. Myers (D., Pa.), took the floor to defend the RFC plan. He said its defeat would be "a substantial blow at small business."

Meanwhile, the Senate Executive Expenditures Committee held an all-day hearing on Plan 27 to create the separate Health, Education and Security Department.

Senator Robert A. Taft (R., Ohio), who led the successful fight to defeat a similar plan last year, and is one of the authors this year of a resolution of disapproval, declared the President's plan is out of line with the recommendations of the Hoover Commission.

He asserted that a Commissioner of Education and a Surgeon General had resigned largely because the FSA is "dominated by welfare people" who tried to interfere and "boss" activities in health and education.

U. S. Newsmen Return From S. A. Air Tour

Thirty-two U. S. editors, publishers, and radio executives yesterday returned from an eight-day plane trip to four major South American cities.

The trip was made aboard the Pan American clipper Friendship, christened by Senora Eva de Peron, wife of the Argentine president, when the party stopped in Buenos Aires. Other stops were at Port au Spain, Trinidad, Rio de Janeiro, Brazil, and Montevideo, Uruguay.

Among those from Washington who made the Latin American visit were Philip L. Graham, publisher of The Washington Post; Ben McKelway, editor of The Washington Evening Star; Assistant Secretary of State for Economic Affairs Willard L. Thorp; Senator Edwin C. Johnson (D., Colo.) and Representative Carl Hinshaw (R., Calif.).

Arab World Backs Neutrality Stand Of Egypt on Korea

Cairo, Egypt, July 6 (AP).—The Arab world is rallying behind Egypt's "absolute neutrality" policy toward Korea, to the disappointment of the United States and Britain.

Abdel Rahman Azzam Pasha, secretary-general of the Arab League, told newsmen today:

"I can assure you the Arab nations agree with Egypt on its attitude toward Korea."

Egypt, a member of the United Nations Security Council, did not vote when the rest of the council endorsed American military aid to the South Koreans. The Egyptian delegate subsequently complained that U. N. had not acted as needed in the past to stop aggression.

Syria, Lebanon, Iraq, Saudi Arabia, and Yemen, also members of the Arab League, indicated they will follow Egypt's lead. Only Hashemite Jordan, not a U. N. member, appeared likely to support western action in Korea.

Walkout of Divers Slows Span Project

Annapolis, Md., July 6 (AP).—A group of bridge builders walked out today in a dispute whether divers should get extra pay for time in the decompression chamber.

The walkout slowed work on Maryland's 43 million dollar Chesapeake Bay bridge.

Five divers asked to be paid for "tank time." This is the half hour or hour they spend in a huge iron tank under gradually decreasing pressure to ward off "the bends."

Christopher Davenport, union spokesman, said 150 to 200 carpenters, piledrivers and dockbuilders walked out with the five divers. Roderick Hand, project engineer for Merritt Chapman and Scott, put the total at about 60.

A company source said the divers now get straight time for decompression at the rate of $38.25 a day and they demanded double time. This would boost their daily pay about $4.

Davenport said he understood the company had "refused to pay tank time" at all and the divers had to sit in the pressure room on their own time.

A company source said a lot of tank time was the result of the divers blowing themselves to the surface too quickly. If they came up from the bay bottom gradually they wouldn't have to ease off in the decompression chamber, he said.

Davenport, president of Local 1126, Carpenters District Council of Washington (AFL), said he thought the walkout would end by Monday.

$23,000 at Stake

Phone Unions In Law Suit Over Funds

Baltimore, July 6 (AP).—The CIO's Communciations Workers of America and a unit of Maryland telephone workers who seceded made pleas in circuit court today for $23,000 in union assets.

Each side charged the other with trying to grab the funds.

The Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Workers, formerly division 38 of the CIO union, fell out with the national organization during the labor trouble in the industry several weeks ago.

The CWA got an injunction tying up about $18,000 in union dues collected from the Maryland employes of the Bell System affiliate, Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Co. of Baltimore. Another $5000 in union dues has been impounded by the company pendnig the outcome of the court case.

Today's argument was on a motion to dissolve the injunction.

Attorneys for the CWA said the Maryland workers officially joined the CIO's Nation-wide telephone union in June 1949 and the parent union is entitled to the money collected.

Attorneys for the new unit produced 2300 forms showing resignations from the CWA. They said a recent vote among the workers showed 94 percent in favor of withdrawing from the CIO.

At the time they criticized CWA for advocating the jamming of switchboards and "sabotage" during the labor dispute.

Judge Herman M. Moser said he would announce his decision in about ten days.

Rail Strike Called Off

hour week at an 18 cents hourly pay boost—about half what the union wanted.

President Truman called the strike unjustified. The patriotic thing to do, he said, was for the men to go back to work. But he would not say what he would do if his suggestion was ignored; for example, whether he would seek Government seizure of the struck roads.

Union Chief Explains

Explaining the union's move to continue its strike against the Rock Island but end it elsewhere, Glover said:

"In this way we will learn whether free men in a free country can still bargain with their employers over their living conditions without fear that big Government will team up with obstinate employers.

"There has been no true collective bargaining in the railroad industry for years. There has been no true collective bargaining in this dispute.

"Railroad management has made no move to settle this dispute. Railroad management merely has said, "Go on strike, we don't care; the Government will come in on our side and knock the hell out of the switchmen's union.'

"And, judging from President Truman's remarks today, railroad management has been on the right track.

"Our strike is legal. We have complied with all provisions of the Railway Labor Act.

Small Minority Blamed

"Now we'll just find out whether a legal strike against a railroad is possible in this free country."

Mr. Truman said the strike was brought about by a very small minority, and that it had tied up railroad facilities which are needed to move the wheat crop to market and cattle to pasture lands.

Mr. Truman meanwhile headed off another threatened rail strike for at least 60 days.

He created an emergency board to investigate a dispute between the Order of Railway Conductors and the Pullma nCo.

The conductors had threatened to strike July 11. They are demanding a general revision of their working agreement with the Pullman Co., which operates sleeping cars under contract with most of the railroads. The union's demands include a cut in number of hours worked monthly and elimination of pay reductions for rest periods during trips.

Color Movie on Mexico

"Down Mexico Way," a color movie by John Oliveras, Washington photographer, will be shown at the Sylvan Theater on the grounds of the Washington Monument Saturday night.

A recorded music program will begin at 8:15 p. m., and the movie will follow. In case of rain, the program will be held in the Commerce Department Auditorium. Admission is free.

Private Pilots Urged to Use Radios More

The Civil Aeronautics Administration wants private pilots to use their radios more even though they don't know the jargon or possibly good grammar.

The CAA points out that their radio communicators and traffic controllers understand plain English.

A snappy "Roger" (received orders) sounds fine, but an "Okay, bud, I gotcha" will do just as well.

"It's strange," said D. W. Rentzel, administrator of Civil Aeronautics, yesterday, "but we find many fliers afraid to use their radios for fear they might use the wrong words and be reprimanded by the CAA."

Nothing to that, said Rentzel. "Our communicators understand any kind of English. They'll answer any kind of English."

Rentzel wants private fliers to use their radios in the interests of safe flying.

Man Sentenced In Jobless Payment Case

A brick-laying contractor yesterday was sentenced to 180 days in jail after he pleaded guilty to four charges of failing to make proper payments under the D. C. Unemployment Compensation Act.

The heavy sentence was imposed on Clarence Brown, 57, of 424 8th st. sw., by Municipal Court Judge Ellen K. Raedy.

Judge Raedy was informed that during the last two quarters of 1947 and the first two quarters of 1948, Brown failed to make $460 in contributions for his employes.

Court officials said it was the first time in years that an employer has been given a straight time sentence for a violation of this nature.

NLRB Hears Rival Union Claims to Represent Printers

The National Labor Relations Board yesterday was presented with a unique problem involving two local rival unions which are seeking to represent some 250 commercial printing pressmen in collective bargaining.

The unions, Local 1 and Local 351, both affiliated with the AFL International Printing Pressmen's Union, have petitioned the NLRB for the right to represent the commercial pressmen in bargaining with the union shop division of the Washington Graphic Arts Association.

When the hearings opened yesterday before NLRB Attorney David C. Sachas, in the Departmental Auditorium, the international union urged that the NLRB refuse the petition of Local 1 because the parent union has given jurisdiction over the commercial pressmen to Local 351.

There has been at least one occasion when the NLRB has held a representation election between rival locals belonging to the same International Teamsters Union, but this is the first time that the parent union has been involved in such a situation.

The representation fight is but part of a two-year feud between Local 1 and the International. Local 1 led a court battle—opposed by the international union—in a move to obtain a share in the estate of the late George Berry, for 40 years president of the parent union. The local charged that Berry had used union funds in private enterprises.

A chancery court in Tennessee, where international headquarters is located, last week rejected the local's demand for an accounting of the estate. Last February, the District Court here enjoined the parent union from revoking the charter of Local 1, which for many years has represented around 1000 commercial and Government printing pressmen in contract negotiations.

Shortly after the international union set up Local 351 in April, Local 1 filed suit for an injunction to stop the splinter move. The case is yet to be determined.

Hearings will continue this morning in Conference Room C, Department Auditorium.

Widow Slays Son in Bed, Assaults Wife

Vernon, Conn., July 6 (U.P.).—The sight of her 4-year-old granddaughter "did something" to a 50-year-old widow that made her stop beating her daughter-in-law with the butts of two automatic pistols after she had killed her son today.

State police said Arthur Guzman, 29, was shot by his mother while he slept. His wife, Dorothy, who had been sleeping at his side, tried to defend herself against Mrs. Mary Guzman who began to gun-whip her.

The fight halted suddenly when the granddaughter appeared in the doorway. Police Maj. Leo Carroll said, "the sight of that child did something to the woman. There is no question but that she probably saved her mother's life."

Carroll said Mary Guzman ran out of the house, climbed to the second floor of a barn and fell or jumped. Her condition, and that of her daughter-in-law, was described as "satisfactory."

No motive for the slaying could be learned.

Mother Kills Baby Son, Tries to Take Own Life

Bay City, Mich., July 6 (AP).—An anguished mother who killed her baby son, left a vengeful suicide note for her husband and then tried to end her own life lingered near death today.

Physicians said Mrs. Katherine Bell, 33, was in critical condition with a bullet wound near the heart.

She made the attempt on her own life yesterday after blasting 11-month-old David Paul Bell to death with a shotgun, Coroner Raphael Stapish said.

Left behind was a note to her husband, George, 51. It said: "I can't forgive you for choking me last night."

scene. Victims were taken to hospitals in Peoria, 20 miles south, and to Galesburg, 30 miles west.

Thirty-eight were hospitalized, some in critical condition, and the others were given first aid at the scene.

Because of the early hour, rescue work was slow in starting. Some farmers came running with axes and chopped paths to those trapped in the debris.

Lock Adams, of the El Capitan dining car crew, said the impact threw him from his bunk.

"I grabbed my trousers and ran barefoot from the dormitory and climbed onto the top of the Chief's locomotive," he said. "I snatched a sledge hammer and beat my way into a telescoped car. I saw two men dead and two more badly injured inside.

"Bill Durn of the train crew, who had been asleep also in the dormitory, followed me into the car. We didn't bother with the dead, but began handing the injured out through the windows of the washroom."

Mark Friess, in charge of the El Capitan's mail coach, said: "We swerved and seemed to sail through the air to the left. We hit the locomotive and the first car of the Chief."

"It was terrible," said Karl Keller, station agent at Monica. "There was blood all over the place."

The Kansas City Chief was running over normally westbound track, under automatic train control. The signals which ordinarily appear on blocks at the side of the tracks appear on the engineer's instrument board. A dispatcher in the train terminal sets the train's course. Santa Fe officials in Chicago said this was a normal operating maneuver.

The dead were listed as W. E. Harkness, Long Beach, Calif.; Isadore Lipitz, Brooklyn, N. Y.; Mrs. Rose Lipitz, wife of Isadore; William H. Moor, sr., Los Angeles; V. S. Reynolds, Chicago; Doyle Brown, United States Marine Corps, address unknown.

Three unidentified women also were killed.

Photographer's Death Probed

Prince Georges County police yesterday were investigating the death of a man after he was reported to have fainted in a Silver Hill tavern on June 25.

The man, Louis J. Cain, 54, of 2724 Minnesota ave. ne., died Wednesday night in Casualty Hospital. Cause of death was listed as an intercranial fracture by Dr. A. Magruder MacDonald, District coroner.

County police learned yesterday that an argur [illegible] took place in the tavern, Strick [illegible] aurant, Branch ave. and Nay [illegible] l., just before Cain fell to the floor. They are attempting to learn the identity of others involved.

Cain was a photographer at the Naval Ordnance Laboratory where he had been employed since 1948. He is survived by his wife, Cecelia.

Arlington Woman Named Home Aide

Blacksburg, Va., July 6 (AP).—Three appointments to the field staff of its agricultural extension service were announced here by Virginia Tech.

Named home demonstration agent for Arlington County was Mrs. Irene F. Geiss of Arlington. She is a graduate of Mississippi State College and has had experience as a home management supervisor for the Federal Security Administration and as a teacher of home economics.

Samuel F. Sanger of Blackstone, a graduate of Bridgewater College who has also studied agricultural education at Tech, was appointed assistant Lunenburg County farm agent.

Miss Marian M. Crouch of Blacksburg, a 1950 Tech graduate, was named home demonstration agent trainee in Prince Edward County.

Nurse Found Hanged; Dead For 3 Days

The body of a woman identified as Mrs. Martha Greutman, 55, a registered nurse, of 1121 24th st. nw., was found by police hanging in her apartment yesterday at about 2 p. m. Mrs. Greutman had not been seen for three or four days.

Deputy District Coroner Christopher J. Murphy said he will not issue a death certificate until a chemical analysis of the body is made. He said Mrs. Greutman had been dead for about three days.

The body, clad in a print dress, was found hanging from a bathroom door hinge. A bathrobe cord was knotted about the neck. A small bucket, upsidedown, was found near the body.

Police were called to the scene when the janitor of the building, John Watts, was unable to get an answer at the apartment door.

They had to break the door to enter. They said they found diamond rings, $18 in cash, and a number of canceled checks in a neat pile on a desk. No note was found.

Police said they understood Mrs. Greutman had worked for the Veterans Administration at one time. They were trying last night to reach her relatives.

Detroit, July 6 (U.P.).—Kaiser-Frazer will lay off its 10,000 Willow Run production workers and close down at 7 a. m. Friday due to a transmission shortage caused by a supplier plant strike in Indiana.

K-F spokesman said the lay-off was "indefinite."

Four thousand workers at four Indiana plants of the Warner gear division of Borg-Warner Co. walked out last Friday in a dispute over wage increases.

Warner makes transmissions for K-F, as well as Nash, Studebaker and Willys-Overland.

Grand Jury Sworn; To Sit Two Months

A new District grand jury of 12 men and 11 women was sworn in yesterday afternoon by District Court Judge David A. Pine.

It will be the first grand jury here to serve the new shortened term of two months. District grand juries, which can be kept on duty as long as 18 months, have been serving a three-month term.

The District Court judges decided in May, however, that starting July 1 the grand jurors would serve only two months, as is done in all Federal jurisdictions where grand juries sit each weekday of their term.

Foreman of the jury is George F. Ross, 62, of 1465 Chapin st. nw., a retired accountant and organist of the First Baptist Church, Alexandria, Va. Deputy foreman is Hugh A. Rourke, 39, of 2002 P st. nw., manager of the Southwest Branch of the American Security & Trust Co.

Other members of the jury are:

Ernest Aston, 63, 1139 12th st. nw.; Richard C. Beall, jr., 30, 1225 29th st. se.; Charles Bosserman, 52, 1005 15th st. se.; Mrs. Marjorie M. Bouldin, 47, 1269 Simms pl. ne.; Mrs. Margaret G. Cahill, 44, 2611 Foxhall rd. nw.; Miss Erma M. Clark, 26, 2715 Ordway st. nw.; Alfred E. Caswell, 58, 628 N. Carolina ave. se.

Mrs. Edith G. Covolo, 31, 1211 18th pl. ne.; Mrs. Frances C. Craig, 53, 6513 Barnaby st. nw.; Mrs. Virginia C. Davison, 37, 1619 R st. nw.; James E. Dismuke, 39, 4423 13th st. ne.; Mrs. Dorothy D. Lewis, 32, 756 Hobart pl. nw.; Frank J. Malloy, 48, 1733 P st. nw.; Mrs. Maud E. Meyer, 56, 814 10th st. ne.

William A. Notz, 28, 5422 39th st. nw.; David Pollock, 60, 2126 R st. nw.; William E. Queene, 22, 1126 48th pl. ne.; Mrs. Clara A. Rice, 50, 1220 Crittenden st. nw.; Louis E. Shomette, 42, 4111 18th st. ne.; Mrs. Alice M. Tapp, 42, 5032 Dana pl. nw., and Mrs. Nannie J. Taylor, 56, 1834 15th st. nw.

Woodward's New Branch Up for Ruling

William E. Day, who has led 20 property owners is a four-year fight to prevent construction of a Woodward & Lothrop branch store in Arlington, is scheduled to lose another round to the department store today.

Arlington Circuit Court Judge Walter T. McCarthy has informed attorneys for both sides in the case that he will rule against Day's attempt to block the county from abandoning plans for a street on the store site.

The Circuit Court decision will be handed down at 1:30 p. m. today. Unless Day appeals the ruling, the way will be cleared for construction of the store.

Day, an attorney, of 312 S. Ivy st., Arlington, originally tried to prevent commercial rezoning of the store site on the east side of S. Glebe rd. between 2d and 5th sts.

When this failed, he filed objections to abandonment of a proposed street, which would bisect the property. Judge McCarthy, in a letter to attorneys, said that Day had "no use" for the street, and only wanted to block erection of the department store.

The store site now is owned by BVaughn & Usilton, Inc., who have contracted to sell it to Woodward & Lothrop for $220,000. Lothrop Luttrell, vice president of the store, said yesterday that building would probably be delayed at least a year.

Manhunt Ends With Sudden Surrender

A youthful escape from a Fairfax County road gang surrendered to county police yesterday before his getaway had been reported to county authorities.

Curtis D. Moore, 21, of Wise County, Va., gave himself up at the Groveton substation while guards from the road gang were scouring the underbrush a few miles away, according to Captain James Mahoney, in command of the substation.

Mahoney said Moore surrendered to Pvt. Paul Dove with the explanation that he had walked away from the road gang, where he was working as a trusty, and then had "changed his mind" about running away. Police notified officials at Camp 30, near Fairfax, that he had been recaptured at about the same time that a guard noted his absence.

Moore was serving a four-year term for housebreaking, and had been made a trusty because he appeared to be a "model prisoner," according to Sergeant M. G. Russel, in charge of the prison camp.

Policeman Burned Fighting Auto Fire

Police Pvt. Thomas F. Allen of the Fourth Precinct suffered second-degree burns on his left hand yesterday after answering a fire call.

The blaze was behind a seat in an automobile at the junkyard of John Reece, at 1st and V sts sw. Allen was treated at Providence Hospital.

VFW Bazaar Saturday

Jailbreak Thwarted In Prince Georges

Two prisoners, one a former Alcatraz convict, were foiled in an attempt to tunnel through the walls of the Prince Georges County jail at Upper Marlboro, police disclosed yesterday.

Sheriff T. Ward Martin said an inspection tour Wednesday morning revealed that the men had almost completed an escape hatch through a wall in a second-floor shower stall.

He identified the men as Donald M. Prendergast, 35, once an Alcatraz prisoner, of 500 3d st. nw., and Kermit R. Judd, jr., 25, of 517 64th ave., Capitol Heights, Md.

Both are awaiting action of the grand jury in connection with four safe-cracking jobs. Martin said both men admitted they planned to escape.

Car Arouses Suspicions

A car, occupied by two men, and parked outside the jail Tuesday night, aroused the suspicions of jail attendants. But it was a water leak that led to discovery of the planned break.

In making their weekly "shakedown" inspection, jail officials kept close watch for the source of the leak in the gloomy shower stall at the end of the cellblock corridor. Although prisoners are locked in their cells at night, they are allowed the freedom of the cellblock corridor.

The prisoners had gouged a hole 14 by 16 inches through the wall, and daylight seeped through the last outside layer of bricks. All they had to do was push out this last brick barrier and shinny down a rope to freedom.

Cause of Telltale Leak

The men had cut through a water pipe, then plugged it up. This caused the telltale leak.

The prisoners told Sheriff Martin they had planned to escape Tuesday, but postponed the break because new prisoners were brought into the jail that day.

The two men in the car returned to the jail Wednesday night and were taken into custody by police. Identified as relatives of one of the prisoners, they were released after questioning.

Prendergast and Judd were arrested June 11. They are charged with looting a safe of $4200 at the Quonset Inn, Silver Hill, safe robberies at the Hyattsville and Cheverly Theaters, and the attempted robbery of a safe at the Crossroads Restaurant, Bladensburg.

Convict Jailed After 23 Years Of Freedom

Florence, Ariz., July 6 (U.P.).—An Arizona state prison escapee who was placed behind bars again after 23 years of freedom would like to shake hands with the person who turned him in.

"Whoever he is, he did me a great favor," said Harry Nash, 50, convicted of murdering a traveling salesman near Flagstaff, Ariz., in 1921.

"Now, when I get out of prison," Nash said, "I'll be a free man who has paid his debt to society."

Frail and sallow but obviously at ease after more than a score of years of living in fear, Nash said he planned to return to his wife and his father-in-law's ranch near Calhan, Colo., when he is released.

That will be in 1952 at the earliest, the State Board of Pardons and Paroles told him recently. Originally sentenced to serve 65 to 75 years, Nash slipped down a rope ladder in 1926 after serving five years. He was hustled back to prison in February, 1949.

Nash was charged with the murder of Martin Schwab, Payson, Utah, on a trip from Flagstaff to Winslow, Ariz. Nash contended they quarreled over the cost of the trip and drew guns at the same time.

Despite the pleas of his wife and his friends who said he led an exemplary life during his years of freedom, the board turned down his appeal for immediate release.

"After all, he was convicted of murder," Board Chairman Walter Hofman, jr., explained. Hofmann was prison chaplain when Nash escaped.

"I don't know how many times I thought of turning myself in during those 23 years," Nash said. "But I just couldn't do it. Freedom was too sweet."

"I am not mad at anyone," Nash said.

Although he is looking forward to the day he returns to Colorado. He has some misgivings about the reception he'll get from his neighbors.

"You know, the fellow who goes to prison isn't the one who really suffers," he explained. "It's his parents and family. They have to hear all the shame and humiliation."

Va. Vice Jury May Make Report Today

Princess Anne Courthouse, Va., July 6 (AP).—A vice-probing grand jury gave an indication today it is nearing completion of its job.

After a two-hour session this afternoon the jury reported it wished to hear no more witnesses and adjourned until 9 a. m. Saturday.

Six witnesses appeared today at the fourth session since the jury was ordered June 27 to investigate reports of "wide open gambling" and illegal liquor sales at Virginia Beach and in Princess Anne County. Two of today's witnesses were among 24 who had testified previously.

It is believed probable the jury at its Saturday session will prepare and submit its findings to Judge F. E. Kellam of Princess Anne Circuit Court.

Witnesses heard today were John R. Fitzgerald, a merchant and Virginia Beach Police Chief Reeves Johnson, both of whom had testified previously; Maj. Robert Flaherty, USMC, attached to the Norfolk Naval Air Station; Joseph Cotten, salesman; J. Raymond Pritchard, sr., vice president of the Norfolk Southern Railway, and J. Raymond Pritchard, jr., a lumber company executive.

Al Capone's Gang Still Active, Senate Crime Probers Told

to call the roll of the present-day Capone gang and give something of the members' histories.

His thesis was that, although Capone, long ago jailed for income tax evasion, has been dead many years, his mob never has gone out of action. It has, he contended, only shifted from bootlegging to the rackets. He traced the Capone-Costello relationship back to 1933.

He named Charles Fischetti, a cousin of Al Capone's and an associate of Jack Dragna, West Coast underworld figure, and Tony Accardo, a figure in the notorious St. Valentine's Day massacre of years back, as the chief gang leaders today. Fischetti, Peterson declared, has been an important member of the syndicate for three decades.

Others Peterson named included Roco Fischetti, a brother of Charles; Paul Ricco, Louis (Little New York) Campagna, "Tough Tony" Capezio, Jack Guzick, Gus Alex, Murray (The Camel) Humphreys, Ralph Pierce, Fred Evans, Sam (Golfbag) Hunt and two of Al Capone's brothers, Ralph and John Capone.

Some of these men, Peterson said, have come to power within the organization in postprohibition years. Many have made money in various forms of gambling in Chicago. In fact, that city appears, from Peterson's testimony, to be shot full of crime today.

Many of the men have served prison terms, others have been indicted but not convicted. Peterson's records, available to the Senators, give each man's history is more detail than is available in any other file in America, it is generally agreed.

The last name Peterson mentioned as a gang associate was that of Joseph Epstein, who, he said, was once a Chicago bookterson, has been furnishing some $3000 to $4000 a week to Virginia Hill, the "girl friend" of the late Benjamin "Bugsy" Siegel, slain California gang figure.

Governor Youngdahl, by contrast to Illinois' seamy record, told the story of how he cleaned his State of slot machines. He got the Minnesota Legislature to pass a bill taking away the business license of any store or firm on whose premises a one-armed bandit was found.

He said the best way to break up such a racket is to make the penalties outweigh the illegal gains.

Brown told the Senators something of how he came to be the major stockholder in Pioneer News Service, but was hazy on numerous details about which he was questioned by Chairman Kefauver (D., Tenn.) and Rudolph Halley, committee counsel.

He said he owns 52½ percent of the stock, is paid $500 a week in salary and received $15,000 in dividends from the company last year.

Halley brought out that the salary and whopping dividend just about recouped his investment in the firm in a single year. Brown said he first bought a 25 percent interest from Clarence Owens; then his father gave him a 12½ percent interest; he bought another 7½ percent interest for $5000 from a Lester Kruse (Peterson thought this was a Chicago gang figure), and received another 7½ percent from the estate of James Regan, slain wire service boss for the late Moe Annenberg.

This last interest, Brown said, represented a "moral obligation" of Regan's to his father.

"I didn't pay nothin'," he added. He said he had no idea what the obligation was. His father is now dead.

Although Brown produced books of the company, he didn't bring in bank accounts but promised to produce them also. He admitted his firm sells racing news to bookies in St. Louis, although it took considerable prodding from Halley to bring forth the admission. Some customers are listed in the books simply as "Happy" or "Fanny."

Kefauver wanted to know about expenses listed in one of the bulky Pioneer record books as "promotion" and another called "political contribution." Brown said he didn't know what the promotion item was, but said it might be for "contributions" such as "raffles" or "police circus tickets." The political contribution was before he took over, Brown said.

Halley said the elder Brown had been associated with a number of racketeers, among them Buster Wortman. But the younger Brown said he knew practically nothing about Pioneer's history in the years when it reportedly was the objective in a battle of racketeers for control of the lucrative racing news business.

DISTRICT COMMISSION

"Blow the whistle Commissioner, the game's getting rough!"

What's all this talk about a milk shortage? It's mighty important to me 'cause I want to keep on growing up.

"Us Fellows Need Plenty Of Milk"

It was just a few short years ago that some milk, not meeting our local health standards, was permitted into the district. This was a temporary measure to meet a wartime situation. What's more, our folks paid the same price for it.

Now it seems as though a few suppliers would like to permanently soften these high milk-for-health standards . . . for whose benefit? I know how to spell p-r-o-p-a-g-a-n-d-a.

"There's Plenty Of Clean, Sweet, Pure Milk For All Of Us"

You and I know that there's plenty of milk available in the District that's the sweetest, the purest, the cleanest in the whole world by laboratory test. It comes from our 1,700 local dairy farms who not only can meet all demands but guarantee purity by live steam sterilization of all milk handling utensils.

"Live Steam Sterilization Is Best"

Way back when my grandpop started growing his handle-bar moustache, kids did get sick because with every sip of milk they swallowed 22,000,000 bacteria. In 1925 the District Health Officer had to crack down on bacteria. He forced every farmer supplying the District to sterilize all milk pails, milk cans and other utensils in live steam. Today no other method surpasses it.

"Boost Health Standards"

Now I can't say I don't care what the kids drink in areas outside ours. If milk handling equipment is swished with chemicals and there's more bacteria present, perhaps these areas should adopt the District milk regulations requiring steam sterilization instead of forcing inferior methods on us. You have to be sure about milk. Let's boost health regulations there rather than lower them here.

"Here's Our Team"

Each one of our local dairy farmers have served the District with the finest milk for many years. These people have always used the most modern dairy farm methods and can supply you with all the milk you need. They helped reduce infant mortality in the District. Now they ask the people who they have served so well to help them.

The members of this Association of dairy farmers are glad to keep steam sterilization. They can't keep it if a double-health-standard is allowed in the District milk supply.

Here's What You Can Do:

On July 10, a hearing will be held by the District Commissioners on the subject of making the wartime laxity on chemical sterilization permanent. We hope you will go to this hearing, or get your church or club to send a representative. The commissioners are interested in your welfare. Let them know that sweet, clean, pure milk is of vital interest to you.

Phony Money Found, Couple Tell Police

Richmond, Va., July 6 (AP).—About 25 $10 notes with the same serial numbers as those confiscated Wednesday in Hopewell have been passed in Greensboro, High Point and Winston-Salem, N. C., Norwood G. Greene, special agent in charge of the Richmond office of the Secret Service, said here today.

Green's information was received within an hour after the preliminary hearing here for Paul Edward Ciraulo, 29, and Marie Watson, 30, of Brooklyn, N. Y., in whose automobile $2100 in bogus $10 bills was discovered in Hopewell.

The Brooklyn pair, held in $10,000 bond by Commissioner Melvin Flegenheimer, told Secret Service agents the money, found in an oil filter in their car, was part of $2500 they found in a package in Brooklyn several weeks ago. They admitted spending only $20 of the counterfeit money—a $10 bill in Lynchburg and a $10 bill in Hopewell which led to their arrest.

Greene reported that Ciraulo said he had burned the missing $380 when an attempt to color the bills darker failed.

Greene said the couple admitted having spent some time recently in North Carolina and that "the counterfeit bills passed in Greensboro, High Point and Winstan-Salem are of the same type as the cnes we have."

Ciraulo and Mrs. Watson were arrested in Hopewell after George Donigan, a grocer, identified the woman as having given him a bogus $10 note for a carton of cigarettes. Earlier she had tried to pass a similar bill in Petersburg, but a merchant said she fled the store when he recognized it as bogus, officers said. The merchant took down her automobile license and this furnished a clue for police in Hopewell.

At the preliminary hearing today Special Agent Alva M. Boteler told the court Ciraulo said he had seen the package of counterfeit bills tossed from an automobile in Brooklyn. The car was being pursued hotly at the time, he reported. Boteler said Ciraulo and Mrs. Watson told him they recovered the package and soon left New York for a vacation.

When they were arrested in Hopewell $866 in genuine $5 and $1 bills were found hidden inside the car.

Agents last week reported that several counterfeit bills in 10-dollar denomination with the same serial number as those in Ciraulo's car had been passed in Roanoke and Lynchburg.

Case of Sideswiped Canoe to Be Dropped

The Corporation Counsel's office yesterday decided no charges should result from the alleged sideswiping of a canoe by a cabin cruiser in the Georgetown channel last Saturday.

The occupant of the canoe, Israel B. Kamsky, 39, of 1106 Allison st. nw., was dunked in the river and was fished out by the skipper of the cabin cruiser, Frank Bell, 45, who lives aboard the boat.

Plant Bed Failures Peril Md. Tobacco Crop

By John W. Ball
Post Reporter

Maryland tobacco, the biggest cash crop of the five southern Maryland counties, is in the poorest condition for July in years, tobacco experts reported yesterday.

W. B. Posey, tobacco specialist of the University of Maryland, yesterday estimated that crop prospects were about 80 to 85 percent of the estimate this time last year. Posey blamed the situation on "plant bed failure." This could mean a loss of one million to two million dollars a county.

"Many farmers are unable to get plants," he said. "We are getting calls at the State Tobacco Experimental Farm near Upper Marlboro every day from farmers whose plant beds have failed, and who are unable to get plants elsewhere."

A late spring, with prolonged dry, cold weather, is the chief cause, Posey said. However, the cold continued after the rains came. Recently the weather turned too hot. The terrific heat killed many late plants. Many farmers are transplanting their tobacco at night, to protect the newly moved plants from the daytime heat.

Tobacco furnishes more spending money for the farmers of South Maryland than all other crops combined. The 1948 crop of 35 million pounds brought the five counties slightly more than 19 million dollars, the Bureau of Agricultural Economics reported. BAE estimated the value of the 1949 crop of 41 million pounds at $22,304,000. This is now being sold at auction, with the price averaging around 48½ cents a pound compared with 54 cents for the 1948 crop.

However, the price for this year's crop is expected to be considerably higher than for the 1949 crop now being sold. Government price supports will be around 48 cents a pound, compared with 41.8 cents for the 1949 crop. This is due to the change in figuring parity, upon which the support level is based. The modernized parity went into effect last January.

Arlington Hospital To Get 70-Bed Wing

Plans for a new 70-bed addition to Arlington Hospital, were announced yesterday by Gilbert Hall, president of the hospital's board of trustees, and John J. Anderson, hospital administrator.

The new three-story east wing will cost an estimated $375,000. Hospital officials hope to receive a Federal grant-in-aid through the Hill-Burton Act for 55 percent of the cost.

The remaining 45 percent, or $168,750, will have to be raised through community contributions, Anderson said. So far the hospital has $32,000 toward this sum.

The new addition, a fourth wing, will raise the number of available hospital beds from 115 to 185. It will provide enlarged laboratory and clinic space and will allow the hospital to convert its present surgical wing into an all-chidren's wing.

A fund drive for the addition will be started after a decision, expected next month, is received on the Hill-Burton application, according to Hall. He said construction would probably begin in the early spring.

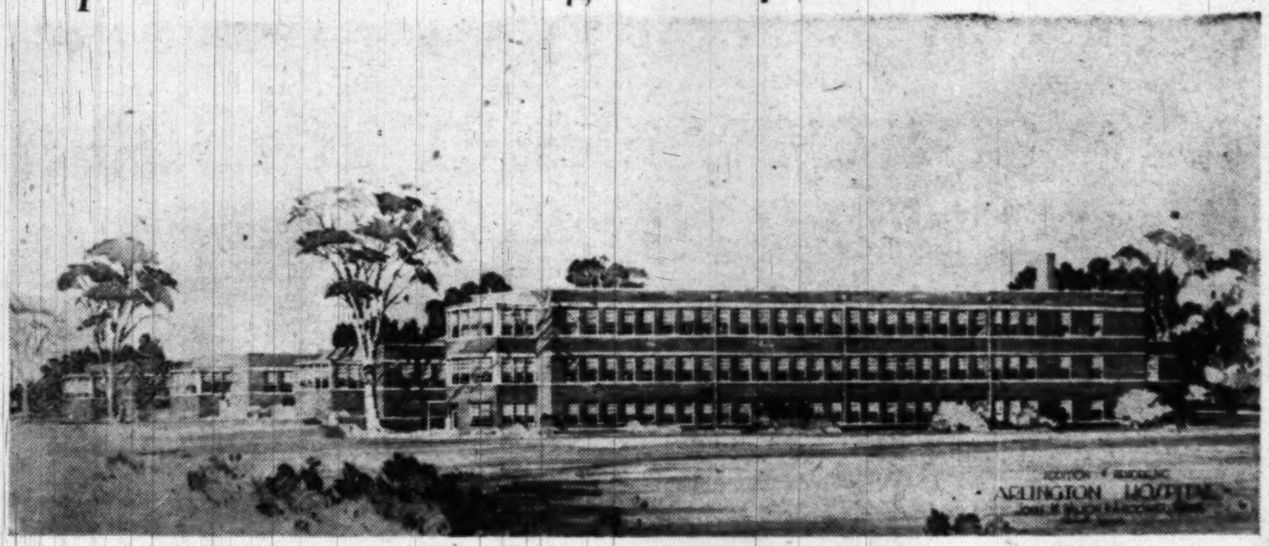
Prisoner Waiting For X-Ray Flees Through Window

A flimsy screen does not a prison make.

Alfred S. Evans, 34, of 310 50th st. ne., proved this early yesterday when he pushed out a first-floor window screen in the X-ray room at Gallinger Hospital and escaped his police custodian.

Thirteenth Precinct police had taken Evans into custody for investigation. When he complained of feeling ill, he was taken to Galinger for diagnosis. He fled when left alone in the X-ray room.

Proposed Addition to Arlington Hospital . . .



NEW BUILDING—Architect's drawing of the proposed fourth wing (forefront of drawing) at the east end of Arlington Hospital. Designed by John M. Walton and Associates, the 70-bed addition will cost an estimated $375,000, 55 percent of which hospital trustees hope to receive as a grant from the Federal Government

Four Projects Get $50,260 in Cancer Funds

National Cancer Institute fund grants of $1,160,818 to press the Nation-wide attack on cancer were made last night.

Four District research projects were given $50,260.

An award of $9774 was made to Dr. Michael X. Sullivan, of Georgetown University; a grant of $5511 to Dr. Ivor Cornman, and one of $7975 to Dr. Calvin T. Klopp, both of George Washington University, and a fourth annual grant of $27,000 to Dr. Walter R. Kirner, director of the Chemical-Biological Coordination Center of the National Research Council here.

The Georgetown University project, it was explained, is for a new study on the effect of tumor-damaging compounds in the growth of normal and malignant tissues.

Dr. Cornman's research projects at GWU, coworkers said, concerns his continuing studies of cell division with sea urchin eggs, and the effects of various chemicals on that process.

Dr. Klopp's work, recently publicized, is on the clinical use of nitrogen mustards by arterial rather than intravenous injections. Preliminary reports showed that the new treatment gives patients dramatic pain relief and apparent regression of tumor growth in terminal-stage cancer, without curing the disease.

In Dr. Kirner's work for the National Research Council, the continuing grant of $27,000 will be used to further NRC's long-term project of correlating the separate work of chemists and biologists, particularly regarding cancer.

The project, Dr. Kirner said, includes searching the voluminous literatures, classifying them into codes, and transcribing the information into punchcard data to make it immediately available to research workers.

Respect Age, D. C. Board Urges Fliers

Low-flying planes from Bolling Base and the Naval Air Station are disturbing the afternoon naps of inmates of the Home for the Aged at Blue Plains.

The Board of Public Welfare, after hearing a report on the disturbance yesterday, voted to petition the two fields to order planes from making low runs over the home.

The board at its regular monthly meeting noted a continuation of the upswing in the number of children in foster homes. At the end of May the Welfare Department was boarding 1158 children. The number increased during the first two weeks of June to 1177.

Welfare Director Gerard Shea said the increase has resulted from a larger number of broken homes, evictions, inadequate housing and the roundup and hospitalization by the Health Department of parents with tuberculosis.

Shea said the Industrial Home School annex on Little Falls rd. is operating at capacity with 148 children.

The board accepted with regret the resignation of Dr. R. Stevens Pendexter, supervising ophthalmologist with the department since 1935. Dr. Pendexter has served without pay.

CARE Taking Orders For Israel Packages

Alexandria Cigarette Tax Yields $25,590 Since July 1

A 20-cent-per-carton cigarette tax, effective in Alexandria July 1, already has netted more than half of the $50,000 it was expected to produce in the last six months of this year.

J. Aubrey Matter, city license inspector, yesterday reported tax sales of $25,590 as wholesalers, retailers and the consuming public were groping for an adequate gauge of how the tax will affect cigarette sales within the city.

Matter emphasized that the current tax receipts are no reflection of actual sales, since most wholesalers purchased stamps in large quantities before the effective date of the levy. More than $18,000 worth of tax stamps were bought before the tax became effective last Saturday.

Stamp Supply Replenished

He noted, however, that four wholesalers who bought stamps before the deadline have returned to replenish their supplies since the law became effective.

Despite the gloomy predictions of some businessmen that the tax would "drive the tobacco business clean out of the city," most wholesalers and retailers agree that it is still too early to determine the full impact of the assessment. They cite these reasons.

1. The tax effective at the start of a "long" weekend, when many persons who normally could have been counted on for heavy purchases were out of the city.

2. A majority of cigarette smokers, forewarned of the tax, could be expected to purchase advance supplies, so that for "a few days at least" there could be no way of determining the immediate effect on the market.

3. Even if local sales slumped due to the tax, a heavy weekend influx of tourists to the city could have been responsible for a "fairly brisk" cigarette sales reported by merchants from Saturday to Tuesday.

Weather Enters Picture

Even the weather entered the uncertain picture. Several retailers who reported a "noticeable downward trend" in cigarette sales since the weekend conceded it could have been the result of heavy rains, which have kept would-be shoppers indoors in the last two days.

Most dealers agree it will be from two to three weeks before there is any real indication of how sales will be affected. Cigarette sales, they say, are not consistent from day to day and furthermore, their inventories are usually compiled on a weekly or monthly basis—but not daily.

Regardless of the immediate effect in Alexandria, a number of establishments outside the city have capitalized on the tax as a means of luring business. Several Fairfax County stores have prominent signs advertising smokes at a price 2 cents a pack below the Alexandria level, and places "just over the line" have reported a pronounced increase in cigarette business since last Saturday.

The levy, bitterly opposed by some businessmen as discriminatory, was approved by the city Council in May as an "emergency" revenue measure, designed to help balance the city's tangled 1950 budget. Members of the council have indicated it will be rescinded next year if the city gets "out of the red."

3000 Kinds of Germs Bred in D. C. House

The Washington Post

3000 VARIETIES—Miss Elizabeth Grosse, a mycologist, at work in the headquarters of the American Type Culture Collection, 2029 M st. nw., draws blood from a rabbit to be used in a diet formula to promote the growth of an organism. Scientists at the headquarters handle 3000 varieties of micro-organisms

By N. S. Haseltine
Post Reporter

While you and I spend much of our time avoiding germs, one group of scientists here thrives on them.

Its members spend their working hours in an old Georgetown home with some 3000 varieties of micro-organisms, both the helpful "bugs" and the deadly disease varieties.

Their charges range from the friendly organisms used to flavor cheeses to the germs of gonorrhea, pneumonia, cholera. You name the disease; they have the germs for it, and for hundreds of others you probably can't name.

For instance, the fungus Ashbya gossypii. With all the death-dealing disease producers in their custody, this is the most closely guarded of the lot. Because it could raise havoc in American cottonfields, it requires a signed order from the Department of Agriculture for its release.

Several Scientific Sponsors.

Polio viruses, on the other hand, can be obtained from the Georgetown storehouse at the request of any department head of any recognized medical center or research laboratory.

The germ storehouse and factory is located at 2029 M st. nw., headquarters of the American Type Culture Collection. The non-profit organization set up to preserve the known varieties of microorganisms is operated as a joint undertaking by several scientific bodies.

These sponsors, which elect members to form the governing board of the ATCC, include the Society of American Bacteriologists, the American Phyto-Pathological Society, the American Association of Pathologists and Bacteriologists, and the American Society of Zoologists.

Some Kept in Deep Freeze

In the virus field, the ATCC acts only as custodian of species supplied to its laboratories by the Nation's leading virologists. These viruses, ranging from those causing mumps and influenza to the more deadly ones that bring sleeping sickness, polio and fatal fevers, are kept locked in a deep-freeze unit in the M st. house.

They are distributed on requests to authorized individuals, and when the supply runs low the original donor is asked to replenish it.

But for the 2975 catalogued strains of bacteria, fungi, yeasts and such intermediate forms of micro-organisms as algae, protozoa and bacteriophages, ATCC workers grow their own from stock colonies. Some 70 different media, or diet formulas, are used in the process.

70 Diets for Organisms

Filling an order, it was explained, generally consists of whisking some of the living organisms desired from the stock bottle with a looped platinum wire into a test-tube of the growth media. These media might be rabbit's blood, beef broth or any of the 68 other diets the organism likes best.

Depending on the organisms ordered, the growing process takes 24 hours to a week. Then the culture is carefully stoppered and packed for shipment by mail or express. The three known strains of human poliomyeitis, for instance, are shipped in containers of dry ice and sawdust, generally by air express.

Stock supplies replenish themselves in refrigerated storage. Those ordered most frequently sometimes have to be left at room temperatures, or even incubated at higher temperatures to keep abreast of the demands.

At Georgetown 10 Years

The working staff of the ATCC comprises two bacteriologists, Mrs. Ruth D. Davis and Miss Isabella Bouldin; a mycologist, Mrs. Elizabeth Grosse; a media maker, Marion Alexander, chemistry student at George Washington University, a secretary-manager and her assistant.

The ATCC laboratory has been located at the M street address for the past three years. From 1937 to 1947 it was housed at Georgetown University, and prior to that, from its start in 1925, it was accommodated at the John McCormick Institute for Infectious Diseases, in Chicago, Ill.

Va. to Spend $77,377,278 For Schools

Charlottesville, Va., July 6 (AP)—Four-year building programs already approved by the State Board of Education indicate $77,377,278 worth of public school construction will be undertaken in Virginia during the period ending June 30, 1954, Governor Battle said here tonight.

The Governor spoke at a conference on school building construction and related problems which is being attended by more than 100 persons at the University of Virginia.

Battle said the programs approved by the board in accordance with the $45,000,000 grant for school construction provided by the General Assembly amount to $60,561,618 in new buildings and additions to existing structures.

State funds available from the grant during the 1950-52 biennium, he said, for use on this program amount to $13,596,548.

In his address, the Governor declared that the 1950 legislation "in no way minimized the primary responsibility of the localities to finance their school buildings.

"It merely recognizes the existence of extraordinary needs at this time which require the cooperation of the state and the localities for a satisfactory solution," he added.

Father of 4 Girls Held on Incest Charge

Don MacDonald, 39, of 4200 Chesapeake st. nw., father of four daughters, yesterday was held under $2000 bond for grand jury action on a charge of incest.

Police said McDonald was arrested Wednesday afternoon at the Bankers Life and Casualty Co., 1835 K st. nw., where he is District manager, on the complaint of his 18-year-old daughter. She said he had sexual relations with her June 24.

Cardozo Graduate Wins Scholarship

Elizabeth Marie Brown, 18, of 330 Taylor st. nw., who graduated last month from Cardozo High School, has been awarded the Spofford Memorial Scholarship of $100 by the Junior Hearing Group of the Washington Hearing Society. The award is made each year to the high school graduate who the group considers has been the most successful in overcoming the handicap of loss of hearing.

2 Gallinger Doctors Promoted; Health Dept. Adds Psychiatrist

Three medical appointments, two at Gallinger Hospital and one in the District Health Department, were announced yesterday by the District Commissioners.

Physicians appointed were:

Dr. Charles H. Nash, jr., 32, promoted from medical officer to chief medical officer in obstetrics and gynecology at Gallinger. A member of the hospital's staff since January, he succeeds Dr. Robert H. Barter, who resigned to accept a position at George Washington University Medical School.

Dr. Leroy E. Hoeck, 38, promoted from medical officer to chief medical officer in pediatrics at Gallinger to replace Dr. Lewis K. Sweet, who had resigned. Hoeck has been a member of the Gallinger staff for four years.

Dr. Thomas E. Griffin, 38, a psychiatrist, appointed to the Health Department's Bureau of Mental Hygiene. Formerly a member of the staff of St. Elizabeths Hospital, he will divide his time between the mental hygiene and alcoholic clinics.

Self-Service Gas Stirs Controversy

By V. R. Montanari
Post Reporter

The opening of Greater Washington's first self-service gasoline station a few weeks ago in Alexandria has set off considerable controversy and mixed reactions.

Arlington County, on advice of its fire chief, has banned the new-type station, where the customer draws his own gas and thereby saves three to five cents a gallon.

Alexandria's City Council is on the verge of banning self-service stations, including the only one in the area, located on Jefferson Davis hwy.

To Discuss Situation

The District Commissioners, following an April 10 hearing, soon will ask representatives of the fire marshal's office, police department, and department of vehicles and traffic to discuss possible licensing of self-service stations if permits should be requested.

Authorities in Prince Georges and Montgomery Counties have taken no action and say there are no County ordinances to prevent operation of customer-pumping stations.

Except in Arlington, where Fire Chief A. C. Scheffel's adverse report caused the County Board to ban self-service, the chief opponents of the new stations seem to be operators of conventional filling stations.

Lad Mills, president of the Association of Retail Gasoline Dealers of Washington, mentioned fire hazards during the commissioners' hearing, but also added that self-service stations could mean loss of employment for 2000 of the 3000 workers. He urged "no licenses" for the new type.

Committee Named

Effect of the dealers' opposition has been striking in Alexandria. When W. C. Wills of Annandale asked for a permit for his proposed self-service station, and for safety regulations, the council appointed a committee to draw up such rules, consisting of Councilman R. Samuel Luckett, Chief John E. Posey of the Alexandria Fire Prevention Bureau, and City Attorney V. Floyd Williams.

The regulations, drawn up by Chief Posey, were presented to the council and passed on first reading in the form of an ordinance to apply to all filling stations. Meanwhile, Wills, who had been waiting some six weeks, had been granted a permit to open his new-type station, pending action on the regulations.

At the next council meeting, when the regulatory ordinance came up for its second reading, a new paragraph was proposed by a representative of 65 Alexandria filling station operators, who would ban self-service stations outright.

Ban Restored

The proposal was referred back to the committee, which threw out the new paragraph and again presented its regulations. A council majority put back the banning paragraph, and it was passed, along with the regulations, by vote of four members of the council.

The four—Marshall J. Beverley, Albert A. Smoot, Laroy S. Bendheim and Roy Bragg—are expected to pass the measure again on a second reading at the next council meeting Tuesday night. Bragg is a filling station operator.

Bendheim, the chief proponent of the ban, and Bragg's law partner, said yesterday he regarded it chiefly as a safety measure, but added there is also the possibility of price wars stemming from self-service stations, and the threat of throwing people out of work in what he termed "legitimate" stations.

Also opposing self-service stations is the Alexandria Chamber of Commerce, on the ground that they will lead to "too many" gas stations and to price wars.

Called Safer Than Others

The most used argument—fire hazard—is scoffed at by Fire Prevention Chief Posey, who declares flatly that Willis's 16-pump, self-service establishment "if anything, is safer than most of the regular gas stations in Alexandria."

Posey says he has "checked and rechecked" the Willis station and its fire prevention practices "satisfy us 100 percent." Wills is observing all the regulations proposed by the fire prevention chief "better than many other operators in the city," says Posey.

The station's service is as follows: A motorist drives up to one of the eight "islands," each of which has two pumps, for regular and high-test gas. One of the nine attendants asks the customer which type he wants, and unlocks the correct pump with a key, setting the figures on the pump back to zero from the last sale.

Automatic Lock

The customer then does his own pumping, and when he has the gas he wants, he hangs up the hose nozzle, automatically locking the pump. The attendant is paid the amount shown on the pump.

Chief Posey pointed out yesterday that customers are not allowed to serve themselves while smoking or when under the influence of intoxicants. The handle valve which releases the gas cannot be set and left pumping while the motorist cleans his windshield, etc., he said. The attendants are thoroughly qualified and instructed in fire prevention, he said.

"Have you ever been asked to put out your cigarette when you draw up to a conventional filling station?" asked Posey. "Usually, you aren't even asked to turn off your motor. But the attendants comply with all these rules at the self-service station."

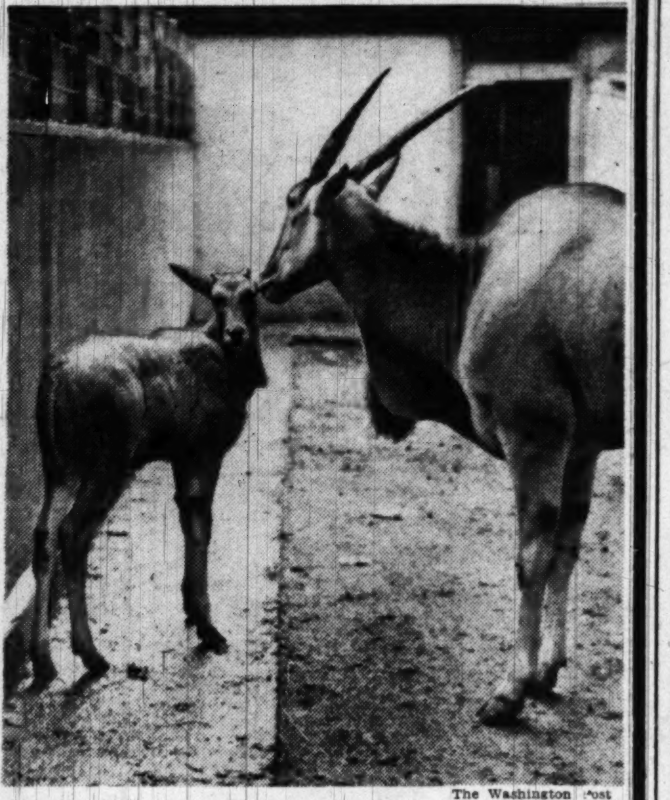
AAA Studied Operation

The American Automobile Association which has studied self-service station operation in various parts of the country, has found "no basis for the contention that they are a hazard," a spokesman said.

A National Fire Protection Association committee report indicates approval of the stations if they are safeguarded by qualified attendants who will refuse service if a customer is incompetent to serve himself safely and if other basic fire precautions are taken.

Wills, who said he has invested $60,000 in his self-service station, declared he will fight the impending City Council ban "if it takes every last nickel."

Baby Eland Makes Debut



The Washington Post

FIRST BORN—Mrs. Eland presented her son, several days old, to the public at the Zoo for the first time yesterday. He is the first born of Mr. and Mrs. Eland, largest of the South African antelopes

Stork Lands in Zoo-Land; The Newcomer? An Eland

Mr. and Mrs. Eland—largest of the South African antelopes— have a little eland.

It is a little he-eland, not a she-eland.

He is distinctive, too, says Dr. William M. Mann, Zoo diretcor. Had he come from south of the African Orange River, his body would be fawn-colored; and north, his body would have narrow white lines. This little he-eland came from Washington, though, and its body is beginning to have narrow white lines.

This is the first eland born to these particular antelopes. Mama and Papa have been Zoo-livers for three or four years. The youngun is several days old, kept from public view until he was strong enough to glare at a camera.

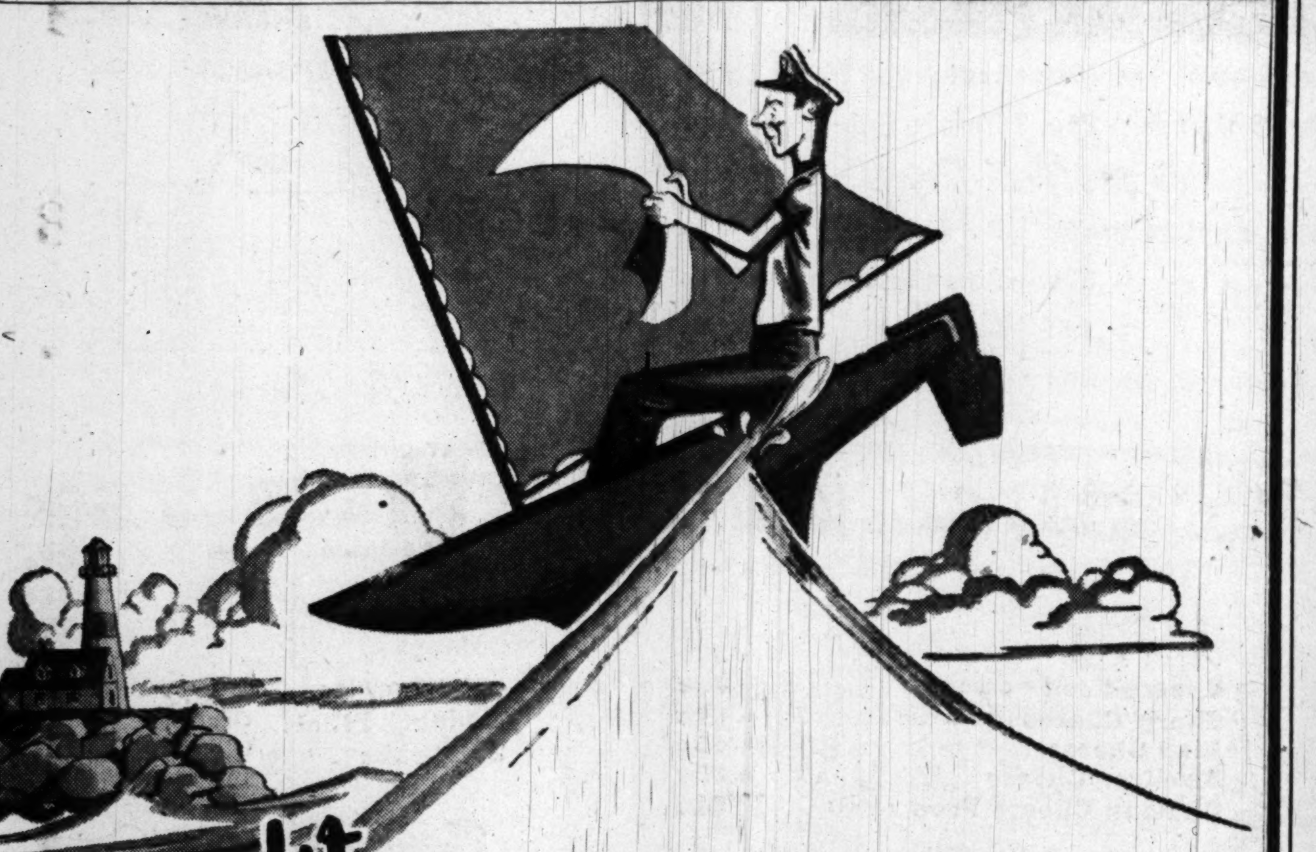
Dr. Mann also has announced some new Zoo snakes, but not born here. These he purchased from a snake man.

There are six fer de lance and three South African cobras.

The fer de lance is, like the cobra, a very bad snake to be bit by. Difference is the fer de lance comes from Central and South America, looks like a rattlesnake without the rattle.

The cobra comes from South Africa and is hooded, like all cobras are.

Elands are nicer.



When you're away on vacation...

Guns At The Watergate

Well, times have certainly changed since the year A. D. 1918 or thereabouts when a crowd of angry superpatriots broke into a concert hall in New York City and prevented a celebrated contralto from singing a little number by Gounod called Ave Maria. A rumor (utterly erroneous, as it turned out) had been circulated that the words of the song were in the German language. But last night at the Watergate, while half the world seemed teetering on the brink of a war with Russia, Mr. Howard Mitchell and the National Symphony Orchestra presented an all-Tschaikovsky program. Not only that, but the United States Army brought over a brace of field batteries from Fort Myer and shot them off during the performance of the Overture, 1812, so that it could be played precisely as Tschaikovsky had scored it for its original presentation many years ago.

There are those who think this is carrying broad-mindedness to excess. Maybe, the argument runs, nationalism is an archaic sentiment; but, after all, the Overture, 1812, is itself a flamboyantly nationalistic bit of work. As you know, it celebrates the Russian victory over the armies of Napoleon. This is symbolized when the Marseillaise motif, which dominates the earlier part of the overture is drowned out by the anthem God Save the Tsar from the heavy brasses and by a busy banging of the glockenspiel to simulate the pealing of the church bells. Of course the kind of nationalism represented by the Overture, 1812, is Tsarist nationalism, and thus wholly without communistic taint. There was, as far as we could see, no reason why Mr. Mitchell should not have included it in his program, but the question was whether it was in the best of taste to make it an occasion for a special show of theatricalism that might have been unbecoming even for a military band.

War Of Words

Acheson and Dulles, Marshall and Eisenhower—all four spoke up forcefully Wednesday in behalf of an expansion of our information program. They pointed to the immense resources that the Russians are throwing into the battle of words over Korea. Actions are said to speak louder than words, but one of the wonders of the twentieth century is that they don't. Our actions in Korea are pure enough, and the actions of the aggressor that we are coping with are just the opposite; but let us remember that millions of people depend not upon unadulterated sources of news, but upon words whispered across the diameter of the earth by men who not only have the resources but are supreme technicians in the art of bamboozling and befuddling.

To be sure, 43 nations have testified to our virtue by supporting our action against the aggressor, and you would think that this fact would in itself be eloquent enough. But the testimony is that it isn't. Thus the great need from all these supporting nations is that they shall mobilize their communications resources to spell out their support of the sanctions undertaken in Korea. They should be asked to join with us and the United Nations Organization at Lake Success in revealing the true position. They all have facilities of communication. All of them have their own peculiar audiences in which what they say is predominantly influential, and some of these go beyond their frontiers. In the present crisis, certainly, national propaganda should be secondary and the first item in the 43 nations' program should be an explanation of why they demand a cease-fire and a withdrawal in Korea.

Parallel propaganda is something for which this newspaper has long pleaded as the bounden duty of all nations who prize their liberty. The last occasion was when President Gonzales Videla of Chile came to Washington. The Chilean suggested the creation of a democratic international to stop the spread of international communism. The idea had merit, but this newspaper observed that, without benefit of new machinery, there was something that the free nations could do right away, and that was to unite their propaganda resources in behalf of the free way of life. There is now a specific occasion for uniting propaganda on the specific issue of the struggle upon which the free world is engaged.

Propaganda is a device in which the United States is deficient, and this is curious, for the United States has made an art of advertising and salesmanship and public relations. The deficiency is due to disinterest—expressed in a budget of only 34 million dollars, a sum which, moreover, includes items that do not properly belong to an information budget. The amount is less than that spent by the British, let alone the Russians. Yet no country needs to spread the light about itself and its situation more than this country; for no country has been more defamed and maligned, and no country is more responsible for defending the peace. In India, for instance, the picture conjured up of America by all classes of society up to the top level of sophistication is a curious sort of Wall st. Hollywood amalgam. Millions of people in out of the way places, as the result of the long start of the Russians and the American neglect, speak the Muscovite patter about America, and thus the Russians may be in a better position than we realize of making their own barefaced aggression seem like innocent self-defense in the minds of the world's guileless.

Expeditionary Forces

The decision to send more F-51 fighter planes to American forces in Korea points up one of several anomalies in the defense against the Communist invaders. The F-51 is a propeller-driven fighter which was generally considered obsolescent after World War II, and certainly is inferior to the jet F-80. But Korea has revised that opinion. The F-80 is good enough in combat with other jets, but it simply cannot slow down enough to make satisfactory passes at the slower Russian-supplied Yaks. Thus to gain air superiority it has become necessary to fight the enemy more or less with his own weapons. Indeed, the assurances of overwhelming American air strength made at the outbreak of the fighting seem now to have been a miscalculation of the kind of equipment appropriate to the task—a miscalculation that was made by the Japanese in their conflicts with the Chinese before the war in Shanghai.

Certainly if the Korean affair has proved anything, it has proved the importance of tactical aviation—slighted for so long by the strategic bombing addicts. Strategic bombing has a place in our defense, but it has limited usefulness. In action such as that in Korea, close air support of ground troops is vital, and the Air Force does not yet seem to have the whole answer. To be fair, it must be added that the application of American air strength has been greatly handicapped by the weather, not to mention the lack of airfields and the necessarily long ranges involved. Fortunately, American and British carrier planes have supplemented the attacks on the Red capital of Pyongyang.

While the Communist forces are not up to date in the air, they seem to be modern enough on the ground. Their tanks, though Russian World War II models, have been used with devastating effect. They simply cannot be repelled with the light arms that were furnished the South Koreans for internal security—nor, for that matter, by anything yet shown by the American ground forces in combat. Here, again, there was a miscalculation by the military men on the spot.

All of which indicates the need for some radical thinking about the kind of military forces the United States requires for police action in support of the United Nations against the similar eruptions the Russians may find it profitable to stir up elsewhere. This is something quite different from the total war, presumably starting in Europe, for which defense strategy has been laid. The Korean experience shows that the United States is now ill-equipped to send an expeditionary force of any size abroad. Aside from the difficulties in shipping, materiel and normal replacements sent over long distances, there simply are not the divisions to divert in large numbers. While large-scale mobilization at this stage would be disruptive and a mistake, some utilization of reserves may be necessary to fill the gaps. The Korean affair points to the need for more Regular Army divisions—perhaps a reinforced corps as a ready force—and gives new importance to the Marines. It also shows the vital need for aviation trained in close support of troops. For all the talk of air war, this kind of action, at least, requires hard slugging on the ground.

Irresponsible Action

To be sure, the 1950 budget deficit turned out to be much below the President's January estimate. Nevertheless, the Treasury ended the fiscal year in the red to the extent of $3.1 billion. Even if the Korean action is localized, it is virtually a foregone conclusion that 1951 military expenditures will have to be greatly expanded. Moreover, the reduction in the 1950 deficit was chiefly due to a lag in the spending of funds already pledged or available to pay for future delivery of goods and services. In other words, much of the improvement in the budgetary position is simply the result of deferred spending that will help to swell 1951 outlays.

Yet, with the prospect of bigger deficits ahead and the danger of becoming involved in a full scale world war, the Senate Finance Committee has opened hearings on the tax revision bill passed by the House which would reduce excise taxes by more than a billion dollars. It is quite true that the proposed reductions would be offset by higher taxes on corporations and the plugging of tax loopholes. However, from present indications the Treasury is going to need much more revenue than is represented by these excise taxes; it must obtain new funds to offset mounting expenditures and prevent the deficit from rising, even if the upward trend of tax receipts, sparked by a business boom, continues.

Nothwithstanding the gloomy fiscal outlook, the Finance Committee is planning to report out the tax bill within a week or so, although various members of the committee conceded that, if the Korean crisis were to develop into a full scale war, increases instead of reductions in taxes would be required. Secretary of the Treasury Snyder, testifying Tuesday before the committee, indicated that nothing had happened so far to require dropping tax revision, but he, too, admitted that "increased disturbances" to world peace could force tax increases rather than cuts. In our opinion a great deal has happened to justify shelving tax legislation in view of the uncertain outcome of the Korean conflict. If the Senate were to act on pending legislation before adjournment, Congress might be confronted by demands for tax increases when it reassembles.

The public has become so accustomed to deficit financing that many people no longer realize the incongruity of passing legislation designed to lighten tax burdens when the budget is unbalanced. But even the most irresponsible legislator should appreciate the potentially dangerous consequences of hastily cutting off tax revenue which may be sorely needed to help finance the expenditures of a conflict the scope and outcome of which no man can foresee at this juncture.

Boxscore On Liberty

Caught up, apparently, in the contemporary craze for questionnaires, the United Press asked correspondents "in almost every corner of the world" to rate various countries in terms of the degree of human freedom prevailing within their borders. The results were published in this newspaper Wednesday and they contribute very little to the enhancement of American pride. We have no means of gauging the wisdom and the objectivity of the UP correspondents; and we have some doubts as to the validity of the criteria they applied. Nevertheless, the plain fact is that on the basis of their evaluation, the United States stood only thirteenth among the 36 countries they considered.

The correspondents rated the countries percentagewise on each of five different aspects of freedom: freedom of speech and press, freedom of religion, social equality, political equality and equality of economic opportunity. The United States shared 100 percent ratings in the first two categories, along with 10 others. But the over-all score of this country dedicated to the proposition that all men are created equal was pulled down heavily by a mere 75 in "social equality" and 80 in "equality of opportunity." In other words, the correspondents seemed to consider a lot of places more democratic, if not more free, than America.

In general, the United States stands below the three Scandinavian countries, which had the highest score, below France, which came next, the three Benelux nations, Uruguay, England, Switzerland and even below Italy and the Philippines. It is not a standing especially becoming to the world's most powerful champion of freedom. Perhaps we need to give a little more attention to the practicing of what we preach.

Twilight Of The Gods?

Decline and decay in almost everything nowadays, and if you don't believe it, just ask Mr. Casey Stengel of the New York Yankees. At the beginning of the season, when all observers reported that Mr. Joe DiMaggio had recovered all his old form, it appeared that nothing could keep the Yankees from another pennant, unless it happened to be the Boston Red Sox, who, according to purely mathematical calculations, ought to be the best club in either league. Thus when the Red Sox (according to habit) seemed to blow themselves out of the pennant race, it was hardly possible for anybody to doubt that the Yankees were once again children of destiny.

But now look at them! It is not merely that they are four games behind the Detroit Tigers; they are evincing symptoms of panic. This is something that might easily happen to another ball club, but when it happens to the Yankees, things have come to a queer pass. One fact is that with all their gold and other resources the Yankees have been unable to find themselves a first baseman. Last year, you remember, they had been making do with Mr. Tommy Henrich, an outfielder by trade, but a good man no matter where you put him. Even as it was, however, Mr. Henrich, who has banged himself rather badly in the business, played for a good part of last season in some kind of surgical truss. This year Mr. Henrich's ailments have forced him out of action entirely. Mr. Joe Collins, who entered the lineup by way of replacement, has performed creditably enough in the defensive department, but has been nothing short of duck soup, as the saying goes, for the American League pitchers. Mr. Johnny Mize, on the other hand, is not and never has been duck soup for any pitcher in any league. Yet he could not, even in his best days, have been described as a bounding gazelle in the field; now he is hardly able to lumber over the necessary ground.

Thus it happened that here in Washington last Monday some 2500 popeyed customers had the experience of watching the great DiMaggio attempt to fill the breach. The rationale of this experiment was that Mr. DiMaggio has been (according to his own standards) having a pitifully weak season at bat. While he remained in the outfield stronger hitters than he (on the basis of current statistics) languished on the bench. But the notion of benching the great DiMaggio was quite unthinkable, even for Casey Stengel. Besides, there is no telling when DiMaggio may resume his accustomed efficacy as a hitter. A way out of this dilemma seemed to have been discovered by his transfer to first base. The experiment, however, lasted but a single day, not indeed through any default by Mr. DiMaggio but through an injury to Mr. Hank Bauer. Tuesday DiMaggio was back at his old stand, and Mr. Stengel's problem was as far as ever from solution.

Fuchs' Return

In your issue of July 5 is an Associated Press dispatch from London dated July 4, entitled "Fuchs' Return to Atomic Work Hinted," it is stated that Fuchs may be allowed to resume atomic research behind prison bars, well-supervised, of course.

How stupid can people get? Fuchs has proved himself thoroughly unreliable, with no sense of loyalty nor obligation toward those who give him shelter and above all, fanatical. It is his nature to bite the hand that feeds him. If he is allowed to experiment further what is to stop him from blowing up the whole of London? To his distorted mind this would be a way out for him.

His type of mentality is apt to have suicidal inclinations. Also this would give him a last crack at democracies which he seems to hate. Some buckethead in London figured that the Fuchs brain is being wasted. Fuchs is now making mailbags. I wouldn't trust him to make a mailbag. Why do we always have to learn things the hard way?

Americans In Germany

What little I have seen in Germany during the few days of my stay in Wiesbaden and Frankfurt indicate that the situation politically has not improved very much. The young GIs are not the least bit interested in the reconstruction at the present time of the nonexistent German democracy; they are also not in the least interested in the German people as a whole. They are interested though, in having a good time.

Americans are being made fun of; they are the biggest subject of sarcastic jokes and even insults—among other Germans. Black market activities are still in existence in certain parts of Frankfurt.

"I have seen United States soldiers buy cigarettes in the PX for $1 a carton, and resell them five minutes later to German civilians for 18 German marks—or $4.50. Coffee brings $2.50 per pound, and other items respectively, according to their possible availability.

The only way to teach the Germans the American way of democracy—the four freedoms—is not to send young and inexperienced boys over to Germany, but men, adults, who know American democracy, phychologists and psychology students; men and women, who know the basic principles of democracy; people who know what it means to teach people who have no idea of democracy.

"As long as only good-looking boys, United States occupation forces in military uniforms are in Germany (and Austria as well) democracy will have no chance.

McCarthyism, 1798

If Senator McCarthy and his cronies on Capitol Hill have any interest in American history, they may be interested in the following quotation from Claude G. Bowers' Jefferson and Hamilton, chapter entitled "Hysterics":

"On the last day of the debate on the Alien Bill, Edward Livingston closed for the opposition; and in discussing the constitutional phase, he anticipated the doctrine of the Kentucky and Virginia Resolutions, indicating probable conferences with the tall silent man who was presiding over the Senate.

"'If we are ready to violate the Constitution,' he said, 'will the people submit to our unauthorized acts? Sir, they ought not to submit; they would deserve the chains that these measures are forging for them.'

"The effect of such a measure? 'The country will swarm with informers, spies, delators, and all the odious reptile tribe that breed in the sunshine of despotic power . . . The hours of the most unsuspected confidence, the intimacies of friendship, or the the recess of domestic retirement, afford no security. The companion whom you most trust, the friend in whom you must confide, the domestic who waits in your chamber, are all tempted to betray your imprudent or unguarded follies; to misrepresent your words; to convey them; distorted by calumny, to the secret tribunal where jealousy presides — where fear officiates as accuser, and suspicion is the only evidence that is heard . . .

"'Do not let us be told that we are to excite a fervor against a foreign aggression to establish a tyranny at home; that like the arch traitor, we cry 'Hail Columbia' at the moment we are betraying her to destruction; that we sing 'Happy Land' when we are plunging it in ruin and disgrace; and that we are absurd enough to call ourselves free and enlightened, while we advocate principles that would have disgraced the age of Gothic barbarity.'" Annals of Congress, June 21, 1798.

The real point is—who won the election of 1800?

Fairfax Sham

I wish to protest publicly the undemocratic manner in which the current community hearings of the commission to study the county government recently appointed by Fairfax County Board of Supervisors are being conducted. My husband and I attended the meeting held for Providence District residents on June 26, in Oakton School. When we entered a paper was given to each person. We were instructed to write down whatever we should like to speak about. Since I am a trained social worker, I chose the subjects "Juvenile Delinquency — Education System—Health Department."

As the evening progressed, it became clear that the chairman was allowing certain persons to do most of the speaking. Also, the persons speaking either advocated the county manager form of government provided for in the optional forms act of the Code of Virginia or opposed this proposal. Several opponents were called for every proponent.

Finally a woman was called upon to talk on "What Is Wrong With Our Present System?" After she stated that she saw nothing wrong, she asked it as a question. Seeing my opportunity, I arose to answer. The chairman recognized me but sought to impose a three-minute limit. Audience feeling won me the right to speak at last, for 10 minutes, if I chose. I am enraged that a citizen in our country should have to undergo such an experience. Surely this commission will accomplish very little of constructive value.

"Straw Man Veto"

I have read with interest your July 5 editorial, "Straw Man Veto."

In addition to the points which you make, it is perfectly obvious that the President was not properly informed as to the Hatch Act amendments. One of the reasons given for his veto was that the amendments would have permitted Federal employes in nearby areas to participate in local partisan politics which the President opposed unless this right was given on a Nation-wide scale.

Apparently the President completely overlooked the fact that the existing law permits this participation and his veto does not change the situation. Section 16 of the 1940 Act provides:

"Whenever the United States Civil Service Commission determines that, by reason of special or unusual circumstances which exist in any municipality or other political subdivision, in the immediate vicinity of the National Capital in the States of Maryland and Virginia or in municipalities the majority of whose voters are employed by the Government of the United States, it is in the domestic interest of persons to whom the provisions of this act are applicable, and who reside in such municipality or political subdivision, the commission is authorized to promulgate regulations permitting such persons to take active part in such political management and political campaigns to the extent the commission deems to be in the domestic interest of such persons."

The bill which the President vetoed struck out that portion reading "to the extent the commission deems to be in the domestic interest of such persons" and added "—provided that no regulation promulgated under this section permitting any person to take part in political management or political campaigns shall impose any restriction on his doing so through the medium of any political organization or political party of his own choosing, including participation as an individual, candidate, or meetings sponsored by a political organization or political party of any such political organizations or political parties.—"

In other words, it simply amended the present act, which is limited to the immediate vicinity of the National Capital, to require the Civil Service Commission, if it promulgates rules and regulations, not to discriminate against the political parties, giving to the Federal employe the freedom of choice.

In regard to the requirement in the party plan that persons participating in the primary be required to support candidates beyond the local level, I might point out that the Democratic Committee of Arlington County, in anticipation of favorable action on the amendment, modified the party oath in connection with primaries to be held this summer.

You are, in my opinion, correct in your approach, namely that the restrictions set forth in the Hatch Act limiting participation beyond the local level would have been the easiest way to meet the situation. When it is considered that objection to the party plan applies only to the Democratic Party of Virginia and does not include the Republican Party or either party in Maryland, the basis for the veto is without merit.

It is unfortunate that a small political group in Arlington who seek political power, through misinformation have deprived thousands of Government employes from full participation in local government by permitting them to exercise their freedom of choice to affiliate with one of the recognized political parties or participate as independents. As it is now, they must affiliate with a third political party or remain inactive as Democrats or Republicans.

Korea As A U.N. Chore

By Marquis Childs

British Position

A HEADLINE that might have seemed innocent enough to the ordinary reader sent temperatures soaring in the Pentagon in spite of the excellent air-cooling system. That headline illustrates one of the danger points of the spreading war in Korea.

It was based on a story out of Hongkong reporting the belief of a "diplomatic observer" that the Soviet Union was preparing a new surprise blow "against the United States." This obviously came from someone of high authority and, in the Pentagon, it was assumed that it came from a British official of that British colony.

What caused the indignation in the Pentagon was the assumption that the new blow was to be aimed not at the United Nations, not at the Western powers, including Great Britain, but at America alone. It underscored the latent fear that the Korean war will become an American war with all the fighting left to American troops.

Pentagon officials pointed out that the British do have troops stationed in Hongkong, and those troops could be quickly dispatched to Korea. Or, at any rate, token troops could be sent so that the international nature of the effort to repel the Communist invasion could be made clear to the world.

ALL THIS illustrates the ticklish and difficult position of the Western powers in Asia. The British have been clinging to their toe hold in Hong Kong with the hope that some of their former trade with the great land mass of China could eventually be restored. Naturally they would also like to keep their rich trading colony of Hongkong as long as possible.

That was one reason they offered recognition to the Chinese Communist government of Mao Tse-tung. That offer has been ignored by the Red regime, leaving the British in a somewhat embarrassing, hat-in-hand stance on the doorstep.

The impending blow predicted by the diplomatic observer in Hongkong was the movement of Chinese Communist troops into North Korea where they would join Korean Communists in fighting American troops. The Chinese would have to move only a few hundred miles across a land frontier. By contrast, American troops in any numbers must be moved thousands of miles across the Pacific.

For the United States it could prove the kind of costly, wasting, long drawn out operation that military men dread. Chinese troops, with years of guerilla experience in China's civil war, are available by the millions. With Russian arms they could prolong the Korean war indefinitely, at a heavy cost to America in blood and treasure.

THIS MAY help to explain why Pentagon tempers soared at the intimation that the United States alone would carry the burden. It happens, of course, that planes from the British aircraft carrier Triumph were participating with American planes from the Valley Forge in a strike on the Korean Capital of Pyongyang, according to a headline on the same front page.

This is in accord with the commitment made by the British to support the U. N. resolution on Communist aggression in South Korea. The number of British troops in Hong Kong is believed to be small, and the British say they are necessary to keep order.

That necessity would be very great if Communist China were to use British participation in the Korean "episode" as an excuse to try to grab Hongkong. It could happen. Some of the best informed observers here believe it is likely to happen.

In view of the extremely dangerous position of the Western powers in the Pacific, with their resources of strength stretched almost to the breaking point, two points should be kept constantly in mind. First, it must never be lost sight of that this is a United Nations effort, and each country supporting the resolution should have some part in the effort. Not nearly enough has been done to make world opinion aware of that fact.

Second, the differences between America and Great Britain over Red China should be frankly recognized, and reconciled with all honesty and realism. To do less than that will merely permit the deterioration of relations with an all-important ally. Already there have been rumors from London of a revolt in the Labor Party among those who feel the U. N. action on Korea was taken illegally. The free world today must stand together with all possible unity if it is to save itself.

Collective Defense

The attack on the South Korean government by the North Korean government, which is a puppet and satellite of the Russian Soviet dictatorship, makes one thing perfectly clear. As long as one-party totalitarian dictatorships exist, no country is safe from attack.

For a totalitarian dictatorship is a perfect setup for aggression since the ordinary person in a dictatorship has no way to express politically his antagonism to war and aggression. The only way to stop such aggression is a definite agreement among all the countries where political democracy exists to stand together.

Otherwise the dictatorship—Russia, in this case—grows stronger and stronger by attack and conquering other nations one by one.

Korea Moral: Time For Federal Union

By Clarence K. Streit

Editor, Freedom and Union

ONCE AGAIN President Truman has chosen the courageous course. He deserves the heartfelt applause of all who cherish individual freedom. He also deserves their prayers that this time he may have the wisdom—and greater courage—that are needed to win a decision, not just another round.

For many years now a "still small voice"—as Time put it—has warned with ever-rising strength that there is but one way to win enduring peace. That is for us to honor our own principles of liberty and federation by leading the democracies into a great Atlantic union of free men, as the nucleus of an eventual world federal republic.

Now Canada has given the lead that our own Federal Union should have given long ago. With only one dissenting voice, the Senate at Ottawa, after much debate, has passed Senator Euler's history-making resolution, calling for a convention of the seven sponsors of the North Atlantic Treaty to explore how far they can apply among them, within the framework of the United Nations, the principles of federal union.

THE RESOLUTION is practically the same as the one introduced in Congress, July 26, by Senator Kefauver with 19 other Senators, and by Representatives Boggs, Cliff Davis, Judd, Smathers and Wadsworth.

There is only this significant difference. Instead of the United States inviting Canada, Britain, France, Belgium, The Netherlands and Luxembourg to the convention, Canada would invite us and them to the convention. But the resolution leaves the door wide open for the United States to act as cohost with Canada, and Senator Euler has expressed the ardent hope that the United States will do this.

We cannot rebuff this friendly, neighborly nudge in an hour of peril, this invitation to return to our greatest days, and begin uniting democratic nations on the Federal foundation by which our forefathers first united democratic States.

On June 26, a few days before Canada acted, Will Clayton, vice president of the Atlantic Union Committee which Justice Roberts heads, and former Undersecretary of State, telegraphed President Truman. He urged him to answer the Kremlin's Korean move by making this Atlantic union move.

Congress, by speeding the Atlantic union resolution through, can hearten free men everywhere with the spectacle of the United States and Canada leading together,—both Federal union sponsors of the Atlantic Pact inviting their European cosponsors to explore with them federation of the free. The New World bidding the Old to join in building the truly New World that men too long have merely dreamed of building—What a sight for tired eyes!

LET US fool ourselves no longer. So far, we have not been winning enduring peace, but merely time, merely months. Each bold act the President has taken has left us facing a still more dangerous choice hardly more than a year later.

In 1947 we faced a threat that we could check by nonmilitary aid. In 1948-49 came a threat that we needed our own airpower to check—but could check without bloodshed. And now in 1950 has come the threat that we are trying at present to check by waging war—"police" war—against a puppet. At this rate, the next threat will leave us, by 1952, engaged in world war, with our own country a bombing target.

We are losing, not winning the peace. To win it we need the greater wisdom, the greater courage that our forefathers showed when they constituted the first Union of the Free.

EXAMINE the record more closely.

President Truman chose the courageous course when the Kremlin threatened Greece and Turkey in 1947. Impressive success was his reward. The country and the Congress followed him—the people and the politicians who, cautious counselors had said, were not ripe for daring action. Stalin rocked back on his heels. Italy, France, all western Europe took new heart. The time favored striking decisively at the root of the danger. What was it used for? The Marshall Plan. That plan was put forward, and hailed by many, as a decisive blow. Some of us then warned that, with all its obvious merits, it was only another stopgap. Events have proved this true.

Soon the Kremlin faced us with a still more dangerous choice by blockading our part of Berlin. Again President Truman chose the courageous course. Again astonishing success rewarded courage. Again the time favored striking a decisive blow. And again the President listened to the cowardly counselors who have no confidence in the common sense and courage of their countrymen. Again the time was used for another "pull-the-punch" blow—the Atlantic alliance.

Thus we have reeled from crisis from threat of war to war itself.

Korea now . . . Kansas when? Let us fool away no more irretrievable time. The free cannot federate too soon.

'World Citizens' On Farm Launch Hunger Strike

Glen Gardner, N. J., July 6 (AP)—A 17-acre New Jersey farm was designated today as the first "world's citizens community," and its 19 inhabitants launched a hunger strike to protest the Korean war.

The cooperative farm group in the hills of Hunterdon County about 50 miles from New York City isolated itself from the rest of the United States and announced it was "renouncing nationalistic ties."

Included in the cooperative are 13 adults and six children, all but one of them under 35 years of age.

The group assembled here after World War II and lists itself as a pacifist organization with world citizen Gary Davis as its honorary leader.

They designated a two-week period for a hunger strike by five members selected as "best able" to carry on the fast.

Betty Dellinger, mother of four children, said the hunger strike was intended to arouse the world to demand that "all sides cease fire and submit to mediation" in the Korean dispute.

Senators to Ask Data on Military Forces Available

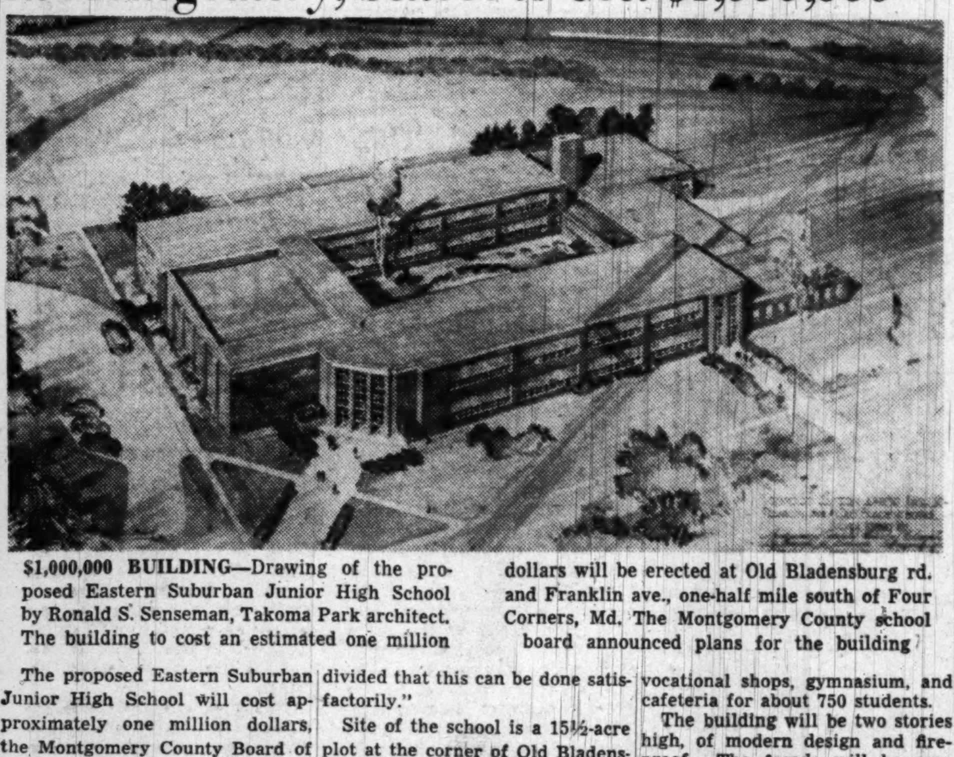
The Senate Armed Services Committee wants "all the facts" on United States military forces and supplies available in Korea, Japan and Europe. Gen. Omar Bradley, chairman of the joint chiefs of staff, was invited to give the Senators that information next Tuesday.

Senator Morse (R., Ore.), a member of the group, said it should be ascertained "why we find ourselves in Korea without adequate equipment and supplies." Senator Knowland (R., Calif.) proposed that the committee set up a "watch-dog check" on such essentials for the successful conduct of the fighting.

Fall River, Mass., July 6 (AP).—House Minority Leader Joseph W. Martin, jr. (R., Mass.) today criticized what he called "our lack of preparedness in the Far East."

In an address last night at a closed meeting of the John Foster Stafford American Legion Post he said "more weapons of defense could have been shipped to Southern Korea and China when it became clearly apparent that the Red tide was bent on engulfing all of Asia."

Bids Due July 20 on Suburban Jr. High In Montgomery; School to Cost $1,000,000



$1,000,000 BUILDING—Drawing of the proposed Eastern Suburban Junior High School by Ronald S. Senseman, Takoma Park architect. The building to cost an estimated one million dollars will be erected at Old Bladensburg rd. and Franklin ave., one-half mile south of Four Corners, Md. The Montgomery County school board announced plans for the building

The proposed Eastern Suburban Junior High School will cost approximately one million dollars, the Montgomery County Board of Education announced yesterday.

Bids will be due July 20.

The board said the building "will be used in part temporarily for elementary classes, and is so divided that this can be done satisfactorily."

Site of the school is a 15½-acre plot at the corner of Old Bladensburg rd. and Franklin ave., a half-mile south of Four Corners, Md.

Plans drawn by Architect Ronald S. Senseman of Takoma Park call for 30 classrooms, a library, vocational shops, gymnasium, and cafeteria for about 750 students.

The building will be two stories high, of modern design and fireproof. The facade will be rose brick, trimmed in limestone.

Lights will be strip fluorescent throughout. Walls and corridors will be tile, with floors in asphalt tile and terrazo.

Matter Of Fact

By Joseph and Stewart Alsop

The Republican Party-Liners

"THEY RING the bells now," remarked Sir Robert Walpole when England went to war with Spain in 1739; "but they will soon be wringing their hands." The first elation, engendered by President Truman's decision to meet the Korean challenge, is passing already. Everywhere in America people are beginning to realize that we are fearfully weak and most dangerously situated.

It is fortunate this awakening has come so soon, when we still have time to save ourselves. But it is also urgent to find out where we have gone wrong, and to correct our errors with the utmost ruthlessness. This, then, is the first part of an inquest into these errors.

Basically, there has been only one, single, all-embracing error. In the years since the end of the second war, we have been the leaders of the West in an effort to contain and drive back Soviet imperialism. In the course of this effort, great measures have been launched, great sums have been expended. Even so, however, not half enough has been done.

"Conditions of strength," political, economic and, above all, strategic, have not been created. For this reason, and for this reason only, the masters of the Kremlin have dared to embark upon their Korean adventure, and American troops are now fighting upon Korean soil.

IN THE MAIN, this failure must be attributed, as will be shown later, to faults of leadership of the Truman Administration in the last two years. In fairness, however, it must be remembered that every Administration works in the climate created by the political opposition. Therefore it is appropriate, in this first part of our inquest, to look at the Republican record.

The record rather startlingly shows that the most typical congressional Republicans have been voting the straight Communist Party line, or something very close to it, during all these last crucial years.

Of course, Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg and others who have followed his superb leadership, such as Senator Henry Cabot Lodge of Massachusetts, have made as great contributions as did Robert A. Lovett or James V. Forrestal. But take the votes of Representative Vito Marcantonio as representing the Communist Party line. Then take the votes of the acknowledged Republican chieftain, Senator Robert A. Taft, the party floor leader, Senator Kenneth Wherry, and a typical rank and filer, Senator James P. Kem.

Lay the votes of Marcantonio side by side with the votes of these representatives of the dominant right-wing Republican group. You then discover that whenever containing Soviet imperialism has been the issue, there has been hardly a penny to choose between the simon-pure party-liner Congressman of the American Labor Party and the three Republican Senators who are so prone to find "Communists" all around us.

IF ONE can give a score, taking Marcantonio as 100, Senator Robert A. Taft gets a mark of 85 percent party-liner. Senator Wherry and Senator Kem do even better, making the same 100 percent score as Marcantonio himself.

The basis for this computation is simple. The test measures taken are the obvious ones: the Greek-Turkish aid bill; the interim aid bill; the Marshall Plan; the Atlantic Pact; the Point Four program, and the military aid program. The averages are weighted to allow for the familiar legislative practice of attacking on any controversial measure from the flank, with a crippling amendment. Because votes on such amendments are invariably more important than final votes, they have been given double weight.

Even without weighting the average, Senator Taft would still score above 77 percent, for although he voted for Greek-Turkish aid and the Marshall Plan in the final nose-counts, he has an absolutely perfect score, equal to Marcantonio, on the other seven votes making up the list. It is also interesting to note that many of the actual arguments employed by Marcantonio, the Daily Worker and the wretched Henry A. Wallace have also been used by Senators Taft, Wherry and Kem.

THE TONE has been different. Yet both groups have bellowed for economy with equal fervor, and have pointed, with equal alarm, to the heavy fiscal burden imposed by the attempt to contain the Soviets. Senator Taft, moreover, in his attack on the Atlantic Pact and military aid, almost indorsed the Kremlin contention that we are being "provocative" by aiding free nations to defend themselves. This publicly delighted the Daily Worker.

What does all this mean? It means, very simply, that a large, and extremely influential group in American politics has flatly refused to recognize the grim facts of life in the postwar world. The measures Taft, Wherry and Kem opposed have passed without exception. But they and the others like them have held back, and limited, and weakened the American effort to contain the Soviets, nonetheless. We must understand this clearly, because the time for all-out effort has now come, beyond any possibility of doubt.

McCarthy Again Blasts State Dept.

Senator Joseph R. McCarthy (R., Wis.) said yesterday the "disaster" in Korea lies the the "murderous incompetence of Communists, fellow travelers, dupes and traitors" in the State Department.

In another Senate speech demanding the ouster of Secretary of State Dean Acheson, he again lashed out at Ambasador-at-large Philip C. Jessup and Far Eastern expert Owen Lattimore, whom he had tagged as pro-Communist.

He said Acheson should be fired because he "vetoed and sabotaged" congressional efforts to establish a stronger U. S. Far Eastern policy. This was akin to statements made recently by GOP Senators Robert A. Taft (Ohio) and Kenneth S. Wherry (Nebr.).

State Department press officer Lincoln White promptly labeled McCarthy's new attack "as baseless as the dismal parade of distortions of fact that have gone before it."

He said Acheson had called for "steadiness and sober talk" in the present crisis. . . . The American Government and people responded, he added, except for the "one sour note" from McCarthy.

McCarthy's blast came as Senate Communist investigators prepared to meet today to draft a report on his original Red charges against the State Department. They faced the all-but-hopeless task of writing a report satisfactory to both Democratic and Republican committee members.

There have been unconfirmed rumors the Democrats will hand McCarthy a stinging rebuke for his tactics in the stormy four-month-old inquiry. The Republican committeemen are expected to refuse to indorse it and may file a dissent.

He signaled out The Washington Post for criticism because of an editorial he interpreted as accusing the University of California of injuring the war effort by discharging 137 instructors who refused to sign non-Communist affidavits.

The Washington Post, he said, is Washington's "Local Daily Worker," a reference to the New York Communist Daily Worker.

Sarnoff Asks 200 Million for Propaganda

David Sarnoff told Senators yesterday the United States should build a ring of powerful radio stations about Russia and other "Iron Curtain countries" for a round-the-clock battle against Communist propaganda.

Sarnoff, radio executive and brigadier general during the last war, testified before a Foreign Relations subcommittee.

It is considering a resolution by Senator Benton (D., Conn.) and a dozen other Senators favoring a greatly expanded program for the "Voice of America and related activities."

Sarnoff rated broadcasting as the best way of "reaching the largest numbers most rapidly." He estimated that the "worldwide network system" around Iron Curtain countries would cost about 200 million dollars.

"This is no more than the price of two modern battleships," he said.

Sarnoff, now chairman of the board of Radio Corporation of America, testified that he originated the plan for United States Government broadcasts beamed to foreign nations "and called it 'the voice of America'."

He said he pushed the the idea with the late President Roosevelt in 1938 and again in 1943 until it was accepted by Government leaders.

Sarnoff said Russia still leads the world in international broadcasting while the United States ranks last behind Russia, England and France.

The Russians have "four times as many hours of broadcasting as we do," Sarnoff said, adding.

"It is tragic that the United States is so far behind Russia in the use of this modern method of battling for the minds of men."

Sarnoff said this country should have both medium wave and short-wave stations with high power in Greece, Arabia, Iran, India, Pakistan, the Phillipines and Japan and possibly Okinawa.

Guns Steal Show at Concert

river with surprise, but they might be forgiven if they had. The guns went off with a precision that was a credit to the best artillery forces in the world. The cannoneers were given their signals directly from two musicians, who followed scores, and who also kept an eye on Conductor Mitchell.

Yep—it was loud, it was purty, and it was full of fun.

Terrific Technique

As we have intimated, the wild goings-on were not confined to the final number. Earl Wild, as soloist, played the familiar concerto with terrific glitter and technique. There were spots in the first movement that were too brittle, because of pedaling. But the middle section sang gently, and the finale were propertly rousing.

Had Wild had a piano more to his usual choice, he might have found further moments for felicity in the first movement. He was encored, and played Chopin's Minute Waltz—on an all-Tschaikowsky program! Tsk!

He was also presented with one of the silver medals being given to all the Watergate soloists. We suggest the gunners should be sent silver medals too. They were the loudest soloists ever heard at the Watergate, and their range exceeded that of the most high powered soprano. Furthermore, their timing was better than that of many prominent musicians who have appeared here. Five medals, please, commissioners!

Unusual Delicacy

Mitchell played the fifth symphony with unusual delicacy. It was a thoroughly beautiful performance, winning shouts long before the shouting stage might be expected.

The amplification was almost perfect—certainly the best to date at the Watergate. The horns and bassoons were a bit subdued but otherwise, everything sounded excellent.

Tonight: Alec Templeton in the Grieg Concerto, and his own improvisations.

Last word on the 1812 Overture: Seeing our managing editor after the shooting, we rushed over to get his reaction. His comment: "At last I have found a musical instrument I can play."

Charges Are Dropped In Desertion Case

Desertion charges filed against Mrs. Hallie Mae Cobb, who disappeared from her Accokeek, Md., home last May 4, by her husband, Jesse, have been dropped by Prince Georges County authorities, it was learned yesterday.

The charges were nolle prossed by State's Attorney A. Gwynn Bowie after Cobb stated he did not wish to prosecute.

Mrs. Cobb returned home June 5, three weeks after her husband shot himself in the chest and hand in an admitted attempt to commit suicide because "my wife is gone and it's too much for me." The Cobbs have six children.

Body Is Identified As That of Pilot

Ocean City, Md., July 6 (AP).—A body pulled out of the Atlantic Ocean 19 miles offshore yesterday has been identified as that of James Robert Trotter, 32, who disappeared last week from a plane flying from Newark, N. J., to Miami.

Trotter, a veteran pilot who formerly lived in Baltimore, was riding as a passenger to his home at Miami Springs, Fla. Apparently a cargo door became unfastened during the flight and he was sucked out into the air at 8000 feet while trying to secure it.

The Short Dress scores another fashion triumph

"Short for dinner" has become an accepted fashion rule, observed in the very best circles. Here is one charming reason for its popularity . . . cocoa brown rayon chiffon with a quite bare-looking lace bodice sheltered (transparently) by a chiffon overblouse that ties at the waist.

Also in black chiffon. . . . .

Next Director of Girl Scouts Will Be Washington Woman

Mrs. Rittenhouse

Miss Stratton

Mrs. Paul Rittenhouse, national executive director of the Girl Scouts of America, is to retire from office at the end of this year. She will be succeeded by Miss Dorothy C. Stratton of Washington, former director of the SPARS and now personnel director of the International Monetary Fund.

Announcement of the change came yesterday from the Girl Scouts' New York office. Mrs. C. Vaughan Ferguson, the organization's national president, said Girl Scout membership increased from 347,006 to 1,585,759 during the 15 years Mrs. Rittenhouse was in office.

Miss Stratton, who lives at 3512 Hawick ct., Kensington, Md., has served with the IMF since 1947. From 1942 to 1946 she was director of the SPARS.

A native of Brookfield, Mo., she also has served as psychology professor and dean of women at Purdue University, Ottawa, Kans., and as a high school teacher.

Mrs. Rittenhouse formerly was associated with the National League of Women Voters.

Scouts End Jamboree

Valley Forge, Pa., July 6 (U.P.). The strains of "Auld Lang Syne" rang out among the hills of Valley Forge Park tonight as 47,000 Boy Scouts joined in a chorus that marked the end of their second national jamboree.

Keyed on a note of world brotherhood, the closing ceremony was held in the vast amphitheater on the Grand Parade Ground, which marks the spot where George Washington and his Continental Army spent a bitter winter during the Revolution.

When the last strains of the song died out, the first detachment of 5000 Scouts boarded trains for home. They included Scouts from Alaska, the Pacific Northwest and the Southwest.

The remainder will leave Friday, but most will make trips to New York City, Chicago and Washington, D. C., before returning home.

Meanwhile, camp authorities reported that two Scouts hospitalized with "mild" cases of polio were responding well to treatment and that no other illness was uncovered. General health of the boys was described as "excellent."

In Phoenix, Ariz., a 15-year-old Scout lost a race with death as he flew across country to be at the side of his critically ill, 10-year-old sister.

James Forster was summoned from the Scout Jamboree yesterday when his sister, Karen, ill with a heart and liver ailment, suddenly became worse.

Shortly after his parents, Dr. and Mrs. Wesley Forster, notified the boy, Karen died. They greeted him at the airport today and then Mrs. Forster broke down in tears. James bowed his head on his mother's shoulder.

DON'T LET THIS HAPPEN HERE!

If You Allow Your Milk Supply To Be Put Into The Hands Of A MONOPOLY, You Are Inviting An Increase In The Price Of Washington's Milk!

WAKE UP, WASHINGTON!

Unless you register your immediate and violent disapproval, the District Commissioners may, on next Monday morning, put Washington's entire milk supply into the hands of ". . . a group of farmers who have squeezed the family milk bill for every penny it would yield." (Quotations are from an editorial in the Washington Daily News, June 23, 1950.)

WHO ARE "THEY"? These farmers, who already enjoy an 85% Monopoly, are banded together in a group called "The Maryland-Virginia Milk Producers' Association."

THEY ARE THE VERY SAME PEOPLE who have been bombarding you with advertisements showing a pitiful little baby pleading to have his milk "protected."

THE ONLY "PROTECTION" THEY WANT is an extension of the Monopoly . . . the Monopoly that has made Washington's milk among the Nation's highest priced!

DON'T BE FOOLED by such poppy-cock! The present standards of milk purity in Washington are no higher than in 32 States operating under the U. S. Public Health Service Milk Code!

THE TRUTH IS SIMPLY that the Association . . . the 85% Monopoly . . . wants to keep any farmer from supplying you with milk who does not conform to a law written 25 years ago, and considered obsolete by leading sanitation authorities!

THIS TALK ABOUT "STERILIZATION" is nothing but a feint. You can put as much confidence in the Association's pious claims to special "protection against bacteria" as you can in their "concern" for your "welfare."

THE PRESENT WASHINGTON MILK CODE, which was written 25 years ago, before the day of modern sterilization methods, among other things requires that all milk containers be sterilized in live steam.

THAT'S LIKE REQUIRING ALL WASHINGTON MOTORISTS TO START THEIR CARS WITH OLD-FASHIONED HAND CRANKS!

Modern chemical sterilization is faster, more positive and cheaper than sterilization with live steam!

THE SAME DISTRICT LAWS that require farmers to sterilize their milk cans with live steam permit the dairies that process this milk to sterilize with modern chemicals!

THE SAME DISTRICT LAWS that require farmers to sterilize their milk cans with live steam permit restaurants to sterilize drinking glasses and dishes with modern chemicals!

IF THE ASSOCIATION WERE SINCERELY CONVINCED THAT LIVE STEAM IS SUPERIOR TO MODERN CHEMICALS, IT WOULD DEMAND LAWS REQUIRING DAIRIES TO STERILIZE THEIR EQUIPMENT WITH LIVE STEAM, TOO!

DON'T LET THEM FOOL YOU! All the Association wants is to close the doors in Washington to all but their own members!

THE ASSOCIATION DOESN'T WELCOME COMPETITION from modern farmers using fast, safe, low-cost sterilizing methods!

SO THEY SHOW YOU PICTURES OF BABIES crying for "protection"! They send persuasive men and women around to talk to church and social groups for the sole purpose of enlisting help to make their Monopoly 100% . . . instead of just 85%, as it is today!

DO YOU KNOW WHAT USUALLY HAPPENS when a 100% Monopoly gets its greedy hands on a commodity . . . whether it is milk, beef, power or tennis balls? THEY CAN RAISE PRICES AS HIGH AS THEY WISH, WITH NO DANGER OF COMPETITION!

YOUR MILK PRICES are already among the highest in America. DO YOU WANT THEM TO GO HIGHER?

ARE YOUR FRIENDS AND RELATIVES IN NEARBY MARYLAND "2ND CLASS CITIZENS"?

The Md.-Va. Milk Producers' Ass'n Must Believe So . . . Here Are The Facts. Read The Truth!

Right now, the Association (the 85% Monopoly) sells thousands of gallons of milk daily to an Independent dairy located in nearby Maryland.

Although this milk meets the standards of the U. S. Public Health Service, it does not all come from farms using steam sterilization.

THIS IS THE IDENTICAL KIND OF MILK THAT THE ASSOCIATION IS NOW TRYING TO KEEP OUT OF WASHINGTON!

Is the Association trying to "protect" Washington's babies . . . at the expense of Maryland babies' health?

If the Association honestly believes that only steam sterilization is safe, why does it sponsor milk for sale in Maryland from farms not using steam?

Does the Association consider your friends and relatives in nearby Maryland "second class citizens?" Or is the pious plea for "more protection" just plain hypocrisy?

Who's trying to fool who?
Let your own common sense decide!

All Wakefield Dairy Milk meets U. S. Public Health Grade "A" Standards, or the Requirements of the District of Columbia Milk Code.

THE CRISIS IS HERE! THE DANGER IS NOW! YOU MUST ACT AT ONCE!

MONDAY WILL BE "KOREA" for everybody who buys or drinks milk in Washington. Unless you stand up to the 85% Monopoly and fight, you will be delivering your milk supply into the hands of a 100% Monopoly!

AFTER THAT, WHATEVER HAPPENS IS YOUR OWN FAULT!

If milk prices in Washington go up, you will have nobody to blame but yourself!

EXPECT NO MERCY FROM A 100% MONOPOLY!

YOU CAN FIGHT BACK 2 WAYS!

1. Go to the District Building Monday, July 10 at 11:00 a.m. and tell the District Commissioners in person that you want District milk put under the U. S. Public Health Service Code and out of the hands of the Monopoly!

2. Sign and mail the Coupon below RIGHT AWAY! An official of Wakefield Dairy, one of Washington's leading Independents, will take all coupons received to the Commissioners as evidence of a public revolt against Washington's greedy "Milk Barons."

Monday will be too late to mail the coupon!

DO IT NOW!

D. C. Nonchain Sales Rise, Led By Hard Goods

By S. Oliver Goodman

Washingtonians went strong on capital outlays in May, but cut down somewhat on ordinary expenses.

This was indicated yesterday in a Census Bureau report on independent retail sales here. The things that cost the most money showed the biggest sales gains in May. The over-all increase for the month was 3 percent, as compared with the same 1949 period.

Building materials led the way with an upsurge of 25 percent. This reflected the current boom in construction and improvements. Auto sales gained 15 percent and furniture displayed an upturn of 3 percent. Gas stations, fuel dealers and liquor stores also showed increases.

On the other hand, ordinary soft goods items as family clothing, shoes, jewelry, food, restaurants, women's apparel and such all were reported lower for the month.

A similar trend was shown in the five-month period. The over-all gain was 2 percent. Hard goods led on the upside, while soft goods were generally down.

Here are the comparisons for nonchain Washington retail sales for May and the five-month period, as contrasted with a year ago:

Adm. T. J. Kelly Named To High Socony Post

New York, July 6 (AP).—Rear Admiral Thomas J. Kelly, U. S. Navy (retired), has been named assistant to the chairman of Socony-Vacuum Oil Co.

Admiral Kelly who, retired from the Navy after 33 years' service, was a roustabout in the oil fields in his early youth. He was graduated from the Naval Academy in 1920 and also is a graduate petroleum engineer from the University of Pittsburgh.

During World War II he commanded the cruiser Springfield in the Okinawa and Japanese campaigns and was twice decorated for valor. He recently completed four years' duty with the Office of the Chief of Naval Operations.

List Continues Mild Recovery In Low Gear

New York, July 6 (AP).—A mild-mannered rally in the stock market got through its second day in a row today.

Gains were small but widespread. Most issues moved up less than $1 a share, only a few topping that figure. The advance was labored, painfully so at times.

Pressure on either side of the market was never very strong but toward the close demand faded away and prices closed below their best levels.

WHAT STOCKS DID	Thurs.	Wed.

Today's improvement was a follow-through to yesterday's rise which was also a low-gear job.

Traders generally kept their commitments low as they waited for a final, or semifinal, solution to the Korean hostilities. Day-to-day reports on the fighting appeared to have little if any effect on price trends.

Business was again skimpy but a trifle above yesterday's total. Sales of 1,570,000 shares compared with 1,400,000 Wednesday.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks advanced .4 of one point to 74.2. As a group rails were strongest, followed by industrials and utilities in that order.

Of the 15 most active issues, only one declined—Northern States Power lost ⅛ at 10½.

Willys - Overland occupied the rather rare position of No. 1 on the most active list. The price bounded up ¾ to 7 on top of Wednesday's gain of ⅜. Demand was sparked by news the company had received a whopping Army order.

General Motors was a strong spot with a gain of 1⅛ at 88½. Chrysler had trouble getting ahead off and on but ended ¼ higher at 71. Studebaker at 30¼ and Packard at 3½ were up small fractions.

U. S. Steel, second most active issue, added ¼ at 33¼. Bethlehem and Youngstown Sheet also edged up but Republic remained at 35⅜.

New York Cotton

New York, July 6 (AP).—Cotton futures closed 25 cents a bale higher to 25 cents lower today in quiet dealings. Many traders took to side lines, pending more decisive developments in the Korean situation and announcement of the Government cotton acreage forecast.

The Government report will be issued next Monday at 11 a. m., Eastern Daylight Time, instead of July 8 as previously reported. Previous close.

30-Inch Tube Is New Record For Video Sets

New York, July 6 (AP).—The Allen B. DuMont Laboratories, Inc., today introduced new 1951 model television receivers featuring a concentration on large tubes.

The 17-inch tube is the minimum size. The 19-incher is used in the more expensive models.

The king-size "Club" receiver uses a 30-inch tube with a viewing area of 536 square inches. That's the largest direct view television receiver ever placed on the market. It has four times the area of a 15-inch tube but its length is less than its diameter. Delivery is scheduled for fall at an undetermined price.

Prices on other models are from $250 to $1500. One of the higher priced models includes a clock to select programs and turn them on and off automatically.

Chevrolet Sets Record For 6-Month Output

Cincinnati, July 6 (AP)—Chevrolet Motors completed another million motor vehicles today.

The 24 millionth vehicle to be built by the world's biggest automobile maker rolled off the assembly lines this afternoon at Chevrolet's Norwood plant near Cincinnati.

Assembly of the 24 millionth unit by Chevrolet follows a record-breaking surge of production which saw the company build more cars in six months than any make in a comparative period in the history of the automobile industry.

WHY DIVERSIFY YOUR INVESTMENTS?

"A river fed by 100 streams is less likely to go dry than one with a single source."

And... an investor whose income flows from the profits of many corporations enjoys security that is impossible to a man whose fortunes rise or fall with a single enterprise.

Mutual Investment Companies offer every investor, large or small, the opportunity to broadly diversify his investments.

Business Outlook

Business in Financial Shape To Meet Economic Emergency

By J. A. Livingston

A COLUMNIST, even a writer on economics and finance, has responsibilities in a crisis. As soon as a dramatic, world-engulfing event takes place, such as the Korean war, everything he writes, at least for a fortnight or so, must be tied into it. That's called latching on to the thoughts uppermost in people's minds.

Yet, sometimes, it's pretty hard to observe the rules of the trade.

Livingston

Suppose, right now, a writer wanted to discuss the extraordinary financial strength of American corporations. He could hitch it to Korea, if he wanted to—by stretching. He could say that one reason American business men took the Far Eastern outbreak so calmly, one reason they didn't hasten to liquidate inventories and sell commodities, is that they were well-heeled with cash. Having a big bank account, they didn't panic.

Or you could say that United States corporations, having great gobs of cash and Government securities to fall back on, are in a position to turn quickly from civilian to war production, if need be. But, neither of those "tie-ins" can stand rigorous analysis.

In the first place, business men weren't the least bit inclined to liquidate inventories on the Korean news. On the contrary, they feared another outbreak of shortages. And being financially well-heeled, they were anxious to build up, not decrease, inventories. In the second place, business men don't expect to use their own funds to change over to munitions production. In the last war, the Government paid conversion expenses or built war plants.

NO, THE FACT will just have to stand by itself: American corporations today are in a stronger working capital position that in any time in history. According to the Securities & Exchange Commission, their current assets—assets corporations can realize on quickly—amounted to 124.8 billion dollars at the end of March. Cash on hand and Government securities together exceeded 40 billion dollars. Current liabilities amounted to only 55.8 billion dollars.

Net working capital—quick assets corporations would have left after paying off all current liabilities—came to 69 billion dollars, three billion more than at the end of March 1949 and more than twice the amount on hand December 31, 1941, just after Pearl Harbor. Then net working capital totaled 32.3 billion dollars.

The significant point is this: Here we are in a boom, and corporations, instead of going into debt, are more liquid than ever. What a contrast with 1941 through 1948. Then notes and amounts payable rose from 25.6 to 37.1 billion dollars. But during 1949, as business dropped, debts and bank loans were reduced.

That helps to explain the present boom. Corporations have not had to scrounge around for funds whenever they have wanted to expand plant, buy new equipment, or recondition buildings. For the most part, they've had their own resources, or they've been able to sell securities.

AFTER the 1949 readjustment, new construction undertakings picked up much more rapidly than businessmen, themselves, had expected—in their own reports to the SEC and Department of Commerce investigators. As soon as fear of a depression subsided, corporation executives pulled out blueprints and went ahead with plans. Money was no problem.

Yet despite heavy expenditures on fixed assets, despite more liberal dividend policies in 1949, corporations can show $2.24 of net quick assets for each $1 of quick liabilities. In 1941 the best they could show was $1.80 to $1. Ditto in 1939.

The inference is that at the first suggestion of a downturn, banks and creditors won't begin crying for their money—forcing liquidation and curtailment of business activity. The economy is not as taut, financially, hence as subject to compulsory contraction, as in years past. That was proved by what happened in 1949.

RCA Victor Shows New Video Sets

Washington dealers last night previewed RCA Victor's new television and radio sets at the Statler Hotel.

The firm's first set with a 19-inch tube was among the 18 new TV models. The large tube is in the highest-priced receiver which also has two radio circuits and three record players. The price is around $700.

The company said 70 per cent of scheduled production will be in 16-inch tube television sets in 11 of the 18 new models. The lowest prices are on the 12½ inch tube sets at $160.

Southern Wholesalers Inc., local distributors, said the public display will be July 16.

Chicago Grain

Chicago, July 6 (AP).—Grains puttered along today in the slowest trading session since outbreak of hostilities in Korea, ending up with prices thoroughly scrambled.

There was nothing in the Korean news to indicate any nearby termination of hostilities. However, the impact of developments in that country on the grain market appeared to have worn off. The trade was getting back to more routine events.

To Women With Nagging Backache

As we get older, stress and strain, over-exertion, excessive smoking or exposure to cold sometimes slows down kidney function. This may lead many folks to complain of nagging backache, loss of pep and energy, headaches and dizziness. Getting up nights or frequent passages may result from minor bladder irritations due to cold, dampness or dietary indiscretions.

If your discomforts are due to these causes, don't wait, try Doan's Pills, a mild diuretic. Used successfully by millions for over 50 years. While these symptoms may often otherwise occur, it's amazing how many times Doan's give happy relief—help the 15 miles of kidney tubes and filters flush out waste. Get Doan's Pills today!

July 18 Meeting Will Take Up GI Exploitation

The citizens committee investigating charges of GI exploitation by private trade schools here will meet with the District Commissioners July 18 to discuss its findings.

The Commissioners created the committee last summer to look into complaints that 25 or so schools training veterans under the GI Bill of Rights are (1) turning out more graduates than the economy can absorb, and (2) failing to give adequate training.

In February Committee Chairman Leon Chatelain, jr., submitted a report which was not made public and which several committee members said they never saw. He recently submitted a supplementary report which also was kept secret. Charles Stofberg, special assistant to Commissioner John Russell Young, said copies of both reports will be sent to all committee members before the meeting.

Francis H. Russell, State Department director of public affairs, will be guest speaker at the 8 p. m. meeting today of the District Branch, United World Federalists, at the Phillips Memorial Gallery, 1600 21st st. nw.

Edgar Ansel Mowrer, branch chairman, will summarize the year's program and introduce Russell. The meeting is open to the public.

'Bumping' System Begun by Airlines As Standby Step

The airlines announced yesterday that a passenger "bumping" rule will go into effect today, but it will be mostly a standby measure.

Under this procedure, the airlines will be permitted to remove passengers or cancel reservations when space is needed for military or Government officials in connection with the Korean situation.

The action is being taken by the Air Transport Association, agency for the scheduled air carriers, with permission of the Civil Aeronautics Board.

An association official said that no inconvenience is expected since the airlines have been able to handle all demands for space, although extra sections have been necessary in some cases.

Marine Reserves In Beach Landing

Virginia Beach, Va., July 6 (AP).—More than 1250 organized Marine Corps reserves ending two weeks of basic amphibious training at the Little Creek naval amphibious base, made an assault landing today on the beach at Camp Pendleton.

The reservists, making up the second of four training increments receiving amphibious training here this summer, were opposed by a small "aggressor" force ashore.

No explosives were used and there was no air support as marines poured ashore in landing craft, and swept across the wide beach.

VACATIONS TOO SHORT?

Then turn your vacation expense into a lifelong investment of never-ending enjoyment. This weekend you can become the proud owner of a spaciously proportioned cottage site at spectacular Drum Point Beach for as little as $350! Less than the cost of an average vacation for the family. Drum Point Beach has caught the fancy of all Washington. Here, packed into one fabulous development, is everything imaginable to make life a year-round delight—including miles of white sandy beach for luxurious sun and salt water bathing; 4 fresh water lakes perfectly lovely for swimming, canoeing, picnicking; rich areas of forestry for refreshing cool breezes; a natural, protected harbor area for pleasure craft; best fishing waters anywhere—the Chesapeake Bay on one side, the Patuxent River on the other. Put an end to vacation headaches; come to Drum Point Beach, select your beautifully apportioned cottage site. Pay as little as $35 down (balance in small monthly payments)—and start living at last. Follow these easy directions: Out Bladensburg rd., past Peace Cross and on out to Landover rd., turn right on Route 202, through Upper Marlboro on Route 4 to Wells Corner, right on Route 416 through Prince Frederick for 15 miles, left at the sign to Drum Point Beach. It is estimated that approximately 150 million dollars eventually will be paid to them in additional pensions under the measure.

More than 20,000 persons covered by the new law live in this area.

The Civil Service Retirement Division is mailing out a detailed explanation of the bill to the three groups of persons who are covered by the act: They are:

1. An estimated 130,000 retirees who elected to take a $300 annual increase in their pensions as of April 1, 1948. Each will be told that he or she may now name his wife or her husband, as the case may be, for a monthly pension of about $50 in event of the death of the retiree. Survivorship rights can't be assigned to anyone except a wife or a husband.

2. About 23,000 retirees will get an increase in their annuities of either 25 per cent or $300, whichever is smaller. The boost will go into effect on September 1, and the retirees will get their first larger checks on October 1. These 23,000 persons elected to take survivorship benefits under the 1948 law which gave them their choice of the two benefits.

3. There are about 4000 widows and husbands of Federal workers who retired prior to April 1, 1948 and who have since died. They will be notified that they are now eligible, beginning September 1, for survivorship pensions of about $50 a month.

Liquor Goes 'Down the Hatch' At Gold Key Club—Literally

Charles Del Vecchio—The Washington Post

FLOWS LIKE WATER—Attorney Samuel C. Caldwell, court-appointed receiver for the Gold Key Club, once popular after hours spot, performs one of his court-ordered duties—dumping 500 bottles of liquor. It took him two hours to empty the bottles into the bartender's sink

A glum farewell to the "ousted forever" Gold Key Club.

Glum, at least, for those of the working press who stood drily by yesterday for two hours and watched the club's bar sink receive the club's barred drinks—bottle after bottle of them—and left to the resounding crash of bottles being broken, never to be used again.

Judge T. Alan Goldsborough it was who ordered the club's receiver, Samuel C. Caldwell, to bring about mass disposal of the liquid assets of the Gold Key Club, at 606 E st. nw.

A few reporters and an official observer—Assistant United States Attorney Bruce Sundlun—stood in the musty dustiness while Caldwell unlocked a closet stacked high with bottles.

Then they formed a human bottle chain, passing the bottles one last time to the bar where Caldwell poured — and poured — and poured—500 times.

Each bottle carried a label — "bottled in bond" and such like—and an owner's name. "Big Jim" had some stuff stashed away there, as did a number of prominent Washingtonians hereinafter nameless.

Although officials at the dreary ceremony said that Treasury Department tests found the liquor had been watered down, still the alcoholic fumes seemed strong enough, almost to— —well, not quite.

Next step in the denouement of the Gold Key Club will be an auction sale July 12 of its tables, chairs, decorations, bar and fixtures.

Juge Goldsborough, in addition to his "oust forever" order against the club, has agreed with the Governdent's charge that the club's charter was abused and misused and constituted a "fraud to violate D. C. liquor laws."

Zoning Board Appeal Voted By Church

Members of the Hyattsville Presbyterian Church, seeking to save an addition to their church held to violate zoning regulations, last night decided to take their case to the Board of Zoning Appeals.

The addition, for whcih a building permit had been issued by a Maryland National Capital Park and Planning Commission employe last November, extends to within 13 feet of the property line on 42d ave. at the southeast corner of the intersection with Farragut st.

Subsequently, the planning commission said the building line at that point is 25 feet behind the property line and sued to have the partially-built addition torn down. Prince Georges County Circuit Court Judge J. Dudley Digges agreed with the planning commission, but refused to order the structure razed until the church can petition the zoning appeals board.

Some members of the church have felt that to petition the board was futile because the County Commissioners appoint the board's members and the original complaint of the violation came from one of the commissioners, T. Hammond Welsh.

At last night's meeting it was also decided to send delegations to Governor Lane, who appoints members of the commission, and to United States Rep. Lansdale G. Sasscer "to keep him informed."

William E. Roll, chairman of the church's building council, said the zoning appeals board would be asked for a public hearing "and we will have a large representation there." The council met following a general meeting with elders, deacons, trustees and officers of the Women's Association of the church.

Roll also said petitions would be circulated asking support of the church's position.

Final Witness Testifies for Falls Church

Acquisition of additional territory by Falls Church is both "expedient and necessary," a municipal affairs expert declared in Fairfax Circuit Court yesterday.

Testifying as the final Falls Church witness in the city's annexation suit against Fairfax County, Dr. Thomas H. Reed told the three-judge court the annexation would be beneficial to Falls Church, to the territory it proposes to acquire and to Fairfax County.

Reed, of Wethersfield, Conn., took the stand for the second consecutive day in an effort to strengthen the city's case against the adjacent county. Cross-examination by attorneys for the county today will mark the opening of the defense phase of the suit.

Robert J. McCandlish, jr., engaged by the county to assist in defense of the suit, indicated yesterday a motion for dismissal would be filed today on completion of the cross-examination.

In his testimony yesterday, Reed said annexation is necessary for Falls Church because a city with its type of government could not function to best advantage within the limited territory it now has. The added services Falls Church would afford residents of the annexable zone would to be their advantage, even in the face of an increase in taxes, he testified.

Reed said he believed a tax increase for those property owners is inevitable even if the annexation fails, since the county itself has taken on recent heavy obligations for schools, sewers and other improvements.

Conceding that the county would lose valuable territory in the event of annexation, he said that Fairfax would be relieved of a large share of its school pupil load and the costs of providing police and fire protection to the densely populated area of 10.75 square miles.

Proceedings will resume today at 10:30 a. m.

2 Raceplayers Report They Were Held Up Leaving Laurel

Waterloo, Md., July 7 (AP).—State police said today two men have reported since last Friday that they were held up and robbed by a trio of thugs as they were leaving the harness races at nearby Laurel.

Records listed the victims as H. L. Scott, a railroad engineer from Washington, and Martin Burke, trotting horse owner and trainer from New York.

Police said Scott told them three men accosted him as he reached his car on the parking lot after the last race last Thursday night. The men forced him into another car, drove around, robbed him and dumped him out, he said. They took about $300, including $135 he had won on the races.

Burke said he was attacked Saturday night after getting into his car and driving about 30 feet. He had a flat tire and when he got out to see about it three men grabbed him.

He placed his loss at between $500 and $700 and had cuts on the eye and mouth when he reported to police.

The police report included no mention of drinking.

Detective Fined; Hit Neighbor

Struck Economist During Argument Stemming From Small Sons' Scuffle

A Washington detective was fined $250 and given an acid lecture by Magistrate Alan Bowie in Hyattsville Police Court yesterday after he was convicted of a fistic assault on a Greenbelt neighbor.

Although Pvt. William J. Zerwick, 37, is a plainclothesman, Magistrate Bowie did not let this fact cramp his rhetoric.

"Your brass buttons and uniform," he told Zerwick, "give you policemen no more rights than anyone else outside of your own jurisdiction."

Zerwick, who lives at 13-L Ridge rd., Greenbelt, was convicted of assaulting Samuel Gottesman, a Labor Department economist, who lives at 13-G Ridge rd., on June 24.

"Most Unjustifiable"

Terming the assault "most unjustifiable and brutal," Magistrate Bowie told Zerwick:

"You had no right to strike that man. You have been a policeman for eight and a half years and you should know that the law is the place to go to get a remedy.

"I'm going to disabuse you of the idea that you have more authority than anyone else here. You Washington police have no more authority than any other citizen here in Prince Georges County."

Magistrate Bowie threw out a cross-charge of assault and battery against Gottesman in which Zerwick alleged his four-year-old son, Terry, had been manhandled by the Government economist.

Intervened In Struggle

Testimony showed that Zerwick came to Gottesman's home after a scuffle between Terry and Gottesman's three-year-old son, Danny. Gottesman had intervened in the scuffle and, according to Mrs. Zerwick, had bruised Terry.

Gladstone Lewis of 13-M Ridge rd., who accompanied Zerwick to the Gottesman home, admitted that the detective struck the first blow but claimed Gottesman had "raised his hands first."

Medical evidence was introduced to show that Gottesman was knocked unconscious by a blow.

Zerwick announced he would appeal the conviction and last night Lieut. Lewis B. Peters, administrative assistant to Maj. Robert J. Barrett, superintendent of Metropolitan Police, said no official action against the detective is contemplated until the appeal is decided.

Husband Held On 2 Counts in Wife Shooting

The case of Archie T. Vann, who wounded his wife in the leg during a shooting spree Tuesday night, was continued yesterday until next Thursday in Municipal Court before Judge Walter Casey.

Vann, 20, of 2626 Garfield st. nw., has been charged with two counts of assault with a deadly weapon. His 21-year-old wife, Mrs. Grace Vann, is in satisfactory condition in Emergency Hospital.

Police said Vann fired 10 shots during a wild evening which began when he dragged his wife from an apartment, drove her to Sheridan Circle where he ran out of gas, forced a cab driver at gunpoint to take him and his wife as passengers, finally beat his wife over the head with the gun butt. shot her in the leg, and drove off to Rock Creek Park.

Bond has been continued at $2000.

3 Persons Hurt As Transit Bus Skids Into Tree

Three persons were injured at 11:20 a. m. yesterday when a Capital Transit bus skidded into a tree on Bladensburg rd. ne., just north of Mount Olivet rd.

Admitted to Casualty Hospital were Joyce Mothershead, 17, of 205 69th ave., Seat Pleasant, Md.; Joan Miller, 17, of 3113 35th st. ne., and Mrs. Winnie Collins, 46, of 5407 20th ave., Avondale, Md.

Gregory Sante, 22, of 3003 7th st. se., was driver of the bus.

Seven persons were injured, one seriously, in a three-car collision at Minnesota ave. and 16th st. se., about 6:30 o'clock last night.

Elizabeth Darling, 67, of 3418 42d ave., Brentwood, Md., suffered a fractured collarbone and ribs and was admitted to Casualty Hospital.

She was a passenger in a car driven by Charles A. Darling, 39. Darling and Catherine Darling, 32, were treated for cuts, as was James Battle, 30, of 630 Lamont st. nw., driver of another car.

Lewis Disney, 40, of 1618 R st. se., driver of the third car; Dorothy Moreland, 41, of 3253 23d st. se., and Harriet Disney, 10, of 1220 Holbrook pl. ne., passengers, were treated by a private physician.

Falls Church Man Hurt in Ditch Cave-in

Edward Jackson, 27, of RFD 1, Falls Church, suffered only minor cuts and bruises yesterday when he was buried in a 9-foot trench cave-in at 27th and Ohio sts., Arlington.

Frontier Scene Reenacted in Viers Mill Village As Pajama Posse Rounds Up Intruder Gang

By Harry Goodwin—The Washington Post

UP IN ARMS—These residents of Viers Mill Village took matters in their own hands and succeeded in rounding up a quartet of men they said were prowling about their neighborhood. The group (from left) Mrs. Martha Newell and Mrs. Mary Schulz of 4513 Sigsbee rd., Thomas Newell and Mrs. Newell of 4508 Sigsbee rd., Silver Spring, Md.

By Don Olesen
Post Reporter

WALTER SCHULZ, who drives a taxicab at night, didn't get to his Viers Mill Village home until about 2:10 a. m. yesterday.

Tired, he undressed, turned out the lights, and pulled up the window shade.

As he did it, Schulz, who lives at 4513 Sigsbee rd., glanced at the house next door—4515 Sigsbee rd., the home of Mr. and Mrs. William Young.

A man had opened the back screen door was trying to turn the locked door handle. Schulz began scrambling into his clothing.

At almost the same time, Mrs. Thomas Newell across the street at number 4508 recalls: "I got up to get some milk for my baby," 3-year-old Nancy. "I saw this car with no lights prowling down the street.

"We've had trouble in the neighborhood for weeks, some men trying to break into the houses, so I woke my husband."

NEWELL, a Navy petty officer, slipped on a robe and ran to his parked car outside, blew the horn to arouse the neighborhood.

Across the street Schulz came out of the house with his .45 revolver, and passed it to Newell.

Meanwhile, at the Youngs' house, Mrs. Young, aroused by the man at the screen door, screamed. The single intruder fled, jumped into the darkened car outside.

The auto cruised down and stopped in front of number 4505, the home of Mrs. Frances Anderson, a divorcee who lives there with her two children.

"TWO MEN got out and banged on the door and told me they were looking for Harriet," Mrs. Anderson told her neighbors later. She said "Harriet" was her baby sitter.

"I told them Harriet wasn't there and to leave but they refused." So Mrs. Anderson grabbed her loaded .22 pistol and herded the men out of her yard, firing five shots into the ground to emphasize her point.

Lacking a telephone in her home, Mrs. Anderson backed the men to the house of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Alder at 4506 Sigsbee dr., told one of them to ring the bell.

Mrs. Alder answered the door. "I opened the door," she said, "and Mrs. Anderson told me 'call the police'." Mrs. Alder phoned Silver Spring police at once. The two men fled to their car.

ABOUT this time, Schulz and Newell found the other two men in the Newells' yard.

Newell told them: "Get out of this yard and get over there in the car with the others." The men refused, and Newell said, "one of them lunged at me."

So Newell fired one shot from the .45 "into the ground, to scare them." The men ran from the yard.

By this time, the entire neighborhood was aroused. "There were about 30 or 40 of them out," Mrs. Newell said, "men and women."

And Mrs. Schulz added: "By then, we weren't scared any more. We were mad."

"We herded the four men to one side of the street, in front of number 4506, until the police came."

SILVER SPRING police arrested the four men and charged them with disorderly conduct.

They identified the quartet as:

William F. Hauptman, 23, a mechanic of 715 Dale dr.; Charles F. Clark, 29, a cab driver of 101 Franklin ave., and Donald M. Heizer, jr., 22, a cook of 205 E. Wayne ave., all Silver Spring, and Joseph J. Olenik, 22, a shop foreman, of 6611 Clarendon rd., Bethesda.

Yesterday afternoon, Clark swore out a warrant for disorderly conduct against Newell, who had fired the .45.

The four men and Newell each posted $52.50 collateral for appearance in Silver Spring Police Court on Tuesday.

D. C. Auditor Scores Court Favor on Fines

Elimination of the occasional Municipal Court practice of letting defendants go home for fine money was recommended yesterday by District Auditor Arthur R. Pilkerton.

In a report to the District Commissioners of a three-month audit of the criminal branch of Municipal Court, Pilkerton said the court recently lost $340 in fines when five defendants were released to obtain the money and didn't come back.

Pilkerton said he understood there was no written authority for this "personal-recognizance-to-pay" practice. "If there is no authority under law," he added, "it would appear that the practice should be discontinued."

The auditor said he understood the court trial had attempted to follow up the five cases but had failed to locate the men. Each of the fines—for offenses ranging from driving without a permit to assault—were payable at least five months ago, he said.

Court officials said they had not received a copy of Pilkerton's report and would not comment. The Commissioners took no action on it. Charles Stofberg, special assistant to Commissioner John Russell Young, said it was up to the court to reject or accept the recommendation.

Pilkerton also reported that the criminal branch of Municipal Court took in $363,663.05 in the three months ending April 1.

Cobwebs, Decay Cost Grocer $50 Fine

The proprietor of a grocery store, described as having decayed potatoes in the back yard,, decayed vegetables in the bins and a slimy meat grinder, yesterday was fined $50 in Municipal Court.

She is Mrs. Anna Williams, who pleaded guilty before Judge Thomas D. Quinn to having an unclean store at 1001 26th st. nw. on June 8. Health Department inspectors said the store was also full of gnats and that there were cobwebs on the walls.

5 Weekend Events

Fern Walk, Barge Trip Scheduled

National Capital Parks has listed five events for the weekend—including a historical tour of Jefferson Memorial, a fern walk in Dumbarton Oaks Park, and barge trips on the C. & O. Canal.

The barge Canal Clipper will make trips Saturday and Sunday. It will leave Lock 3 at 30th st., a block below M st. nw., at 2 p. m. It will return from Lock 5, Brookmont, at 4 p. m. Tickets may be purchased at Capital Transit Co., 1416 F st. nw., or at the barge before departure.

The two-hour Dumbarton Oaks walk will begin at 3 p. m. Saturday at the "Lovers' Lane" entrance to the park, R st., between Avon pl. and 31st st. nw.

The Jefferson Memorial event will organize at 2:30 p. m. Sunday in front of the Memorial. Historian Cornelius W. Heine will talk on the Declaration of Independence, the Jefferson Memorial, and the Tidal Basin.

Naturalist Howard White will be on duty at the Kenilworth Aquatic Gardens Sunday from 10 a. m. to 3:30 p. m. to identify various water lilies now in blossom. A morning visit is recommended.

Trailside exhibits at Great Falls, Md., will be open Saturday and Sunday from 1 to 7 p. m. Naturalists will lead short walks on the canal tow-path and along the nature trail.

1000 Parking Meters Added To City's 3000

The District will add 1000 parking meters to its present 3000 this summer.

The $53,297 purchase, which also includes 50 spare meters, was announced yesterday by District Purchasing Officer Roland M. Brennan.

John H. Mitton, traffic engineer for the Department of Vehicles and Traffic, said the one-hour meters will be installed only where parking is now limited by signs to one hour. They were requested by business houses, he said.

Starting within 60 days the new meters will be installed on the following streets, Mitton stated:

Pennsylvania ave. se., from 2d to 7th st.; 8th st. se., from Pennsylvania ave. to K st.; Good Hope rd. se., from Nichols to Minnesota ave.; Nichols ave. se., from Good Hope rd. to V st.; 7th st. sw., from D to G sts.; U st. nw., from 10th to 15th st.; 14th st. nw., from Thomas Circle to W st.; P st. nw. from 14th to 18th st.; Calvert st. nw. from the Calvert Street Bridge to 24th st.

Thug Holds Up Store for $6, Earlier Attempt Fizzles

Police broadcast a lookout for a young thug who made off with $6 in a holdup at High's Ice Cream store at 1310 11th st. nw. about 2:15 p. m. yesterday.

Detectives believe he may be the same man who five hours earlier failed in an attempt to hold up a Palace Laundry branch at 1634 7th st. nw.

There, according to police, a holdup man apparently became frightened when a clerk, Evelyn Jones, 24, of 1423 West Virginia ave. ne., jumped over the counter and ran out of the store. The hoodlum ran out, too.

Mrs. Hilda Jones, 42, of 1221 10th st. nw., a clerk at the ice cream store, said the thug apparently knew the layout of the store.

She told police he kept his hand in a jacket pocket "as if the had a gun," but reached for the money with his "gun hand."

He fled across 11th st. and down an alley.

Police broadcast a lookout for a Negro about 23 years old, 5 feet, 7 inches tall, wearing an Army battle jacket.

Georgetown Preservation Bill Wins Support

Proposal Indorsed As Hearings End; Like Measure Before House on Monday

Legislation to preserve the architecture and flavor of Georgetown inched forward yesterday with completion of public hearings by a Senate District subcommittee.

A similar bill is expected to pass the House Monday.

Representative James Wadsworth (R., N. Y.), a Georgetown resident, is the sparkplug behind the measure which thus far has won wide citizen and congressional support.

It would set up an area known as "Old Georgetown" and would empower the District Commissioners, through issuance of building permits, to regulate exterior architecture.

Would Ask Opinion

To preserve "places and areas of historic interest," the city heads would seek the opinion of the Fine Arts Commission on proposed building changes before granting permits.

The measure would apply to any alteration, reconstruction or razing of any buildings in the Georgetown area.

Corporation Counsel Vernon E. West suggested the bill also include "new construction."

Senator Edward L. Leahy (D., R. I.), subcommittee chairman, questioned several minor provisions and indicated he thought the measure should be strengthened to give the commissioners even more authority over Georgetown rebuilding.

Supporters of Bill

Indorsers of the bill included: Horace W. Peaslee, architect; Thomas S. Settle, staff member of National Capital Park and Planning Commission; Mrs. Harold B. Hinton, Mrs. Charles J. Hubbard and Miss Dorothea de Schweinitz, all of the Georgetown Progressive Citizens' Association, and Brig. Gen. K. S. Bradford, ret. U. S. Army, president of the Georgetown Citizens' Association.

The Leahy Subcommittee also heard testimony from school officials in support of a bill to provide penalties for trespassing on public buildings and grounds. Existing law only covers trespassing on private property.

Norman J. Nelson, first assistant of public schools, told the subcommitee authorities are having trouble with "loiterers and persons entering empty school buildings."

Famed Capitol Trees to Bear Markings Soon

The famous trees on the Capitol grounds soon will present their pedigrees to the general public, Senator Leverett Saltonstall (R., Mass.) told his colleagues yesterday.

Marking of the memorial and historic trees has been one of Saltonstall's pet projects since last spring.

In a brief speech, he said Capitol Architect David Lynn is preparing plaques for all trees, not already marked. No additional appropriation is required, Lynn told the Senator.

Saltonstall singled out some of the elite among the 2000 trees: A red oak planted by Senator Henry Cabot Lodge, Sr., of Massachusetts; others of the same species sponsored by the late Senator Charles L. McNary of Oregon, and former Speaker Joe Cannon of Illinois; a hickory planted by Vice-President Thomas R. Marshall in 1912.

Twenty-two states are represented by 21 varieties, Saltonstall said. He placed in the Congressional Record a complete list, giving botanical names, common names and where the trees came from.

Single Fund Drive Deferred for Present

Plans to wrap up all Greater Washington fund drives into one campaign were shelved yesterday for at least a year.

The Citizens Committee that has been working for two months toward this goal agreed arrangements cannot be completed this year and the Community Chest should not be delayed further in planning its fall drive.

Meeting at the District Building, about 40 of the 200 committee members adopted three resolutions approved by its interim committee June 29. The full committee thereby:

(1) Gave the Community Chest a "green light" to proceed with its campaign plans.

(2) Reaffirmed its support of a single package drive and its intention to continue working for it.

(3) Agreed not to actively aid or encourage single drives by business houses this year.

Lone opponent of the committee's action was Herbert P. Leeman, president but uninstructed delegate of the Federation of Citizens Associations.

Leeman objected to the resolution giving the go-ahead signal to the Community Chest because he felt it meant indorsement of the Chest.

Instead, Leeman felt, the committee should examine each Chest agency to determine if its work is "necessary as well as desirable".

"We can't close our eyes to criticism of the people of some agencies composing the Chest", Leeman said. "This committee can examine—we could say to the Chest: If certain agencies are dropped you will have the support of the committee."

Otherwise, Leeman said, the Chest drive will not receive solid community backing, and "We will be right back where we were before."

Committee Chairman Frank J. Luchs pointed out that the resolution did not indorse the Chest, but merely released it to start work on its fall campaign.

A moment later, however, the committee — with Leeman again dissenting—adopted a resolution which did indorse the Chest's fall drive. It also urged employers to set up methods for convenient installment payments through payroll deductions as the best means of oversubscribing the Chest goal.

Luchs told the group that about 90 percent of the community now favors a single drive and that in spite of some opposition it could probably be put over this year. "But it would seem better to give it more time and study," he added, "than to hit people over the head with a baseball bat."

'Doc' Conaway

Auto Racing Official Dies After Crash

Funeral services for Thomas W. (Doc) Conaway, 45, of Laurel, Md., an automobile racing official in the Washington area for more than 15 years, will be held at 11 a. m. Saturday at the Donaldson funeral home, Laurel. Burial will be in the Good Shepherd Cemetery, Ellicott City, Md.

Mr. Conaway died Wednesday at the Peninsula General Hospital, Salisbury, Md., of injuries suffered in an auto accident Tuesday night.

He was returning from an auto meet at Keller, Va., when his car and a bus collided near Salisbury, members of the family said.

A native of Savage, Md., Mr. Conaway had been a racing enthusiast since his teens. Although he had never driven in a race, he was a close friend of many drivers.

He officiated at tracks at West Lanham and Hagerstown, Md., and at Richmond, Manassas and Winchester, Va.

A frequent contributor to Speed Age Magazine," he was a collector of auto racing memorabilia—newspaper and magazine stories, racing pictures, records.

He had a full-time position as Washington area supervisor of the United States Vitamin Corp., New York.

He leaves his wife, Mrs. Harriet Virginia conaway; a daughter, Miss Virginia Lee Conaway; a son, Thomas W., jr.; his mother, Mrs. Helen F. Conaway, all of Laurel; a brother, Horace Conaway of Baltimore, and a sister, Mrs. Anna Kaiser of 6921 Georgia ave. nw.

Charles T. Hill Dies; Retired Dairyman

Funeral services for Charles T. Hill, 89, retired dairyman, will be held at 2 p. m. Saturday at the Sharp Street Methodist Church, Sandy Spring, Md.

Mr. Hill, a native of Ashton, Md., died July 4 at his home, High Ridge Farm, near Norwood, Md. He had been ill several months.

He was the son of the late Edward and Sophia Woodland Hill of Ashton and the brother of James W. Hill, who conducted an underground railroad to Toronto, Canada, for escaped slaves during the Civil War.

Mr. Hill was the founder of the Colored Farmers Club of Colesville, Md., and sponsored an annual horseshoe tournament on his farm for a number of years.

He was married in 1885 to Lucy Virginia Scott, who preceded him in death by seven years. They had 12 children.

He leaves three daughters, Mrs. Edith V. Dorsey, Brinklow, Md.; Mrs. Jeanette H. Anderson, White Oak, Md., and Mrs. Sadie Hill of Norwood, four sons, Richard, J. Roger, Edward F. and Warrick S. Hill, all of Norwood; 18 grandchildren and 12 greatgrandchildren.

P. K. Fitzhugh Dies; Wrote Books for Boys

Oradell, N. J., July 6 (AP).—Percy K. Fitzhugh, whose books for boys sold over a million copies, died last night at the age of 73.

Funeral Rites Set Today For Mrs. E. J. Trussell

Funeral services for Mrs. Etta Jane Trussell, 79, of 9503 Thornhill rd., Silver Spring, Md., a resident of Washington and vicinity for 40 years, will be held today at 11 a. m. at the Warner Pumphrey funeral home, 8434 Georgia ave.

The wife of Henry Walter Trussell, retired Mayflower Hotel employe, she died Monday at her home after a long illness. She was born in Loudoun County, Va., and was a resident of Silver Spring for the past nine years.

Besides her husband, she is survived by two daughters, Mrs. Audrey Stout of the same address and Mrs. Evelyn Clice of Baltimore and a brother, Thomas Underwood, also of Baltimore.

Nellie Hallam Funeral Today; Taught Here

Funeral services for Miss Nellie Willis Hallam, 66, former District school teacher and long-time resident of the city, will be held at 2 p. m. today at the Hines funeral home, 2901 14th st. nw. Burial will be in Congressional Cemetery.

Miss Hallam, who in recent years made her home at 1430 Locust rd. nw., died Wednesday at Garfield Hospital.

A native of Owenton, Ky., she came to Washington at an early age. Her father, the late Orrin B. Hallam, was an attorney here.

Miss Hallam was a teacher in the District schools prior to the First World War and then was employed in the Postoffice Department. In recent years she has cared for ill members of her family.

Active in work of the Calvary Baptist Church, she was a member of the Christian Endeavor Society and the Missionary Society.

She leaves two brothers, Henry Joseph Hallam of the Locust rd. addres, and Paul R. Hallam of Phoenix, Ariz., and a sister, Mrs. Anne Tibbetts of Detroit.

Mary Green Dies at 81; Charles County Organist

High requiem mass for Miss Mary Helen Green, 81, who died last Friday at Providence Hospital, was sung Tuesday at St. Joseph's Catholic Church, Pomfret, Charles County, Md. Burial was in the church cemetery.

A lifelong resident of Charles County, she was a descendant of Thomas Green, one of the early Governors of Maryland. She lived at the old family estate Green Park, until nine years ago, when she made her home with a brother and sister at the Sacred Heart Home in Hyattsville, Md. Her brother, Joseph W. Green, preceded her in death by six months. Her sister, Miss Helen Elizabeth Green, is her only immediate survivor.

Miss Green served as organist of St. Joseph's Church for 50 years, beginning in 1885, and missed only three services during that time.

W. A. Pollard Buried; Once GPO Employe

Funeral services were held yesterday for Willard A. Pollard, 85, retired Government official and descendant of a prominent Maryland and District family. Burial was in Fort Lincoln Cemetery.

Mr. Pollard, who formerly lived at 4731 Butterworth pl. nw., died Tuesday of a heart attack at a rest home where he had been for a year.

His mother was a member of an old Maryland family that moved to the District in 1801. Mr. Pollard was born in the District and was graduated from the old Central High School in 1885.

Before entering Government service, he worked with his father in the coal and wood business and was a reporter for The Washington Post. When he retired in 1935, he was chief of the reference and research section of the Government Printing Office.

A son, Navy Comdr. W. A. Pollard, jr., died in 1942 and two years later was honored by having a Navy auxiliary ship named for him.

Other survivors are another son, Philip G. Pollard of Bronxville, N. Y.; a sister, Miss Anna E. Pollard, and a brother, James Pollard, both of 1353 Rittenhouse st. nw., and three grandchildren, Navy Lieut. Willard A. Pollard, 3rd, Mrs. Anne Hittinger of Camp Lejeune, N. C., and Philip H. Pollard of Lafayette College, Easton, Pa.

Dinner Honors Retiring Head Of Boosters

Joseph C. McGarraghy last night was honored with a testimonial dinner as he retired as chairman of the Greater National Capital Committee of the Washington Board of Trade.

Meeting in the Statler Hotel, board members, civic leaders, attorneys and Federal judges were among those who joined in presenting McGarraghy with an illuminated scroll praising his "keen sense of comradeship, friendly cooperation and unusual abilities."

"Under his direction," the scroll stated, "the Greater National Capital Committee has attained new heights of success in its ascribed duties of convention and tourist promotion; has more than ever before secured the wholehearted support of Washington's business houses and civic and professional leaders; and has ably represented itself as a vital, moving force in the city's basic economy."

Among those present were John Russell Young, president of the Board of Commissioners; Chief Judge Harold M. Stephens, U. S. Court of Appeals; Judge E. Barrett Prettyman, U. S. Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia; Judges of the U. S. District Court for the District of Columbia, Richard B. Keech, David A. Pine and Henry A. Schweinhaut, and Major Robert J. Barrett, Superintendent of Police.

95,000 More Of Foe Reported In Nearby China

NYHT News Service

The Chinese Nationalist government, which has retained an espionage network in Communist China, has reported to the United States that some 95,000 trained North Korean troops are stationed among Chinese Communist armies in Manchuria.

Their headquarters is not far across the border from Korea, the Nationalist report said. The troops have been organized until now in the Chinese Communist armies and a large number have had combat experience in China. Presumably they could be released from Manchuria to reinforce the North Korean army in event of need.

American estimates are that about 120,000 North Korean troops now are taking part in the Korean war. Of these, according to the Nationalists, 50,000 were trained with the Chinese Communists in 1947 and 1948, under an agreement arranged by Russian officers while the Red army still was occupying North Korea. The 95,000 in Manchuria are in addition to this number, the Nationalists said.

Sesqui Exhibit Opens Sunday; Speedway Renamed Ohio Drive

Weekend Sesquicentennial events include the start today of the advance ticket sale for Paul Green's "Faith of Our Fathers," the renaming Sunday of a Hains Point roadway "Ohio Drive," and the public opening of the Corcoran Gallery of Art's "American Processional" the same day.

Corcoran's exhibition of more than 300 works will begin with an invitation opening at 8:30 p. m. Saturday. President and Mrs. Truman and Vice President and Mrs. Barkley are expected to attend. The exhibition is said to be "the most comprehensive display of Americana ever shown under one roof at the same time."

Sale of tickets for "Faith of Our Fathers" will begin at 9 a. m. today at a trailer box office at 14th st. and Pennsylvania ave. nw. The symphonic drama will run seven weeks, beginning August 5, at the Sesquicentennial Amphitheater in Rock Creek Park.

Beginning Tuesday tickets also may be purchased at the amphitheater and at: Super Music Centers, 1350 F st. nw., and 1110 Seventh st. nw.; Campbell Music Co., 1108 G st. nw.; and Brentano's main store, 1322 F st. nw.

Paul M. Massmann, general manager, has announced a discount of 10 percent for purchases of 100 or more tickets to a single performance, and a 15 percent discount for the entire house—4056 seats. Glenn Ireton, 1400 Pennsylvania ave. nw., is in charge of group sales.

The six-mile roadway girding Hains Point will be renamed "Ohio Drive" at a 2:30 p. m. ceremony Sunday as the highlight of Ohio Honor Day.

The drive will be presented to Governor Frank Lausche by Secretary of the Interior Oscar L. Chapman, acting for President Truman. Representative Thomas A. Jenkins of Ohio will be master of ceremonies and the United States Navy Band will play.

The drive has been known for many years as "The Speedway" because in horse and buggy days it was a favorite racing stretch for gay young blades. Among those said to have fallen afoul of the law for exceeding the 10-mile-an-hour limit was a President from Ohio named Ulysses S. Grant.

Drivers Test Plan Urged

Baltimore, July 7 (AP).—A proposal that Maryland automobile drivers be examined for proficiency every few years was put forward today at a highway safety meeting.

A special committee of State and city traffic officials and trial magistrates discussed the idea without coming to a conclusion immediately.

The committee did agree to recommend that trial magistrates throughout the State be given power to revoke a driver's license if he is convicted of safety violations.

The proposal will be submitted later to the highway safety council, made up of traffic officials and the State's 125 trial magistrates. Governor Lane formed the council last week, declaring drastic action is necessary to reduce highway casualties.

Maryland drivers now must take a driving test and a written examination in order to get an operator's license. Under present regulations, the license is good indefinitely.

The idea put before the special commission was that drivers should be required to pass new tests every few years.

This Morning

—With Shirley Povich

PHILADELPHIA July 6.—Well, maybe the fans ought to pick the pitchers, too. That privilege was delegated to the two managers of the major league All-Star teams, Casey Stengel and Burt Shotton, and if they didn't botch the job in a couple of places it needs a heap of explaining.

The fans whose votes elected the rest of the All-Star cast for the game in Chicago July 11, were told to lay off when it came to picking the pitchers. The managers would do that, it was explained. The inference was plain enough. The fans didn't know enough about pitching and they'd better leave this important business to smarter baseball men.

POVICH

So, you won't see Johnny Sain of the Braves, the man with the best pitching record in either major league, in the All-Star game. Burt Shotton couldn't find a place for him on the NL's eight-man staff. It required a strange sort of genius to come to that conclusion. The same kind, no doubt, that has piloted the Dodgers, the best team in the NL, into fourth place at this point.

Sain isn't one of those league-leading accidents—an average pitcher with a winning record that is out of kilter. Sain's 11-5 can withstand scrutiny. He was the first pitcher to win that many. Any time he walks a man it's news. They don't come any better.

THE CUSTOMERS can wonder, now, what kind of guys are managing all the National League teams and where they were when common sense was being passed out. Shotton, after the first wave of criticism at his pitching selections, revealed that he polled all the managers in his league and they didn't vote Sain on the staff either.

Casey Stengel isn't in line for any bows, either, since announcing his lineup of AL pitchers. He's acting like a guy smitten with his own Yankees—he named three of 'em, Vic Raschi, Allie Reynolds and Tommy Byrne to the All-Star staff. And in a season when pitching is supposed to be one of the weaknesses of the Yankees.

Stengel's infatuation with his own Yankee pitching is almost mirth-provoking. Byrne's 9-3 record is a phoney. He's been bumped harder than most other pitchers, but was lucky to escape defeats. Raschi has won 10 games, but he hasn't pitched good ball. Reynolds, with the worst record of the trio, has been the best pitcher and he can show only a .500 average.

THE YANKEES aren't going to win any pennant, you'd have to say, if they aren't in smarter hands than Stengel's. Any Washington fan would eagerly tell him that he couldn't justify leaving Mickey Harris off the All-Star team, as long as the pitchers are limited to three inning jobs. Harris can show a better earned record than any of the three Yankee pitchers Stengel chose.

And if the poor, suffering American League fans in St. Louis aren't outraged, they ought to be. Stengel didn't give their man, Ned Garver, a look-in. Baseball men will tell you they don't care what Garver's record is, he's one of the three best pitchers in the league. And some of 'em will vow that he's the absolute best despite his present associations.

There isn't much quarrel with Stengel's other five choices. Bob Lemon and Bob Feller of the Indians qualify easily enough; and so do Art Houtteman and Ted Gray, of the Tigers. Nobody will get mad, either, at the selection of Ray Scarborough. After nearly 10 years in the majors, he's made it, and those eight wins he compiled for the second division Nats and White Sox this year are a powerful recommendation.

THE NICE THING about the fans' voting for the other All-Star positions is that they still make room for sentiment. Such as Joe DiMaggio's and Tommy Henrich have no more right to be on the All-Star team this year than you or you, on the basis of their season's performances, but the people find it hard to turn their backs on this pair of greats.

So DiMaggio and Henrich are in, and nobody squawks. DiMag might have kept a fine young player like Vic Wertz off the All-Stars but Wertz has plenty of time. And for Henrich this year's selection is a special kind of tribute. He makes it as a first baseman, after all those good years as an outfielder.

But DiMag and Henrich are sure-shots to see action in the game. Nobody will quarrel with Stengel whether he plays them for several innings or merely as pinch-hitters. No pitcher rests easy when DiMag or Tommy is up there with a bat in his hand staring down the pitcher's throat. Fancy averages don't count in the cases of that pair. They're still tough, no matter what the figures show.

White Collar Passe in Publinx

Louisville, Ky., July 6 (AP).—Two factory workers and two truck-drivers, one of them unemployed at the moment, will battle it out for championship berths in the 1950 National Public Links golf playoff.

Salvatore Fiorillo, 26-year-old assembler in a water-heater factory, defeated Clinton Sublett, the hometown Louisville hope, 2 up.

John Dobro, 39, Chicago plant supervisor, defeated Jim Levenhagen, a Milwaukee gas company clerk, 5 and 4.

Stan Bielat, 37-year-old truck chauffeur for a Yonkers, N. Y., whisky distributor, defeated Larry Bouchey, Los Angeles finance company collector, 1 up on 19 holes.

Frank Rutkiewicz, 31, who gave up his job as a driver and salesman for a Honolulu, Hawaii, paper goods firm to play in the Publinx, won from Ken Venturi.

Filchock Asks Pro Football League to Reinstate Him

Philadelphia, July 6 (AP).—Frank Filchock, who was indefinitely suspended from the National Football League in 1947 for failure to report a bribe offer, today applied to NFL Commissioner Bert Bell for reinstatement.

Filchock, along with New York Giant teammate Merle Hapes, was suspended by Bell for "actions detrimental to the welfare of the National Football League and professional football." Neither player accepted a bribe but both were punished by the league for not reporting the offers.

Filchock played with the Washington Redskins from 1938 until 1942 as an understudy to Sammy Baugh before he was traded to the Giants.

Alvin J. Paris, 28-year-old official in a novelty concern, was convicted and sentenced to jail for the unsuccessful attempt to bribe Filchock and Hapes to throw the 1946 NFL playoff game between the New York Giants and the Chicago Bears. Filchock played in the game won by the Bears, 24 to 14, at the Polo grounds in New York.

Filchock appeared before Bell today along with Lee Dandurand, president of the Montreal Alouette football club with which the former Giant star has been playing.

Bell told Filchock and Dandurand he would render a decision within the next week or 10 days.

Undefeated Bob Miller Wins 8th for Phils, 9-6

Philadelphia, July 6.—Helped by a three-home run attack and the usual neat relief job by Jim Konstanty, unbeaten Bob Miller posted his eighth victory as the high-flying Phillies beat the New York Giants here today, 9-6.

The sensational rookie left with two out in the seventh when the Giants rallied for three runs. Konstanty put out the fire, enabling the Phils to sweep the series.

Willie Jones slammed his sixteenth home run for the Phils, Andy Seminick his seventh and Granny Hammer his fifth. Bobby Thomson hit the lone Giant round tripper, his eleventh.

8 Yanks Make Stengel's All-Stars

Houtteman Cannot Play, Rolfe Says

Chicago, July 6 (U.P.).—New York Yankee Manager Casey Stengel picked Detroit's one-two pitching punch, Ted Gray and Art Houtteman, as top pitchers for the American League all-star team today, but Detroit Manager Red Rolfe said Houtteman cannot play in the game Tuesday.

Rolfe said he could not "spare" Houtteman, his top right-hander with an 11-5 record, in view of the tight pennant race. He said Detroit would use Houtteman Sunday and the star can't go Tuesday with only one day's rest.

The American League office said Houtteman was picked by Stengel "on his record" and will remain on the roster. It was understood that it will be Stengel's decision whether Houtteman works in the game.

Gray, a slight left hander who has won nine and lost three, looked like the probable starting hurler for the American League, and earlier Houtteman had appeared as the probable number one relief choice.

Under All-Star game rules, it was impossible for Houtteman to be removed from the roster by Rolfe's decision.

(In new York, the Associated Press quoted Stengel as saying he was "not concerned" about the All-Star game yet.

"I don't know what I'll do," he said, "I've got to worry about Boston first. I haven't made any plans yet. But I've got three of my own pitchers on the team. Maybe that's too many. After all, we're in second place, not first.

"When I get out there (Chicago) we'll line up the best players we've got and then go after them. I'm not running the game. I'm just a manager.")

Win 4-Hour Wimbledon Match

Trabert, Patty Break Rivals in 31-29 Game

Wimbledon, England, July 6 (AP).—Louise Brough and Mrs. Margaret Dupont won the all-American women's singles semifinals at Wimbledon today but most of the capacity crowd couldn't have cared less.

The spotlight was stolen from the women by the longest doubles match these famous All-England Lawn Tennis Club courts have ever seen—four hours and five minutes during which Budge Patty and young Tony Trabert finally overcame Frank Sedgman and Ken McGregor of Australia, 6—4, 31—29, 7—9, 6—2.

The longest set on record was played in May, 1949, in California when Ted Schroeder and Bob Falkenburg beat Pancho Gonzales and Hugh Stewart, 36—34, 3—6, 4—6, 6—4, 19—17 in five and a half hours.

Miss Brough, the defending champion from Beverly Hills, Calif., scored a surprisingly easy 6—4, 6—3 victory over Doris Hart of Jacksonville, Fla., and Mrs. Dupont, American titlist from Wilmington, Del., won quite a struggle from Mrs. Pat Todd of La Jolla, Calif., 8—6, 4—6, 8—6.

Miss Brough and Mrs. Dupont, longtime doubles partners, will battle it out Saturday for the Wimbledon crown for the second successive year. Miss Brough beat her partner last year, 10—8, 1—6, 10—8.

Trabert, a 19-year-old Cincinnati collegian playing on this side of the Atlantic for the first time, was the real hero of the treatmendous doubles match.

Earlier today he scratched from the singles consolation round and reserved a seat on a 6 o'clock plane for New York after learning that his mother was seriously ill in Cincinnati.

But it was the youngster who carried Patty, a Wimbledon veteran, to victory. He served 15 games in the long set and won 14 of them.

Cards Score 10 In 1st, Coast In St. Louis, July 6 (AP).—One inning—the first—was all the St. Louis Cardinals needed to beat the Cincinnati Reds tonight. The Redbirds pounded in 10 runs in that frame to start off toward a 13 to 1 decision.

It was the twelfth consecutive victory for the Redbirds in Sportsman's Park and their seventh in the current winning streak.

Shotton Catches It From Frisch

New York, July 6 (AP)—Burt Shotton received official permissian today to make a change in his National League All-Star lineup for next Tuesday's game in Chicago and immediately drew a caustic comment from Manager Frankie Frisch of the Chicago Cubs.

In Chicago, Frisch expressed indignation at the substitution of Snider for Sauer. He said:

"I consider Mr. Shotton's statement a deep insult to a young fellow who has played hard and given his best efforts in all games played by the Chicago club. I think this most unfair and if Mr. Shotton had any idea of playing Duke Snider over Hank Sauer, who was selected by an overwhelming majority, he could have decided that possibly before game time and not through the news services.

"In my opinion, if I were Sauer, I doubt whether I would atted the all-star game."

Miksis, Hodges Homer

Dodgers Blast Spahn, 10-3, To Give Roe His 10th Victory

Brooklyn, July 6 (AP).—Two run homers by Ed Miksis and Gil Hodges paced the Brooklyn Dodgers to an 8-3 victory over Warren Spahn and the Boston Braves tonight. Lefty Preacher Roe went all the way for Brooklyn to post his tenth victory. Del Crandall and Bob Elliott homered in the second inning for Boston.

Miksis, subbing for the injured Jackie Robinson, and Roy Campanella, who broke a 19 for 0 hitless streak, led a 16-hit attack on Warren Spahn and Vern Bickford with three hits each.

Robinson, missing a Brooklyn game for the first time since June 2, 1948, and ending a streak of 340 consecutive games, was available for pinch-hitting purposes.

Casey Omits Rosen, Selects Nats' Michaels

By Jerry Liska

Chicago, July 6 (AP).—a 25-player American League squad, one third composed of New York Yankees and listing only one regular third baseman, will face the National League's best in the seventeenth All-Star Game at Comiskey Park next Tuesday.

Eight of his own World Champion Yankees were on the squad completed today by Yank Manager Casey Stengel, the American loop pilot, who selected eight pitchers and nine reserve players to go with the eight starters named in a Nation-wide fan vote.

The most glaring omission was Al Rosen, Cleveland's slugging third baseman, who leads the major leagues with 25 home runs.

American League All-Star Roster

Chicago, July 6 (AP).—Following is the American League All-Star roster:

Starters (picked in fan ballot) Walt Dropo, Boston, 1b; Bobby Doerr, Boston, 2b; Phil Rizzuto, New York, ss; George Kell, Detroit, 3b; Larry Berra, New York, c; Ted Williams, Boston; Walter Evers, Detroit, and Larry Doby, Cleveland, outfielders.

Pitchers—Tommy Byrne, Vic Raschi and Allie Reynolds, New York; Bob Feller and Bob Lemon, Cleveland; Art Houtteman and Ted Gray, Detroit; and Ray Scarborough, Chicago.

Alternate players — Infielders: Gerry Coleman and Tommy Henrich, New York; Ferris Fain, Philadephia; Vern Stephens, Boston, and Cass Michaels, of Washington. Outfielders — Dom DiMaggio, Boston, and Joe DiMaggio, New York. Catchers—Jim Hegan, Cleveland and Sherman Lollar, St. Louis. Coaches: William Dickey and Frank Crossetti, New York. Batting practice pitchers: James Turner, New York, and Milton Haefner, Chicago.

Tribe Belts Scarborough, Haefner to Sweep Series

Cleveland, July 6 (AP).—The Cleveland Indians swept a two-game series today by beating the Chicago White Sox, 5-2.

Early Wynn struck out 11 and gave up only four hits in winning his eighth game, his fifth in a row.

His single in the fourth scored Roberto Alvia and his double in the sixth scored Jim Hegan. Avila had walked and Hegan had singled.

Cleveland broke out of a two-all tie in the sixth. After Wynn had diven in Hegan, Dale Mitchell singled the pitcher home.

Mickey Haefner, who relieved Scarborough, walked Avila in the seventh, forcing in Larry Doby with the last Tribe run.

Berra's Double Wins for Yanks

New York, July 6 (AP).—The New York Yankees defeated the Philadelphia Athletics today, 5-4, to sweep the two-game series.

The Yanks made the winning run off Relief Pitcher Lou Brissie with two out in the ninth inning when Gene Woodling got an infield hit and scored on Yogi Berra's double.

The loss was Brissie's 13th, high in the majors. The win was relief pitcher Tom Ferrick's first since joining the New Yorkers three weeks ago.

Shantz was removed for a pinch hitter in the Philadelphia ninth and Brissie came on. The hard-luck pitcher got two out quickly and then got a bad break. Woodling tapped a simple grounder to Pete Suder, the first baseman. Suder was playing the bag because Ferris Fain had to quit the game earlier with a pulled muscle in his back.

Suder fielded the ball but Brissie could not get to first base in time to take the throw ahead of Woodling.

Nats Eager to Beat Cheaper Clubs

By Shirley Povich
Post Reporter

Philadelphia,, July 6.—The Nats drop down into cheaper company tomorrow night, and that's the trouble. The second division clubs have been beating their ears off in a season when the Nats have been holding their own with the top outfits. So Bucky Harris is not under-rating the A's in the upcoming four-game series.

Harris is still a little bit thin on pitchers, but otherwise he is on the point of thinking that his team is ready to unloose some kind of a sustained drive for a better position in the race. He sees some encouraging signs.

Cass Michaels has got only turned to the lineup to tighten up the infield play and return Sam Dente to shortstop where he belongs, but Michaels has finally started to give the team the kind of hitting that was a strong factor in his acquisition from the White Sox.

At Boston last night, Michaels started two double plays and was the middle man in another that had a tremendous effect on the ball game. They nipped the Red Sox at a time when the slugging Bostonians had men on base and were only one hit away from winning the game.

Tomorrow night in the opener of the A's series, Harris will use Chico Marrero, and is confidently expecting one of the little Cuban's better-pitched games. Under Harris' new plan, Marrero is being given five and six days rest between starts, which at his undetermined age, ought to prove helpful.

Marrero will be confronted by Bob Hooper, one of the A's pitchers who figured in their three triumphs in four games at Griffith Stadium last week. Hooper didn't go the limit, but he served up a good game while he lasted.

The Nats are moving into Philadelphia at what may be a salubrious time. The A's suddenly have found themselves bereft of the key man of their infield, Shortstop Eddie Joost, who is out for maybe a month with a damaged knee suffered when Cliff Mapes of the Yanks crashed into him yesterday.

Harris would be happier about his whole situation, incidentally, if Sam Mele could wriggle out of the batting slump that has lately seized him. Mele has tailed off as the hitting threat he started out to be this season, and his swing only faintly resembles the good cut he was taking.

There has been no slackening, though, in the hitting of Mickey Vernon, Eddie Yost and Irv Noren, and it was their blows that kept the Nats in the slugfest with the Red Sox the other night.

And Harris is quite happy, too, with the timely poking of Al Evans whose bases-loaded single merely won the ball game that evening.

The Nats were proud of their 14 hits against the Red Sox, who desperately tried to stem them with four starting pitchers—Stobbs and Dobson and Kinder and McDermott, a quartet that was once supposed to win the pennant for Boston.

Dai Rees' 139 Leads British; Bulla 4 Back

Troon, Scotland, July 6 (AP).—Three Americans clattered into the final half of the British Open championships today but Dai Rees, a Welshman with a smart putter, led the pack with a two-round score of 71, 68—139.

Totals of 148 or less qualified 35 players from all over the world for tomorrow's two 18-hole rounds. The leader after that will take over the crown now worn by South Africa's Bobby Locke.

The 148-dividing line made it possible for Johnny Bulla of Pittsburgh, Jim McHale of Philadelphia, and Frank Stranahan, the British Amateur king from Toledo, Ohio, to stay in the fight for the title only one American has won since 1933. That was Sam Snead in 1946.

Bulla strode in with a par 70 today after his tour of the 6583-yard Troon course, where the fairways are narrow That made his total 143—four behind Rees.

Stranahan also had a 70 for a two-day score of 147 while McHale duplicated his 73 of the day before for 146. Only Skinny Art Clark of Huntington, W. Va., with 74-76, failed among the Americans to make tomorrow's field.

Locke, playing with Stranahan, three-putted to a 72 that gave him 141 and third place behind Rees. Second went to Bill Branch, ailing English pro, who combined a 69 today wiht a previous 71 for 140.

Well-Backed Filly Wins By 3 Lengths

By Walter Haight
Post Reporter

Charles Town, W. Va., July 6.—C. F. Bradford's Hy wasn't given much of a name, but the 4-year-old filly gave the favorite players a bangup winning effort here today.

With Apprentice Doyle Gardner in the saddle, the popular choice coasted into the finish line three lengths in front of A. Goulet's Triflin Neibor with Mrs. R. Kramer's Trivia third in a field of eight competing in the Silver Spring Purse.

Hy was quoted at even money in the early display of odds and finally paid a $3.60 mutuel, the crowd of 4500 backing her as if she represented bank interest. Over a fast track, Hy was clocked in 1:22 2-5 for the six and a half furlongs.

Jockey Eugene Dosher rode his fortieth winner and lost his apprentice allowance in the fifth race, the day's secondary feature. He was aboard K. F. Santill's Margaret E. and brought the $4.60 favorite home two lengths in advance of A. A. Fishback's Metaphor with J. Nechamkin's Sweet Hash third. The winner was clocked in 1:29 for the about seven furlongs.

Apprentice Joe Servis made a personal proposition out of the daily double, riding John Foster's Balcurate to the wire at a $67 mutuel in the first race and coming back to score with R. E. Dutcher's Al's Countess in the second at $7.60. The double on the 7 and 5 combination paid a healthy $218.80.

AT CHARLESTOWN

DEAR FOLKS:

Lee denies he surrendered to Grant in Wednesday's feature race. He says the horse gave up. Jockey Lee Harris told stewards that Gain A'Foot collapsed for the few final strides which allowed Patsy Grant on Ballinakill to win. Trainer Will Irvine, sr., said Gain A'Foot had undergone an operation to aid his wind and that the horse apparently "choked up" momentarily. The boy was given the benefit of the doubt. A fan with a daily double ticket on the $218.80 combination ridden by apprentice Joe Servis yelled "there'll be room service tonight." John P. Turner, sr., has been appointed steward representing the West Virginia Riding Commission, surplanting Andrew P. "Snooks" Winters who left for Huntington, W. Va., to campaign for relection as state senator.

Stengel Picks Eight Yanks

and is even with Babe Ruth's record home run pace of 23 years ago.

Second Baseman Cass Michaels, an All-Star starter last year when he played for Chicago, was the only Washington player selected by Stengel. Nats' eight-game winner Sid Hudson and Ace Reliefer Mickey Harris were passed over by the Yankee skipper.

Stengel picked two left-handed pitchers and six right-handers. The southpaws were Tommy Byrne of the Yanks and the Tigers' Ted Gray. The right-handers were Vic Raschi and Allie Reynolds, also from the Yankees; Art Houtteman of the Tigers; Bob Feller and Bob Lemon of the Indians; and Ray Scarborough, the lone White Sox man on the squad.

Although Stengel lined up nine infielders, stellar George Kell of the Tigers is the only third baseman by the book. Five outfielders and three catchers round out the squad.

Stengel indicated that if Kell, who led the entire poll for starting positions, needed relief at third base, it would come from Coleman, who fields as well at that position as he does at second.

Rosen was second to Kell in the third base fan voting. But if Indians fans raise an eyebrow over Rosen's absence, it should be pointed out Stengel named the Tribe's Jim Hegan, along with Sherm Lollar of the St. Louis Browns, as catching replacements for Berra. Both finished well behind Boston's Birdie Tebbetts in the balloting and Tebbetts was not named to the squad.

The two-man outfield reserve corps is strictly a family affair, with Boston's Dom DiMaggio and Yankee brother, Joe, as Stengel's spare fly-hawks.

Lanham Lists Racing Tonight

The West Lanham, Md., Speedway opens a twice weekly schedule tonight when the modified sport rolls into its fifth week with an eight-event program at 8:30 o'clock.

Among the competitors will be four winners of the feature races at Lanham. Lou Johnson, Wilmington, N. J., redhead who captured last Friday night's 50-lap spring championship race, will see action, along with Frank Schneider, Johnny Cabral and Bobby Courtwright, who had won three 25-lap features previously.

GROOM IT WITH KREML
TO AVOID A HOT, SHINY, GREASY-LOOKING SCALP
MAKE HAIR LOOK MORE ABUNDANT!
Hair getting thin? Receding at temples? Then don't keep gluing it down with greasy, sticky products which emphasize your sparse locks more—which leave an uncomfortably hot, dust-catching, shiny-looking film on the scalp. Now definitely is the time of year—the time in your life—to switch to Kreml Hair Tonic! Even on hottest summer days, Kreml keeps hair looking healthy and handsome—never greasy or plastered down. And Kreml alone has this special combination of rare ingredients to groom hair so it looks thicker—like more hair—than you've got. Kreml always feels SO CLEAN—SO COOL on your scalp! great to remove dandruff flakes and lubricate dry, sun-baked hair!

Trapshooting At Muirkirk On Sunday

By Ralph Murdock

Murdock

THE LEAGUE of Maryland Sportsmen and the Berwyn Rod and Gun Club will cosponsor their annual trapshoot at Muirkirk, Md., Sunday. Inviataions have been extended to each league-affiliated club and some fancy trapshooting is assured.

The shoot will be over the 100-target 16-yard route and there will be special two-and five-man events. Trophies will be awarded to the winners of the various events. All facilities of the club will be available to visiting shooters. The first gun will be fired at 10 a. m. and entries will be closed promptly at 2 p. m.

Frank Huseman, manager of the Berwyn Club, says "This shoot is planned to promote interest in trapshooting and the program arranged so that every shooter will have a good chance to be a winner. The shoot is open to the public and you are cordially invited."

DAVID L. RICHARDSON, B. O. Ramsey, William H. Bell, and Charles A. Park, jr., reported the top catch of the week when they reeled in 195 rockfish, 6 croakers and 4 perch while chumming with Junior Langley of Solomons Island.

The anglers started their chum line at 5 p. m. and quit at 9:30. The successful spot was near Point Patience. Incidentally, we have had several beefs about the haul seiners who invaded the fishing waters took in that area last week. Tons of hardheads were taken by the commercial netters in a single evening.

Weekend Suggestions:

HARDHEADS—Lower Patuxent river from Sandgates down to Lown Point, opposite Solomons Island. Best bait—frozen shrimp.

WHITE PERCH—Holland Point area—Bait—grass shrimp, frozen shrimp and worms. They are thick and they are hungry. Light tackle and small hooks will offer real sport.

ROCKFISH — Point Patience, near Solomons' Island—Chumming is your best bet. Average size—1½ pounds.

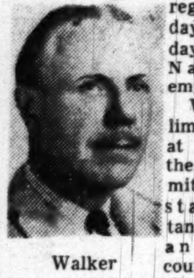
Novice Class Power Boat, Sailing Here

By Happy Walker



Walker

Annapolis will be the rallying point for the area sailing clan this weekend as the Annapolis Yacht Club stages its 13th annual regatta Saturday and Sunday off the Naval Academy site.

With unlimited water at its disposal, the race committee will stage simultaneous inside and outside course events with Racing Delta, Thistles, Chesapeake 20s and Lightnings sailing the latter course. A cruise race is also slated for Saturday to include a number of the fleet who made last week's Annapolis-Hampton overnight run.

Most popular classes for the Washington sail trailing set will be the Penguin. Comet, Snipe and Moth classes, well represented among the Columbia Yacht Club, the Potomac River Sailing Association, Buzzard Point and Washington Sailing Marina fleets.

EVERYTHING is in readiness for the first of a series of novice power boat clinics, to be sponsored by the Capital Power Boat Association. Getting under way at Frank Miller's Boat Yard at the foot of M st. se., Sunday at 11 a. m., the initial clinic will cover the subject of motors and hulls, particularly in the stock utility class.

WHILE MOST of the older sailing hands are off to nearby sanctioned sailing circuit events, the Washington Sailing Marina novice races continue to attract a goodly number of sailing greenhorns. The race committee, headed by Walter Collier, is performing a highly valuable service in giving a large number of freshman sailors an opportunity to learn the ropes in small boat sailing.

WASHINGTON power boat contingent will be off to Bush River Yacht Club, just outside of Baltimore for the Saturday and Sunday power boat races. Center of interest will be the mile trials, Sunday morning at 8 a. m., expected to draw a banner entry of top drivers, this being the first such event of the season on the East Coast.

The remainder of the day will be devoted to inboards, with the traditional Anne Arundel Cup race, won last year by Joe Van Blerk, the principal event of the day. Saturday's events include sanctioned Class A and C hydros, with a number of local special races added.

Starts Saturday at Kenwood

Cochell, Brink Top-Seeded In Mid-Atlantic Tennis Here

By Gordon Beard

Five California tennis stars, headed by the Nation's fifth-ranking Earl Cochell, are among the eight seeded for the men's singles in the Middle Atlantic sectional tennis championships opening at the Kenwood Golf and Country Club Saturday.

Cochell, given the top-seeded position, is the highest ranking player in the country at present. The four players rated above him are in England for the Wimbledon championships.

The colorful Cochell was ranked No. 7 in the Naiton based on 1949 play, but Pancho Gonzales and Frankie Parker have since turned professional and all players below that pair have been moved up two notches.

Jim Brink, winner of the Tri-State singles and national intercollegiate doubles in 1949, has been seeded second. The Sattle, Wash., star is currently ranked ninth.

In the third slot is Ricardo Balbiers, national champion of Chile, followed by No. 15, Hugh Stewart, No. 17 Arnold Saul, and No. 19 Straight Clark, all of California.

Sidney Schwartz of New York City, No. 22, the only Easterner to be seeded, was rated seventh by the tournament committee, while California's Gil Shea, unranked nationally, was listed eighth.

Maj. Robin Hippenstiel of the U. S. Army Air Forces, last year's champion, is out of the country and hence unable to defend his title.

None of the seeded players will see action in tomorrow's opening round, for all are participating in tourneys elsewhere.

Hoyas to Play Villanova Here

The Georgetown-Villanova football game has been shifted here and will be played at Griffith Stadium, Saturday, October 28, Athletic Director Jack Hagerty announced yesterday.

Originally, the game was scheduled at Philadelphia's Shibe Park, Friday night, Oct. 27. Hagerty said the switch was made because Villanova was having trouble getting that date at the ball park.

On Oct. 28, Maryland will play at Duke. George Washington U. entertains South Carolina at Griffith Stadium the night before the Georgetown-Villanova game.

The schedule shift means that powerful Villanova will appear here for the second straight year. Last season, the Main Liners crushed Georgetown, 29-14.

For the first time in many years, Georgetown won't make a Friday night appearance at Griffith Stadium next fall. All home games will be played Saturday afternoon. The change in policy was supported by the faculty and student council.

Wolfe Heads 34 Area Golfers in Junior Play

Thirty-four Washington area junior golfers will invade Baltimore Country Club via special bus today in quest of Maryland State junior golf championships.

District Junior Golf Director Frank Emmet, in charge of the local contingent, is optimistic about the possibility of bringing back all three of the titles at stake.

"We're loaded with talent, especially in the 15-16 class," he said. "We have Billy Wolfe, The Washington Post Schoolboy Golf champ, Perky Cullinane, Kenwood and D. C. Junior champ, Denny Bolster, Middle Atlantic Junior champ, and Kay Fletcher, Roosevelt High's No. 1 player.

"In the 14-and-under division we have two promising Georgetown Prep boys, Glenn Mitchell and John Cahill.

Are you an Arthur Godfrey fan? You can read all about him in his colorful life story, "Great Godfrey!" starting Sunday in The Washington Post.

CALVERT challenges comparison with any whiskey—at any price!
CALVERT INVITES YOU TO MAKE "SHOWDOWN" TEST!
WON'T YOU INVEST JUST 60 SECONDS to discover the whiskey that really tastes best to you?
Any man with normal taste buds can be his own "whiskey expert," and he should! After all, the whiskey that tastes best to you is the best buy for your money!
We invite you to make a simple, scientific taste test between Calvert Reserve and any whiskey you choose—at any price.
We are confident that you will prefer Calvert, because the taste of Calvert is determined by a Consumer Jury of thousands of folks like you. But if you really prefer the other brand, then stick with it. Fair enough?

BE YOUR OWN WHISKEY EXPERT

1 JUST ASK A FRIEND or your favorite barman to measure one teaspoonful (about ¼ oz.) of Calvert Reserve into one glass, and a teaspoonful of your present brand into another—without telling you which is which.

2 SNIFF ONE BRAND FOR AROMA. Taste it critically for smoothness. Then swallow slowly to judge its freedom from bite, burn or sting. Clear your palate with a sip of water and judge the other brand in the same analytical way.

Report to the People

This column has repeatedly warned the State and Justice Depts. and the people that large numbers of Nazis and other Hitlerats have been creeping into this country. So far as Government security agencies are concerned most of our warnings have fallen on deaf ears. Here are a few instances in which we succeeded:

Last year we documented a case against Walter Gieseking, the pianist-collaborator who played Nazi tunes for Hitler. Rather than face Dept. of Justice investigation Herr Gieseking scurried back to Europe . . . We proved that Ferenc Vajta, the Hungarianazi, was a leader in the Hungarian Arrow Cross (Fascist) Party. The Dept. of Justice then nailed him. A few months ago Vajta left the U. S. "voluntarily" for South America . . . We stripped Edward Sittler, the Nazi radio official who tried to stay in this country after he completed his testimony as a witness in several treason trials. Sittler squealed that he wanted to become an American citizen again. The heel was born here. He is now awaiting deportation hearings . . . Our most recent target was Lajos Marschalko, another Hungarian who, during the war, poison-penned newspaper articles which urged the shooting of captured American aviators. Marschalko is now at Ellis Island awaiting Uncle Sam's boot by deportation order.

But the Nazi parade into the U. S. continues. On May 23rd of his year Karol Sidor sneaked across the border from Canada as a isitor. This democracy-hater was given a visa by an American Consul in Montreal, despite the fact that his name was on a U. S. tate Dept. black list! There was good reason for black-listing Karol Sidor. Look at his record:

After the Munich-Hitler rape in Sept. 1938 Czechoslovakia was ivided into three states. Karol Sidor was National Vice Premier. oseph Tiso was Premier of one of the states—Slovakia—until arch 10, 1939. Two days later Sidor became Premier of Slovakia. wo days after that the Nazis walked into Czechoslovakia. Tiso mmediately became the Hitler-puppet Premier of the Slovak Government and Karol Sidor his Minister of Interior.

Tiso's record as a Nazi tool: First Premier, later President of lovakia, he forced his country into the Nazi economy and war pparatus. For his crimes Tiso was arrested after the war and tried a Nazi. He was convicted and hanged in April, 1947 by the Czechs efore Russia seized their little democracy. Note that date—April, 947—because Karol Sidor and others like him now claim that Tiso as a victim of Communist persecution. A convenient excuse ehind which Nazis like to hide.

During this same Tiso-Nazi regime (from July, 1939 to 1945) arol Sidor was a diplomat in the Slovakian foreign service. His overnment declared war on the United States (by Hitler's order) nd in his six years as an ambassador for Slovakia Sidor was an mportant cog in the machinery of Axis diplomacy.

After Munich, Karol Sidor and Joseph Tiso transformed the linka (until then a minority political group) into a totalitarian arty. They suppressed or annihilated all opposing parties, using a trong-arm gang of storm troopers, the infamous Hlinka Guard . . . idor was the organizer and first leader of the Hlinka Guard. The errors and outrages committed by Hitler's storm troopers in Nazi ermany were duplicated by the Hlinka Guard in Slovakia.

Like his boss Tiso—Karol Sidor was accused (after the war's nd) of collaboration with the Nazis. Unlike Tiso, who was nabbed n Czechoslovakia, Sidor stayed on in Italy where he had a diplomatic post and thus avoided punishment. In Oct., 1947 he was tried n absentia by the Czech National Court—convicted of collaboration —and sentenced to prison for 20 years. Note that the Commies had ot yet seized Czechoslovakia, which was still a democracy under resident Eduard Benes.

Today Herr Sidor roams freely in the U. S. thumping his chest nd posing as a good anti-Communist—conveniently forgetting his ro-Nazi record. He has duped many good citizens of Scranton, a. (where his daughter lives) into helping him. He has even made asses at a U. S. Congressman to introduce a bill in the House of epresentatives, which would allow him to remain in the U. S., as a ermanent resident . . . Of course, Sidor didn't tell this Congressman that in Feb., 1939 he sent a delegation to Berlin for "discussions" with Gen. Hermann Goering! . . . And we'll bet the Congressman doesn't know that on Jan. 25, 1945 (when the U. S. was at war ith Hitler) Sidor was responsible for a statement to the effect that he Slovak people were the friends of Germany!

The State Dept. approved Sidor's visa in May after he asked ermission to deliver ONE speech before a Slovak group in Cleveland. That speech has come and gone—but not Sidor, who has a alf-dozen public speaking engagements scheduled between now and ugust 6th in Pennsylvania, West Virginia, and Wisconsin.

Here's the proof of State Dept. stupidity in this case: Nine months ago Herve J. L'Heureux, Chief of the State Department's isa Division in Washington, D. C., wrote as follows: "The records f the State Department show that the American Consulate General t Naples, Italy, refused a visa to Mr. Sidor under the authority of itle 22, Section 53.33 of the Code of Federal Regulations as a person whose entry would be prejudicial to the interests of the United tates" . . . One month later George L. Brandt, American Consul-Gen. in Naples, wrote a letter stating that his office had refused n immigration visa to Karol Sidor on the ground that Sidor's dmission would be harmful to the interests of the U. S.

If Karol Sidor was no good in the eyes of the U. S. State Dept. n Sept., 1949, what made him a desirable visitor in May, 1950? Why didn't the American Consul in Montreal (who okayed Sidor's isa application) know as much about the man's rotten record as the merican Consul in Naples, Italy? Or did he?

In short, this is just one more instance of blundering red tape. r perhaps it's part of an idiotic plan on the part of some State ept. officials to give American shelter to the killers of American oldiers. Either way, Sec'y of State Acheson, YOU try explaining it o Gold Star Mothers and crippled GIs in Vets Hospitals. We can't.

nder Liberalized Appointee Setup

Of Course, Navy Won't Object f Athletes Prove Athletic

Navy may be gleeful over the ecently approved bill that gives the same privilege of appoint- g athletes to the Naval Acad- ny that West Point has enjoyed nce 1942 but it's camouflaged a guarded statement issued sterday from the Department Defense.

The bill enables the Secretary Navy to name his own ap- ntees for vacancies that oc- . They've run as high as a year at the Military Acad- and, somehow or other, ny have been filled by stal- t football players.

he Department of Navy took s to point out that "the Sec- ry of the Navy has stated, xercising this new authority, will consider only qualified g men who are excellent po- al officer material and who sincerely desire to make the Navy a career.

"Athletic ability will be weighed only as a contributory factor and will not minimize the emphasis to be placed upon appointing youths who have the requirements essential to taking their places as enthusiastic officers."

Mission to Coblenz Brought Flak Injury

This is the last of a series of six stories by one of America's most amazing airmen. It is a condensation from the recent popular book, "Visibility Unlimited," Longmans, Green.

By Dick Grace

CHAPTER SIX

Overseas in 1944 I was assigned to the First Combat Crew Replacement Center at Bovingdon.

Here crews were given instructions for combat by those who had completed a tour of missions. Incomplete crews were filled out or put into a pool to be recrewed. But nothing happened to me.

If I managed to get in a few missions, it would be different. I'd have set a precedent and proved that I could take it.

I didn't ask how to get them, not being on combat status. That was up to me.

Stupid I hadn't thought of it before. But there was every chance at my station—with all those fresh from missions. They knew people. While flying Forts I had gone to Wales, Scotland, Ireland and several of the combat groups with them.

A mission took only from one evening to the next. I worked in two. On the third the ship was hit by flak. A piece of it came through the right side of the pilot's compartment, caught my flak suit below the chest on the right side. I felt a pain, looked down at the suit. There was no hole. The piece had not gone through. Just bruised.

Another chance came. Four missions. I went to headquarters. I hadn't more than stepped inside the colonel's office when, with a big smile, he said, "That's the way. Glad you made it."

"What?" I asked, feeling of my side.

"Havent' you heard? You're on combat."

Started Same as Others

December 26, 1944 should have been the same as any other mission, one more added to the total, one day nearer the end of the war. It wasn't. It started off too well.

The night was a rarity—clear and not too cold. The North Star high in the sky, and the Big Dipper pointing to it—a compass for all the world to be guided by.

We made the take off, the assembly, watched the sun break over the waters as we headed into it. The bridges at Coblenz were our objective.

The tiresome path over the Channel, picking up the coast which we knew so well. Sky paths had been beaten to every point of it. The long drag to the I. P., then the bomb run.

Heavy flak powdered silently into big puffballs of black. Closer orange centers, red flame. The flat slap as it exploded. Two broke close to the left wing. They were getting our range. They were on our ship, following it, leading it.

Soon they'd try the in-between. They'd set again and if their computations were right, we might never know it. We had on flak suits and helmets. Boring on and on. Sitting ducks on a pond. No chace to vary our altitude or change compass bearing so much as a degree. A burst blinded us.

Hole Torn in Shield

Plexiglass went from the nose. A hole was torn in the shield. Almost simultaneously there was a roar under the number-three motor. Smoke rolled out. We killed it. The prop stopped vibrating. Lucky—no fire. A foot farther back and it would have gone into the tank.

In quick succession we heard ripping sounds as they got one in our tail, making control difficult with part of the surfaces torn off, and another hit under the belly.

This was rough and getting rougher. A couple of minutes to go. Soon we'd have to abort ourselves. We couldn't hold altitude. The final blow—below number-two motor and the fuselage.

A stinging, burning dagger entered my side above the hip. We gave orders. Descended a thousand to target. We got our bombs away, turned over command to the deputy air leader. Calling for fighter help we swung to the left in a slow, graceful movement out of and down from the bomber stream.

I put my hand into the torn clothing by my hip. It came out sticky red. Shouldn't have done that. The others knew. I was sure it wasn't serious. A little flesh. I'd gathered a few pounds extra anyway.

Ship in Bad Condition

The ship was in bad condition. Two good motors but a long way from home. How many holes, we didn't know. There must have been plenty. The ship dragged through the air. The hydraulic system had been shot out and oxygen failed.

Down. Down to 15,000—12,000. We looked for flak areas at 10 and watched all corners for enemy fighters eager to bag a cripple.

Our fighter came in—those beautiful little bugs buzzing around to protect their big brother. Maybe fighter pilots didn't think much of those who pushed the freight cars, but we thought a lot of them, whizzing in close, hovering above, occasionally diving down to knock off a train or a motor caravan.

Finally, the field. There was a terrific grinding as we hit the runway. Afterward the ship was junked, put into class 26 with 167 major holes in it.

The ambulance was there to meet us. The hospital. Silly to make such a fuss over a little flak, I thought, as they pulled out a piece about three-quarters of an inch square that had just missed my hip bones.

They filled the hole with sulphur powder and wanted to put me to bed. As I left for the Officers' Club they said I'd be back.

I didn't know what kind of punch that stuff packed. My side started to ache and swell. In two hours I was back. From ribs to ankle I was the color of indigo. I was through for a few days, but my birthday was the tenth of January. On the day I would be 47 I was going on a mission to deliver a present.

The doctors gave up and put me back on combat. I made the mission and continued on duty.

That Tough 7 P. M. Spot

Garry a Good Bet In a Fast Field

By John Crosby

GARRY MOORE'S assets include a crew cut, a face vaguely resembling Middleground's without the blaze down the middle, a large and engaging smile, a swift tongue and a surprising amount of experience for a man of his years (35). I almost forgot. He also has a job, a big job.

Moore

CBS-TV has pitched him into its coveted 7 to 7:30 p. m. spot Mondays through Fridays, 2½ hours a week of him, which is a large assignment indeed for such a young man. This throws him into direct competition with "Kukla, Fran and Ollie" on NBC and "Captain Video" on DuMont—both, in their entirely different ways, formidable contenders. May the best man win the coaxial cable.

Moore, on his opening shows, demonstrated he was going to be a pretty tough opponent. "The Garry Moore Show" is a very loose, relaxed, tuneful and entertaining operation. It is a shrewd mixture of a lot of other shows—the old Garry Moore afternoon radio show, the Arthur Godfrey show, the Dave Garroway enterprise, and—of all things—"It Pays to Be Ignorant." Moore has surrounded himself with a number of entertainers, most of whom have been with him for some time—Durward Kirby, an announcer roughly twice his altitude; Denise Lor, a female singer; Ken Carson, a male singer; and the Howard Smith Instrumental Quartet.

The sketches are bright, gay and so strikingly informal that they hardly deserve the name. Some of them sound a good deal like amateur night at the Elks Club, though performed with a good deal more assurance.

When Mr. Moore's chatter and the tomfoolery abate for a moment, Miss Lor sings in a rich, throaty, though not very distinctive voice. However, she can expire of love with as much conviction as most female singers, if you like that sort of thing. Her countenance, though, is subject to change without notice.

The make-up people at CBS apparently were dissatisfied with what they saw on Monday night and they substantially rearranged Miss Lor's kisser for Tuesday night. It still wasn't right, I guess, because they threw in a brand new model on Thursday night, which didn't bear even a family resemblance to the earlier Miss Lor. By the time you read this, I expect Miss Lor will have made some decision as to which face she likes best, and settle into it more or less permanently.

Good-Looking Yokel

HER colleague, Mr. Carson, is the yokel of the program, an Oklahoma boy with a weakness for terrible jokes and expressions like, "You bet your Aunt Fanny's duster, Buster." He's a good-looking yokel, though, and he can sing reasonably well. And Mr. Kirby is a fairly accomplished and versatile clown. I don't know how well he can sell things because as yet the Moore show hasn't attracted a sponsor.

That brings us back to Moore himself. Moore has been in radio since the mid-'30s, starting in Chicago in a very engaging and witty show. For four years, he was Jimmy Durante's partner, possibly the best Durante ever had in radio. In 1948, he struck out on his own as emcee of "Take It or Leave It." When Tom Breneman died unexpectedly, Moore served a brief and regrettable stretch, trying on ladies' hats on "Breakfast in Hollywood." Last year he had an afternoon radio show of his own which hit a very high level for daytime radio.

His chatter is bright and intelligent, if not exactly memorable. He has a satiric vein which, through the years, has been dimmed and professionalized a bit, though not too much, and he has picked up some good and some bad habits from Bob Hope, Red Skelton and Godfrey. On the whole, though, I think CBS has made a smart move in thrusting him forward. If he has the stamina, he ought to go far. Incidentally, starting last Monday, his show is simulcast, meaning it's on both the radio and TV CBS networks.

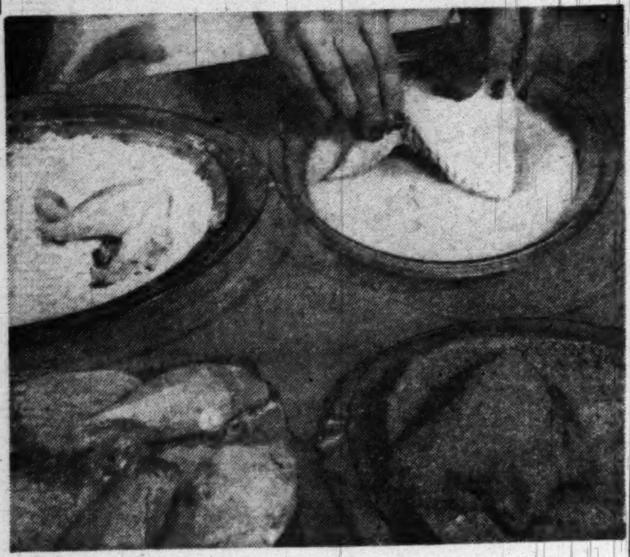
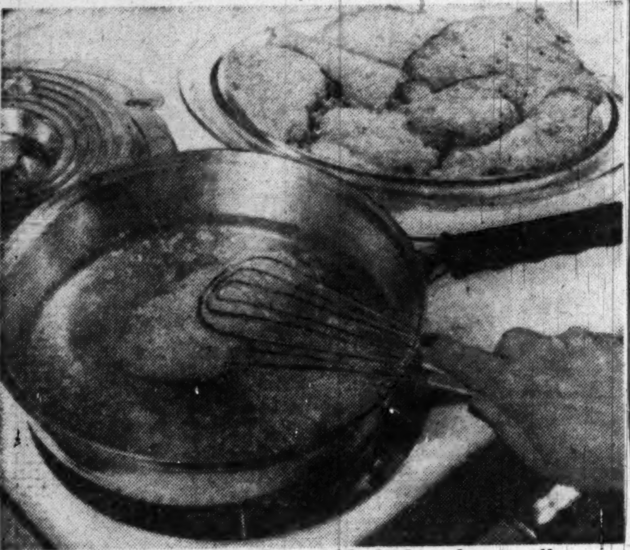
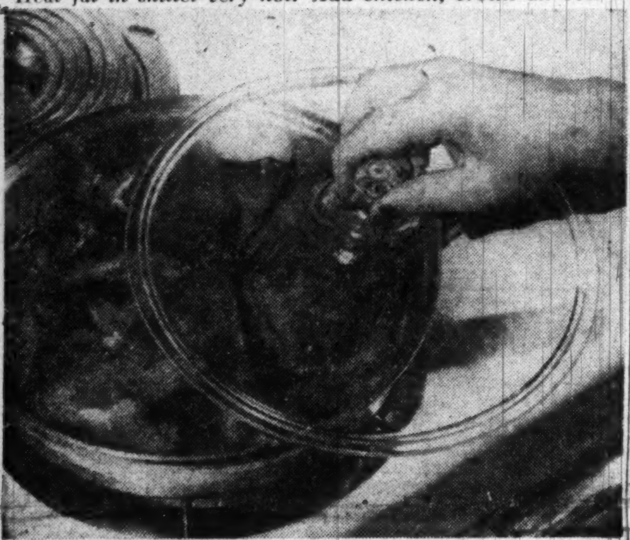
Fried Chicken—Mmmm!



Coat pieces with flour, dip in beaten egg, roll in crumbs



Heat fat in skillet very hot. Add chicken, brown all over



When chicken is brown, cover and cook slowly until tender

FOR summer outings, there's nothing like fried chicken. The secret of poultry cookery is low heat. Fry chicken in high heat first to brown, then finish at lower temperature. Here's the recipe:

1/3 to 3½-lb. fryer cut up, ½ cup all-purpose flour, 1 teaspoon salt, ⅛ teaspoon pepper, ¼ teaspoon dry mustard, 1 egg, beaten; 2 tablespoons cold water, bread crumbs, ½ cup oil or shortening.

Mix flour, salt, pepper and dry mustard. Combine egg and water. Coat chicken pieces with flour, dip in egg mixture, then roll in bread crumbs.

Heat fat in heavy skillet until very hot. First place meaty pieces of chicken into the hot fat, slipping less meaty pieces between. Brown chicken on all sides, about 10 minutes.

Reduce heat, cover and cook slowly until tender, about 30 to 60 minutes.

Turn occasionally to brown evenly. Uncover the last 10 minutes so that the chicken will crisp up again.

Hot Weather Countries Offer Cool Eating Tips

By Norma Lanum

A SUMMER meal's not complete these torrid days without a salad. And if she's clever enough, the modern housewife can frame her entire menu around a salad for days on end.

But of course there's always the chance of the man of the family balking after a week of salads—or "rabbit food," as he's apt to call it—unless he gets plenty of variety.

What the homemaker really needs to keep the Mister well fed and cool this season is a large range of raw fruit and vegetable recipes to draw from. Where can she get them? Well, she might look to the tropical countries where housewives have to cope all year around with the problem of hot weather eating.

A REAL authority on the subject of food for torrid days is the modest wife of the new Ambassador of Panama, Senora de Herbruger. A truly good neighbor, she offers several novel salad ideas to harried housewives of this country.

Actually, she explains, despite the heat, people in Panama eat cooked meat, beans, fish, rice and coffee for luncheon, with maybe a steaming bowl of soup to start off with. Then in the evening they have their big meal.

It would be very boring if we had just salads, she says. "No es verdad?" However, they do serve fruit and vegetable salad frequently to supplement their big meals.

"YOU like to see one," the Ambassador's wife says, beckoning us into the embassy kitchen where she's anything but a stranger. Then she tied her apron and finished putting the salad dressing on an enticing plate of stuffed avocados. The "ensalada de aguacate" was to be served along with the heavy luncheon for the day, but it looked more like the kind of dish we Americans would make a meal of when the mercury tops 85. Here's how she made it.

Start with four avocados. Cut them in half. Scoop out the meat and mash it up with 3 tablespoons of mayonnaise and 1 tablespoon ketchup. Then add 1 pound shredded shrimp or chicken. Beat it all very well. Then place the mixture back in the avocado halves. Over each spread thinly a light pink mixture of mayonnaise and ketchup. And over that sprinkle finely chopped hard-cooked eggs. Next place the avocado halves on a lettuce leaf surrounded with slices of tomatoes topped also with the mayonnaise and ketchup mixture and chopped eggs. Garnish with parsley sprigs.

ANOTHER salad Panama gourmets enjoy is the "Ensalada de Pina y Repollo." Just combine 1 finely shredded fresh pineapple and one-half finely shredded raw cabbage. Add mayonnaise and serve on a lettuce leaf.

And here is one of Panama's most prized recipes—"Refresco de Arroz con Pina." It's a native beverage guaranteed to give relief from the heat.

Shred one fresh pineapple and add to one-half pound of rice and 2 quarts water. Cook mixture until rice is completely done. Then remove from pan and beat vigorously, gradually adding 1 can evaporated milk and a little sugar, if desired. Beat until thin. Chill and serve.

Mary Haworth's Mail

As If by Fate, Widow, 52, Made Friends of Man Who Is 24, in Moving Picture Show; Now He Says He Loves Her Greatly; Is Happy Union Feasible?

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I am a widow, 52, and three months ago I met a young man, 24,—by fate, it seems to me. I shall call him Roy.

We sat in adjoining seats in a moving picture show and carried on a conversation. After a while he said he would take me home, which he did. Four weeks passed before I saw him again; then he showed up one evening at 7 o'clock and asked me to go out, which I did. We seemed to enjoy each other's company and since then he has come to see me every Saturday evening and Sunday.

He has told me that he loves me, and he says he hopes we never part. He says he had nothing to come home to before; now he has me, and consequently he is the happiest guy in the world. He says he loves me more each time he sees me. I also like him, but I tell him that I am old enough to be his mother. He says he doesn't care; that means nothing.

She Looks Young; He's Well Built

HE SEEMS to be a very nice fellow, and although he is single, he doesn't like to go with young girls. He seems to prefer the company of mature-age people. He works in a neighboring city and only comes here on weekends. He is the first man I have gone with since I lost my husband three years ago; and we both seem crazy about each other.

We make a nice couple, as I am small and young looking—I look like a kid, Roy says—and he is well built. In a typical letter he writes, "Nothing much to report in this short time, but I can tell you again what I told you on the weekend. I love you as much now as I said then, and I wish I were with you. It is only Monday and already I am lonesome." Tell me, am I doing right in this situation? Do you think it will be a happy union? Please advise.

H. P.

Both Victims of Loneliness

DEAR H. P.: It is not uncommon for solitary individuals to skirmish furtively for sentimental fellowship on an anonymous basis (to start) with adjacent persons in darkened theaters, during picture shows that play upon the emotions of the audience.

When two strangers become sudden allies in such circumstances, as you and Roy immediately did, it signifies that both are in serious straits psychologically. It means that each of you is emotionally isolated from your natural neighbors—i. e., fellow workers, fellow church members, folks who live in the same locality, persons you've known for years, etc.—fair measure of whom would be your friends, if you had normal capacity to be a friend.

I am not unduly disposed to "view with alarm" the risks of life. But even so, I cannot endorse hasty companionship between a man and woman (of any age) that originates in the manner you describe, and runs on without reliable exchange of information about the social history of both. You ought to be sure Roy's character is good before making a buddy of him.

Pick-Up Date Is Poor Risk

AS A personality, obviously he is rather peculiar. He may be a harmless fellow, a sissy type who chronically yearns for mother-care and thus feels happy in your company. Or may be quite sick emotionally and seeking refuge from psychoitc alarms. He may be a sexual psychopath, whose potential behavior in privacy is unpredictable. In short, he may be a very dangerous associate, even though his intentions, so far as he knows, are utterly fine.

Or, to consider another possibility, he may be after money if he thinks you have some. If you own a home, have an insurance income, etc., you may seem rich by his standards, and he may be figuring ways and means of swindling you, since you are so gullible. Lonely widows are apt to be defenseless game for rascally courtiers of this ilk.

For advice: You and Roy might be great friends, even good helpmates, despite the age difference, if you were sturdy personalities each in his own right, endowed with salt-of-the-earth virtues and comfortably adjusted to your life "as is." But that's not the picture. Each is somewhat like the drowning man clutching at a straw for support; thus I can't see happy union in the cards.

Mary Haworth counsels through her column, not by mail or personal interview. Write her in care of The Washington Post.

Youth Finds a Place In the Summer Sun

THE best way to keep cool in the summer is to stay in the sun, Washington's younger set seems to find.

This is true, of course, only if the sun is combined with a swimming pool handy for refreshing dunks. Not only is the "sun and swim" habit an enjoyable recreation during Washington's hot summers, but its by-product is a golden tan which brings envious "ohs" and "ahs" from friends. Even a lobster red complexion is a pleasant change from winter pallor.

'For Meritorious Service'

Six to Receive Awards At ADA Garden Party

Secretary of the Interior Oscar Chapman and Philip Graham, publisher of The Washington Post, will be among six recipients of meritorius service awards to be presented by the Washington Chapter, Americans for Democratic Action, on Saturday.

At the fourth annual garden party of the organization at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Friendly, 1645 31st st. nw., six District residents will be honored for "service to the District of Columbia."

Receiving the awards will be:

Secretary of the Interior Oscar Chapman "for his courageous stand on the problem of nonsegregation in the recreation field in the District."

Philip Graham, "for the editorial campaign of The Washington Post on the fight for home rule as representative of the type of understanding which this community requires and deserves."

Elmer Davis, radio commentator, "for bringing to the American radio public an understanding of some of the problems of the Nation's Capital, particularly as they remain neglected and unsolved."

Mrs. Mary Church Terrell, "for her vigorous and courageous action in the test case on restaurants, and for her advocacy of nonsegregation with respect to the American Association of University Women."

Benjamin Sigal, "for his attainments in the various fields of interest to the District as president of the Washington Chapter of the ADA for three years."

Mrs. Frances Adams, who, as chairman of the ADA Chapter's District committee, "was prominent in the fight for home rule and nonsegregation of the District recreation facilities."

In case of rain, the party will be held on Sunday, July 9. Tickets are available at the Washington chapter office, 1740 K st. nw. Or they may be obtained at the door.

Zonta Will Present Check

One of the many service projects carried on by Zontians is that of providing aid to the handicapped. At the regular weekly club meeting to be held on July 26, Dr. Inez E. Wilber, president of the Washington Zonta Club, will present to Deaconess Margaret S. Bechtol, superintendent of the Episcopal Eye, Ear and Throat Hospital, a gift from the club in the amount of $100. This gift is a contribution toward the eye glass fund of the hospital.

Anne Moussot Becomes Bride At St. John's

Society attended the wedding yesterday of Miss Anne Moussot and Walter Coutant Humstone. The ceremony took place at St. John's Episcopal Church at 8 o'clock in the evening. The Rev. Charles Leslie Glenn officiated, and a reception followed at the Washington Club.

The bride is the niece of Miss Carrie S. Tisdel and Mrs. Helen de Wollant of Washington, and she is the daughter of the late Commandant Octave Moussot of the French army and Mrs. Moussot. The bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Millard Cumming Humstone of Greenwich, Conn.

Edward Russell True escorted the bride, and she was given in marriage by her aunt, Miss Carrie Tisdel. The bride wore her mother's wedding gown of white satin and heirloom lace. Her flowers were a bouquet of white roses.

Mrs. Millard Humstone was matron of honor, and Millard Humstone, brother of the bridegroom, was best man. Ushering were William Abbott, George Haselton, T. Percy Lippitt, and Arthur Rice, all of Washington.

Mrs. Humstone attended the French University and George Washington University, and Mr. Humstone attended Harvard College and Harvard Law School. After a wedding trip to Bermuda, Mr. and Mrs. Humstone will live in Old Greenwich, Conn.

Far Away Places Beckon D. C. Socialites

By Marie McNair

WHILE foreign envoys and Congressmen are staying close to home base, it's vacation time for those whose only worries are how to escape the heat.

Nothing could stop 84-year-old Anna McCloy from taking off by plane on Wednesday for Germany to visit her son, John J. McCloy, United States High Commissioner to Germany, and Mrs. McCloy at their home in Frankfurt.

Senator Theodore Francis Green, who'll be 83 in October, slipped away to Newport for the holiday weekend but he's back now and on the job. Reelected president of the Rhode Island Chapter of the Society of the Cincinnati, the Senator led the exercises on July 4 in historic Colony House where the organization was formed, and read the Declaration of Independence.

Stays at Home, Keeps Fires Burning

MRS. DANIEL W. BELL, whose husband leaves today on a special mission for President Truman in the Philippines, says she'll stay home to keep the home fires burning. Her daughter, Kathleen, is in Geneva attending the Economic and Social Council meeting of U. N. for the State Department and is expected back early in September, about the time her father hopes to wind up his work in Manila. Joyce Eoel, the Bell's debutante niece, is flitting in and out of town while her heart interest at Annapolis is on leave.

There was a lot of gold braid at Gen. Omar Bradley's stag dinner last night for Army, Navy and Air Force Chiefs of Staff from France. The visitors are Gen. Charles Lecheres of the Air Force; Lieut. Gen. Clement Blanc, Army Chief of Staff, and Rear Admiral Marcel Deramond, Navy Deputy Chief.

The French Ambassador, Henri Bonnet, meanwhile was host to his compatriots at dinner Wednesday evening.

Cocktail Party On the Calendar

MR. AND MRS. FREDERICK DRUM HUNT and Mr. Hunt's brother-in-law, Comdr. Richard C. Drum Hunt, entertained together yesterday at a cocktail party given at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Hunt. The party was an occasion for the two brothers to say "hello" to many friends, as both have been out of Washington quite a bit during the last 10 years.

Mr. Hunt is in the Foreign Service and Commander Hunt has been on naval duty abroad. The latter, who has been retired, got his master's degree at the University of Pennsylvania during the past year and is now going to work for a Ph.D. at George Washington.

India Edwards Gets an Aide

MRS. INDIA EDWARDS, vice chairman of the Democratic National Committee and executive director of the women's division, has a new assistant. She's Betty Hunter, who received her M.A. degree from Mount Holyoke College in June and is serving as a Government "interne." She and four other Holyoke graduates are learning first-hand about problems of administration under a special program begun this year by the college's department of political science. Betty, who's a Washington girl, was graduated from Swarthmore in 1948.

Brackenridge Club Slates Installation

The next meeting of the National M. Eleanor Brackenridge Club of the District of Columbia will be held in the garden of the YWCA of Alexandria, Va., at 8 p. m. today. Mrs. Penn Howard and Mrs. Frank Mason will be hostesses.

The following new officers will be installed: President, Mrs. Frederick S. Speakman; vice president, Mrs. Margarette Andrade; recording secretary, Mrs. Frank Mason; corresponding secretary, Mrs. John R. Dennis; treasurer, Mrs. France Mattingley, and director to D. C. Federation of Women's Clubs, Miss Frances Harris.

The guest of honor will be Miss Agatha Sobel of Washington. Miss Sobel will enter the University of Chicago Medical School in September.

Tobé Says . . .

This is just about the last chance any of us have to buy any last minute things that we need to fill in the gaps in our summer wardrobe. Now that the dog days are finally here, nothing looks so right as all-white. No matter what other colors you have, you can always stand one fresh all white costume.

Contrary to the past few years, you can buy almost everything in white this summer—long white duster coats, white pique sun dresses, white linen suits, white crepe dresses, white chiffon dancing frocks.

I'd top an all-white costume with white accessories too—white shantung or linen shoes with a bag to match and white gloves, of course.

University Club Plans Activities

Mrs. Neyna C. Darcy, owner of the Shut-Ins Craft Shop, will speak before the University Women's Club on July 10 at 5 p. m. She will talk of her work in furnishing an outlet for articles made by shut-in and handicapped people, and will exhibit some of these articles and tell of the stories back of their creation. The program was arranged by the arts committee, Miss Esther Colvin, chairman.

At 11 a. m. on July 13 Miss Cora Sasman will review "The Other City," by John P. Espey, before the regular book review group. John Gonella, assistant information officer at the Pakistan Embassy, will speak before the club on July 13 at 7:30 p. m. "Pakistan Today" will be the subject of his talk. The program will be preceded by an informal dinner at 6:30 p. m. It is presented by the international relations committee, Mrs. Roy Lowe, chairman.

MISS HELEN PENDERGAST AND CLIENT

Being a woman is no handicap, this one finds

Women at Work

Insurance Gives Distaff Side a Big Welcome

By Sonia Stein

MISS HELEN ANN PENDERGAST has "helped people buy" more than a quarter of a million dollars worth of life insurance a year. That's the way she thinks about her work. For despite all the cartoons about life insurance salesmen with one foot in the door, Helen Pendergast doesn't consider her job that of a salesman.

Working on that principle, she has become a life member of the Women's Quarter Million Dollar Round Table and has set national leadership records in the company she represents in Washington.

Chairman of the Women's Underwriters group of the National Association of Life Underwriters which will meet here in September, Miss Pendergast points out that the life insurance field has been wonderfully receptive to the distaff side. There are an estimated 5000 women in the field, and Miss Pendergast says they are likely to stay.

"I've never known a woman who left insurance for another field once she got into it. Men may try it and then change to something else, but women who get in, stay in."

Came to Insurance From University

A FORMER university teacher, Helen Pendergast came to Washington in 1948 from Baton Rouge, La., to do research on women's needs in life insurance. She has also analyzed the background and personalities of 100 members of the Women's Quarter Million Dollar Round Table. Like herself, most of them came to insurance from the field of education. Women under 30 seldom become underwriters because "you have to be a little bit older to tell a man how to provide for his family," she acknowledges. "But being a woman is no handicap, partly because men are accustomed to looking to women for advice all their lives about many things."

Being a woman may even give you slight edge since men usually try to be polite to women, she figures.

"In the South, where I began my work, men would always say, 'So glad you came; come again,' whether they wanted to buy or not," she remembers.

Likes to See People Healthy

WHEN she is greeted by shortsighted remarks about life insurance reminding people of death, Miss Pendergast parries them deftly with some comment like, "We don't want to insure you unless you are going to live." Her interest in keeping people alive and healthy is life-long and genuine. Her field as a university teacher was physical education and health.

Tall and chic, Helen Pendergast wears bright red polish on the fingertips that fly so deftly through the charts and graphs. And the persuasive story she tells about insurance and its wonders is spun in a gentle voice.

Dropped Graduate Study for New Job

HER teaching career was well advanced when she turned her back on it. She dropped work on her doctorate just one semester short of completion, and took up taxes, interest, stocks, bonds and securities until she could talk finances to men on their own level.

And that's to whom she talks, for the most part. Women underwriters write most of their insurance on men. However, Washington, with its high percentage of women who are heads of families, offers a wide field for life insurance for women. In any case, there seems to be absolutely no sex differential in selling insurance, Helen Pendergast has discovered. She doesn't regret leaving the campus behind.

Bric-a-Brac And Hats Are Tea Features

Modelling of hats and a collection of bric-a-brac will be the twin purposes of a tea to be held at the Manor Club from 3 to 5 p. m. on July 20, in preparation for the country supper and bazaar to be given by the Women's Board of Montgomery County General Hospital on July 25.

The hats, new as coin from the mint, are being donated by leading Washington department stores and shops. They will be sold at the supper. The bric-a-brac, old and new, will be contributed by the ladies attending the tea for later sale at the benefit.

Mrs. Frank Palmer of Olney is chairman. Assisting her will be Mrs. Gene Archer, Mrs. Brooke Johns, Mrs. James Valliant, Mrs. Mark Ziegler, Mrs. Dorsey Downey, Mrs. William J. Buehm, Miss Janice Palmer, Mrs. Lynn Callahan, Mrs. H. King Vann and Mrs. William Martin.

The Women's Board is returning to its annual supper after having waived it for two years. Diners will sit at tables under tents on the lawn, for a meal of country ham and fried chicken.

Child Who Shuns Dish Should Get a Substitute

By Myrtle Meyer Eldred

WHEN a child refuses one or another of the different ypes of foods: cereals, vegeables, fruits, meats, etc., it is vell to try to substitute other oods with the same food values.

Instead of the vegetables, more ruits could be given or vice ersa, so that the child would get he minerals and vitamins these oods provide. For cereals the nother may use breadstuffs or ipe, raw bananas, or potatoes. And she may find that the child vill accept one cereal grain hough he turns up his nose at thers. It isn't particularly imrtant whether he eats wheat, rn, rye, or oats. All of them rovide minerals and carbodrates.

When a mother says her child on't eat any fruit, vegetable cereal what she means, usual- is that he won't eat more an one or two vegetables or uits, or won't take cereal in e form of breakfast food. He ay get cereal grains in bread cake or cookies or puddings.

till Takes Bottle efore Her Nap

MRS. E. M. B. says her 16-months-old daughter still rinks her milk by bottle at nap nd bedtime. "She generally ats cereal, an egg, fruit and ilk for breakfast. After wakg she has some form of vegetable and a pudding. At supper she eats a mixture of meat and potatoes, as she won't eat the meat plain, unless it is the same one we are eating. She also has some fruit.

"For about two weeks now she has refused breakfast completely, but begs for food from the table. This is the only meal with which I have any trouble, but I think it is important.

"She was vaccinated last week and it is working, but doesn't seem to bother her."

Ripe Bananas Good Substitute

MAYBE her lack of appetite this last week is related to the vaccination. I doubt whether she could go through this without showing some effects.

Ripe bananas make a good substitute for cereal so you might put one of those peeled on the breakfast table and let her find it there. She might enjoy some of the ready-cooked cereals which she could pick up in her fingers and eat. If she eats willingly from the table, then prepare the foods you think she should have and serve them to her from it. She'll get through this period without knowing that she has been accused of "not eating."

Holding Head High Firms Droopy Chin

By Ida Jean Kain

WHAT'S back of a double chin and which muscle is involved? The muscle that appears to cause the trouble is the platysma, a thin sheet of muscle between the jaw and the collarbone which contracts the skin on the front of the throatline. When this "cosmetic" muscle becomes flabby and fat-inlarded, the effect is a double chin.

Actually, however, this is only the effect, not the cause . . . for it is the muscles that hold the head erect that are responsible for keeping the throatline young and firm. When the head is properly balanced and held beautifully erect, all the muscles of the neck remain toned and a double chin hasn't a chance to form.

Now to answer the other questions . . . Will exercise make a thin neck thinner; will a reducing diet cause the chinline to become flabby and older-looking; and do chin exercises tend to stretch the skin and add to throatline troubles?

Main Muscles Are Braced

LET'S begin with the underlying muscles of the throat. The main muscles are braced with smaller ones, and tonus in these muscles keeps the throatline firm. In youth these muscles are round and full and that is why the skin is snug and wrinkle-free. A small amount of regular exercise will help keep it that way. Exercise, instead of making a thin neck thinner, actually makes it fuller and younger.

But if exercise is developing, will it make a double chin bigger? No, because exercise cannot grow fat. Restoring tone to the throat muscles improves the contour of the throatline, and holding the head erect keeps them firm.

In the case of a double chin, diet is important only if the weight is above normal. The double chin effect is not always due to excess weight. Normal weights can have double chins when the muscles in that area are flabby.

Bachelor Shortage, Too

June Weddings on Decline, But So Are Spinsters

ALTHOUGH the final number won't be known for several months, there were probably fewer June weddings in America this year than in any June since 1946, the Institute of Life Insurance reports today.

For nearly four years the number of marriages in this country has been declining steadily, with population experts seeing no signs of any immediate change in the trend.

Whatever the final number of weddings this month turns out to be—one guess is somewhere around 160,000—there is no reason for anyone to worry about America becoming a land of spinsters and bachelors. One reason why the marriage rate is declining is because we are running short of spinsters and bachelors; there are simply not enough of them to keep up the pace we set just after the war.

The busiest 12 months in the history of the United States so far as marriages are concerned began in December 1945. Eager young men and their happy young ladies began crowding marriage license bureaus that month and they kept it up for a year. When the 12 months were up, in November 1946, some 2,300,000 licenses had been issued to set an all-time national record.

Marriage Rate Began to Fall

BEGINNING in December 1946, the marriage rate began to fall and it has been falling ever since. There were 2 million licenses issued in 1947; 1,800,000 in 1948 and 1,600,000 last year. But population experts do not consider this a rapid or dangerous decline; some of them would have prophesied, back in 1946, that the rate would have gone down much faster than it actually has.

The news that we haven't a big supply of bachelors and spinsters will probably strike this year's crop of bridesmaids and best men as very important news indeed, yet actually it represents a trend which has been going on in this country for at least 50 years.

More Americans today get married, they get married younger and once married, they have more years together because people now live longer than they used to. For all of these reasons, we have fewer unmarried adults in our population today, proportionately, than we had in 1900.

Nurseries Today Are Crowded

LIFE insurance companies, which watch these trends closely, point out that the steady increase in the number of families is the reason why our playyards and nurseries are so crowded today with babies and toddlers. Relatively few parents in America today have large families of six or seven children, yet our birth rate still remains high because there are so many more families now of one, two and three children.

The nation's divorce rate is of course much higher today than it was in 1900, although this, too, has been declining since 1946. The effect of divorce is not to increase to any great extent the number of single men and women, however, as a large proportion of divorced persons in this country marry again within a few years.

Why Fear or Fret?

When we allow ourselves to fret . . . And we indulge our fears . . . We are inviting tragedy . . . And turning on our tears . . . There is no need to worry and . . . No cause to be afraid . . . If we just keep our confidence . . . And try to make the grade . . . Sometimes the road looks mighty rough . . . And things get in our hair . . . And now and then our burdens seem . . . Much more than we can bear . . . But if we go on fighting and . . . Our flag is flying high . . . The chances are our fears will fade . . . And all our troubles die . . . And if we go on living and . . . Contributing our best . . . At least our conscience will be clear . . . And God will do the rest.

Popcorn Has a New Rival

ADD coming attractions in our movie theaters. Popping sorghum.

Scientists at the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station have developed, through hybridization, a new grain that will pop like popcorn.

Its parents are both foreign, but will stand a loyalty test. Members of the sorghum family, one of its parents comes from Haiti where it is known as Peti mil (Petite mil, or little millet). The other comes from India and is known as Shallu.

Both are hard-seeded with horny starch in the endosperm similar to popcorn, the scientists state. The kernels are small, but the popping expansion is around 15 to 1. That was the same as old-time popcorn, but not as good as the new hybrid popcorn recently developed, which expands 25 to 1, and sometimes 30 to 1.

Although the new popper makes a smaller puff than popcorn, it has these attractions:

1. It is more tender. The hull is thinner and there is less husk to get between your teeth.

2. The smaller popped kernels lie closer together, so that you get more in a sack.

3. It is just as delicious—maybe more—and has as much nutrition as popcorn.

4. It can be grown on land and in climates where popcorn doesn't do well.

"I'm not very familiar with golf. I don't know a divot from a pivot. As a matter of fact, all I know about the game is that there's a little thing called a tee that's always either too high or too low when I swing and miss."

That's right, Dolores. You've mastered the first lesson. Next you learn that one always gets either too much left hand into a shot, or not enough left hand.

Meantime, I hereby give you permission to use one of my favorite excuses. When you swing and miss, just smile and murmur:

"This course seems to be about two inches lower than the one I'm accustomed to."

THE LIFE YOU SAVE MAY BE YOUR OWN

The National Safety Council has some interesting statistics for those of you who are appalled at the Fourth of July weekend death toll.

The figures cite the operating cost and "death risk" per thousand miles of driving at speeds ranging from 35 to 65 miles per hour.

At 35, it costs you $12.95 to operate your car for a thousand miles. Of every 1000 drivers involved in accidents at this rate of speed, 45 die.

Step it up to 45, and your cost rises to $14.51. And 61 out of every 1000 accidents result in deaths.

At 55, the trend is more obvious. Operating cost shoots to $16.65, and the "death risk" factor hits 85.

At 65, the odds are stacked against you. It costs $19.43 to drive the distance, and 160 out of every 1000 drivers are doomed to death. In money, the cost is half-again as high at 65 as it is at 35. In lives, it's four times as high.

I guess the moral is: To be healthy and wealthy, be wise. Slow down, and you'll live longer.

CRITIC

Maj. Charles S. Coulter of 4212 37th st. nw. was saying the other day that there's probably at least one good anecdote connected with each of Washington's many statues.

"Such as what?" I prompted.

"Well," said the major, "such as the one about the old Union soldier who decided he'd have to come back and see how much Washington had grown since Civil War days."

What happened next runs like this:

At the intersection of Connecticut ave., Columbia rd., and California st., a guide pointed out the statue of Gen. George B. McClellan.

The Union veteran surveyed the scene with great interest and murmured: "Ah, what an appropriate spot for a statue to McClellan."

"How so?" asked the guide.

"It would have suited him perfectly," explained the old soldier. "One road to advance on, and three to retreat by."

Reds Kept Korean Plans Secret

By Drew Pearson

PEARSON

United States observers had picked up word, prior to the Korean invasion, that the Cominform had worked out an over-all plan of attacks and revolts by satellite countries, but such an attack was not expected in Korea.

In fact, Moscow's Korean strategy was kept so secret that not even the Communist government of Mao Tse-tung in Peiping was told about it. Since then Mao has sent a stiff protest to Moscow that the action was in his sphere and he should have been informed.

On the other hand the Chinese Communist general staff was twice alerted for an invasion of Formosa, one by June 15, the other by June 20. This information leaked to United States intelligence—perhaps purposely, in order to divert United States attention away from Korea to Formosa. If on purpose, the strategy was successful, for the chief thing MacArthur hammered at Secretary of Defense Johnson about during their Tokyo conference was Formosa. Korea was not mentioned.

Other areas which, according to this advance information, were ready for the Cominform master-squeeze were:

1. The Yugoslav-Bulgarian border—border skirmishes had increased; Bulgarian troops were massing; and it looked as if Moscow were preparing a Bulgarian attack on Tito.

2. Iran—A "revolt" by the Tudeh, pro-Communist party, was either planned or else was purposely leaked to United States intelligence in order to divert our attention to Iran instead of Korea. In this case, Azerbaijan troops would have been used instead of the Russian army.

3. Germany—The East German army armed by Russia went on maneuvers in East Germany and Poland.

Satellites Shield Moscow

In all these cases, the Cominform planned to use satellite troops to do the fighting, while Moscow pushed the button.

The fact that the United States reacted so quickly and emphatically to block the Korean coup definitely surprised Moscow and may have thrown Cominform calculations off schedule.

It is obvious from various reactions picked up in Moscow that the Kremlin expected us to operate as the old League of Nations—debate, procrastinate, and do nothing.

The fact that we moved as we did, and under the United Nations, may have thrown a monkey wrench into the whole series of satellite moves. Or, on the other hand, the Cominform may now be more determined than ever to save face by carrying the schedule out.

Korean Boundary Line

A lot of people have blamed Roosevelt and Churchill for the impossible thirty-eighth parallel by which Korea was divided into two unwieldly Communist and non-Communist parts. Thanks to political ballyhoo the impression has got out that this line was fixed at Yalta.

Actually, however, this was a military decision, made by General MacArthur under circumstances which he could not control.

The line was fixed in 1945 in order to prevent the Red army from moving farther south and taking all of Korea.

It was on August 12, 1945, that the Red army moved into Korea. This was before the thirty-eighth parallel was drawn and before Japan surrendered. At that time it looked as if the Reds would sweep over all Korea, after which it would be impossible for the United States to get them out.

Nearest United States forces at that time were on Okinawa, 600 miles away, and it was impossible to get United States troops to Korea in time to intervene. In fact, they did not get to Korea until September 8.

In order to prevent the Russians from occupying all Korea, therefore, the United States Army got an agreement from Russia to fix the thirty-eighth parallel as a line south of which the Red army would not penetrate.

By the time American troops arrived in Korea one month later, the Red army actually had moved south of the thirty-eighth parallel, but was finally persuaded to move back.

Later the United States started a series of conferences to remove the barrier and make Korea one united country, but Moscow refused to move. The United Nations also took a try at it and sent a commission to study the situation. Arriving in South Korea in January, 1948, however, the commission, was barred from North Korea, and the Soviet commander even refused to accept delivery of a letter suggesting a courtesy call.

Note—The U. N. commission prepared for free elections in Southern Korea, in which the Korean people, long denied the right to vote, made an excellent record. Approximately 75 percent registered, of which more than 95 percent voted—despite a Communist terror campaign.

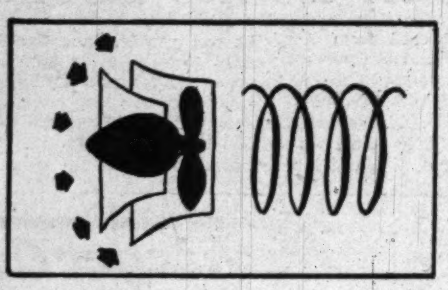
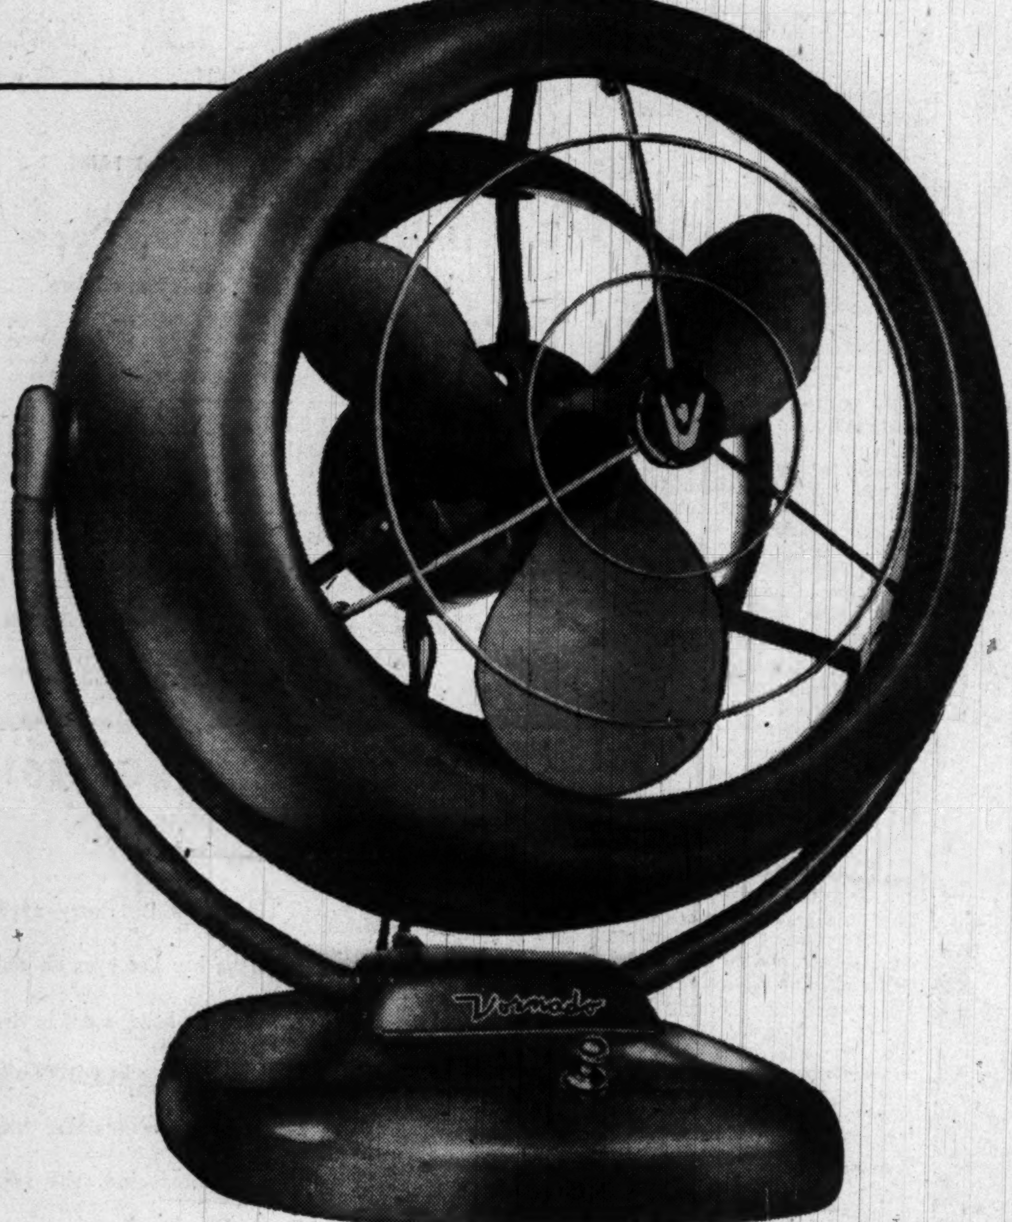
Vornado—new idea in fans—spirals the air!



Here's the Secret:

1. Vornado's Propellor is deep-pitched, moves greater volume of air than conventional blades of larger size!

2. Vornado's Twin Air Injector cones "pull" air from behind . . . to outcirculate any fan its size!



Thrift-Priced Vornado Out-Circulates Any Table Fan Its Size!

Moves 1470 cu. ft. of air per minute 22.95

Wherever you sit in a room, you can feel Vornado's cooling, refreshing air movement! For Vornado is more than a fan, it's a circulator. Keeps all the air in constant movement . . . 1470 cubic feet of it every minute. The secret is the twin air injector cones. They draw dead air in from the back and sides. Then the deep-pitch propellor sends a powerful airstream swirling! Get the thrift-priced, 2-speed Vornado for only 22.95. Larger sizes for no more than ordinary fans usually cost!
